AMERICAN SOCIETY OF CRIMINOLOGY

Dear Colleagues:

Welcome to the 31st Annual meeting of the American Society of Criminology. With the theme of “Criminology and Criminal Justice: Convergences and Divergences” the Program Committee has endeavored to provide for you a stimulating and provocative meeting.

There are 106 Panels, 10 Colloquia, and 11 Roundtables scheduled, with over 600 persons participating in what we believe to be the largest program ever sponsored by the Society. Additionally, a Professional Employment Exchange, a Film Festival, and publishers’ exhibit have been planned. At the three major plenary sessions, the ASC award winners will present significant papers.

Persons wishing to purchase copies of papers presented at the Annual Meeting may do so at the Registration Desk.

Social events have been planned for each evening, including a banquet on Friday evening.
All meetings and events are scheduled for the first, third or fifth floors at the Philadelphia Sheraton.

We trust you will enjoy this Annual Meeting.

DIRECTORY OF EXHIBITS

This exhibit presents many publications related to criminology and criminal justice, including numerous titles authored by members of the American Society of Criminology. We have attempted to select materials and arrange displays to bring the latest and most pertinent publications to the attention of members of the Society.

The exhibit is located on the Tiered Balcony, on the 3rd floor near the registration desk. Orders for publications may be placed at the exhibit. Many publishers offer Annual Meeting discounts.

The exhibit will be open on Wednesday from 2:00 to 5:30 p.m., on Thursday from 9:00 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., and on Friday from 9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m.

Continuous screenings of films suitable for classroom adoption can be viewed from 9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m., Wednesday through Friday, at Delaware Valley C & D, on the 3rd floor, opposite the registration desk. The schedule of films to be screened will be posted each day.

The directory of exhibitors cited below is a partial listing, reflecting only those reservations received in advance of the printing of this final program. Exhibitors marked with an asterisk (*) have reserved individual spaces and generally have representatives present to respond to your inquiries.

Theoretical Criminology
Second Edition
GEORGE B. VOLD. Revised by THOMAS J. BERNARD. Guilford College. The standard work in its field now appears in a thoroughly revised second edition, expanded to include significant new developments in all major areas of criminological thinking. Retaining the style and historical framework of the first edition, Bernard incorporates the latest research in such disciplines as genetics, neuropsychology, and learning theory; in an intensive account of the major criminological theorists. New chapters discuss the economic tradition, the ecology of crime, deviance and social reaction, and contemporary conflict and radical criminology. Annotated bibliographies follow each chapter.

Crime Control Strategies
An Introduction to the Study of Crime
HAROLD E. PEPINSKY, Indiana University. How can a knowledge of criminology be used to change the rates of crime and criminality, and what would the consequences of such change be? Pepinsky provides the first comprehensive introduction to the practical questions of crime control. Engagingly written, the text is designed to develop the reader's ability to critically analyze the issues of crime control in the context of society at large.

Police Behavior
A Sociological Perspective
Edited by RICHARD J. LUNDMAN. Ohio State University. Research on police behavior has increased dramatically during the past fifteen years. This course-oriented anthology of eighteen articles samples recent studies on police decision-making, police-citizen interaction, police discretion, brutality and corruption. In his introductory comments on the readings, Lundman emphasizes the environmental and organizational roots of police conduct and misconduct.

Women, Crime, and Justice
Edited by SUSAN K. DATESMAN, Arizona State University, and FRANK R. SCARPITTI, University of Delaware. The study of female crime has become one of the most popular topics in contemporary criminology. The fourteen articles collected here focus on the etiology of female crime, patterns of female criminal behavior, and the treatment of women in the criminal justice system. In addition, the editors have written a substantial introduction analyzing crime trends and the nature of female criminality, and a comprehensive concluding essay on the relation between women’s crime and the women’s movement.

"The outstanding and inexplicable quality of Wiseman's cinema is his ability to be ever present, to capture with his camera and recorder a half-spoken word or the shadow of a lie, without ever seeming to intrude or to condition the way his subjects behave in the presence of the film crew. Beyond this is the power to organize the material... so as never to compromise the truth of the record, but to convey at once the chaos of human activity in a society where the social machines are perilously overloaded, and the make-shift sort of order that can sometimes be imposed by sheer force of good will..." A MEASURE OF JUSTICE
By RICHARD A. BERK, HAROLD BRACKMAN and SELMA L. LESSER
A Volume in the QUANTITATIVE STUDIES IN SOCIAL RELATION Series

The Crime and Conflict claims that the structure of American criminal law and a variety of American cultural values and institutions interest to support a high office crime. A growing crime rate, a high crime rate, in contrast to the western approach with that of China, where its avoidance is coupled with relatively low rates of crime. The book shows that the more specific and detailed the criminal law becomes, the greater the discretion that is imposed on the administrators of the law. These administrators in turn apply the law so as to favor the interests of the socially powerful, while doing their best to preserve the appearance of justice by concealing the principles by which law is applied from the public. The book also analyzes how criminal law affects the behavior of the general populace. It shows that our form of use of criminal law rewards individual accomplishment, thereby reinforcing cooperation and interpersonal distrust; while the Chinese form tends to reward collective achievement, and thus encourages interpersonal cooperation. It gives examples of the kinds of laws whose enactment would control crime, and closes with a consideration of the political feasibility of controlling crime by a reorganization of human aggression, pointing out that people would tend to take new risks to participate in successful crime control, but that they would thereby avoid the present dangers inherent in our society's high crime rate.

