1980 SAN FRANCISCO ANNUAL MEETING PLANS FINALIZED

With a theme of "Myths and Realities in New Criminal Justice Trends," plans for the annual meeting of ASC are completed and the program has been finalized. (See pages 5-9 of The Criminologist for the preliminary program.) The meeting will be held at the Sheraton-Palace Hotel, November 5-8, 1980, in San Francisco.

Malcolm W. Klein, Program Chair, and Daniel Glaser, ASC President, announced that 130 sessions are scheduled, with over 500 persons presenting papers.

Conference Air Services has been designated as the official travel coordinator for the 1980 meeting. Materials regarding special airfares from various cities have been mailed to the membership.

Hotel and meeting reservation forms are attached to the preliminary program in this issue. Members are encouraged to take advantage of reduced registration fees by sending the form in early. Additionally, in order to be guaranteed a space in the Sheraton-Palace Hotel, members should complete the hotel registration card as soon as possible.

Some of the highlights of the 1980 program include: visits to women's treatment centers; an on-site seminar on former Alcatraz inmates; special sessions on radical and comparative criminology; a program on capital punishment; a round table on mental-health law; and a special session on the "Future With or Without LEAA."

Additionally, there will be five panels on police, fifteen on corrections, twelve on delinquency and juvenile justice, and eight on the courts.

A Presidential Address by Daniel Glaser, entitled "Realistic Crime Control," will be presented, and there will be an annual business meeting over which he will preside.

PROPOSED REVISION OF STUDENT MEMBERSHIP FEES AND RIGHTS

The American Society of Criminology presently offers a full-time student the option of being an Active Member with full voting privileges and full dues, or being a Student Member with no voting privileges but half the regular dues.

The Student Affairs Committee has proposed that the status of Student Member be eliminated and that all members be charged dues based on a sliding scale that is dependent on what they declare to the Society is their income.

The Society's Executive Board rejected the proposal for a sliding scale of dues on the grounds that it is subject to abuse by persons declaring less than their full income and that