AN EVALUATION OF JUVENILE DIVERSION
Ted Palmer and Roy V. Lewis,
California Department of Youth Authority
This book is the product of a three year study of LEAA funded juvenal diversion projects in California. Based on their studies of these programs, the authors conclude no single program or approach to diversion can be considered ideal for the full range of delinquent youth; nor can a single program simultaneously satisfy all the major identifiable objectives of diversion, even for a majority of youth. They recommend instead types of programs for specified categories of youth designed to strike a balance between the social needs, humanitarian values, and practical concerns of diversion programs.

NEW PRINTING
THE FUNCTIONS OF THE POLICE IN MODERN SOCIETY
Egon Bittner, Brandeis University
Foreword by Herman Goldstein, University of Wisconsin
Egon Bittner's monograph about the basic character of police work is one of the most widely praised and critically acclaimed contributions to the literature of policing. This printing includes a new chapter, "Florence Nightingale in Pursuit of Willie Sutton: A Theory of the Police", and is indexed.
Comments on the original edition . . .
"...should be read by all social scientists with related interests and by all those in the legal and police occupations who have occasion for more than superficial thoughts about the future of policing in modern democracies ... an excellent piece for an organizational case study, or a sociological analysis of the police, or an example of organizational change."
CONTEMPORARY SOCIOLOGY: A JOURNAL OF REVIEWS
"...stands as the best attempt to define what the police role actually is ... arguing that 'it is necessary that we know what needs to be done before anyone can venture to say how it is to be done well' ... Butner sets out what the police role is so that we will have a foundation of understanding to help decide 'what needs to be done',"

"Perhaps the most important implication of this work is that serious questions that have been obscured by nearly a decade and a half of bail reform of reared about the institution of bail and pretrial detention. This research opens the door to a re-examination of bail and detention issues and provides a firm gounding for future efforts."

PRESCRIPTION FOR JUSTICE
The Theory and Practice of Sentencing
Guidelines
Jack M. Kress, Dept. of Criminal Justice,
State University of New York at Albany
January 1980 ca. $18.00
ca 200 pages 0-88410-792-2
Through close analysis of sentencing decisions, researchers develop charts and guidelines that provide judges with information on how their colleagues would sentence similar offenses. This innovation provides a compromise between present indeterminate sentencing practices and proposed mandatory systems, and serves as a guide to fair and equitable sentencing decisions.

CRIMINAL DETAINERS
Leslie W. Abramson,
School of Law, University of Louisville
LC 79-11984  $17.50
192 pages 0-88410-801-5
Examine the implications of unresolved charges against inmates: the process by which additional charges or revocation charges are brought; statutory and judicial barriers to speedy resolution of these detainees; and practical and legal actions available to inmates seeking to resolve outstanding charges.

CRIME AS PLAY
Delinquency in a Middle Class Suburb
Pamela Richards, University of Florida
Richard A. Berk, University of California, Santa Barbara, and Brenda Forder, Emührunt College
LC 79-12772  $20.00
256 pages 0-88410-798-1
Focusing on the deviant behavior of affluent suburban adolescents rather than on working class adolescents, the authors challenge the popular image of delinquency as aggressive, negativistic, and conflict oriented.

DECISION MAKING IN CRIMINAL JUSTICE
Michael R. Gottfredson, Criminal Justice Research Center, Inc. and
Don M. Gottfredson, School of Criminal Justice, Rutgers University
January 1980 ca. $16.00
ca. 188 pages 0-88410-245-3
Decisions in the criminal justice system is not one in which the nature of these decisions, which makes the results, is a matter of what or what consequences - provide a focal point for the study of crime. This book is a resource for the study of crime, the assessment of specific needs for research and modification of current criminal justice procedures.

JUST DESERTS
Sentencing Based on Equality & Desert
Richard G. Singer, Rutgers University
LC 79-915  $17.50
240 pages 0-88410-799-X
Singer proposes a system of equal sentencing, based on the offense, as a more rational method of allocating societal penalties than our current individualized sentencing, which is based on predictions of future behavior. In debating and examining the commune system as a departure from the current method, the author includes the methodology for sentence determination, the future of parole, the impact of plea bargaining, and the changes that might occur in parole were such an approach adopted.

THE QUESTION OF PAROLE
Retention, Reform or Abolition?
Andrew von Hirsch and Kathleen H. Hannan, Center for Policy Research, Inc.
LC 78-2131  $16.50
136 pages 0-88410-796-5
The author evaluate the question of retention, altering, or eliminating parole, and make specific recommendations based on their research and evaluation.

POLITICAL PERSPECTIVES
The Study of Criminal Courts
Editor, Peter F. Nardulli, University of Illinois
LC 79-14948  $20.00
320 pages 0-88410-797-3
These essays, by prominent political scientists, discuss the role of criminal courts as dispute processing institutions; outline contemporary theoretical approaches to the study of criminal courts; and analyze three control mechanisms of the dispositional process: sentencing, plea bargaining, and bail.
Jump Street

The story of a play written and performed by inmates at Terminal Island Federal Correctional Institution.

A 60-minute color documentary about a uniquely successful interaction between theatre professionals and prison inmates. The film documents the five-month process needed to turn the inmates' own life struggles into a moving drama.

"A joyous documentary — made with humanity and humor and a real respect for people." — Los Angeles Times

Homeboys

An intimate portrait of a Chicano youth gang, told through the eyes of the gang members.

"The most myth exploding film about Chicanos made to date." — Nuestro Magazine

SCARED STRAIGHT!

Rick DuBrow of the L.A. Herald Examiner writes: I have been watching TV professionally for about 13 years now, and 'Scared Straight' is without a doubt one of the four or five most extraordinary programming events I have ever seen.

This film takes us inside Pathway State Prison where the convicts literally try to scare juvenile delinquents into going straight by giving them a shockingly blunt account of what prison is really like. More than unique, this program is effective — 80% of these kids leave reformed.

SCARED STRAIGHT. Narrated by PETER FALK.
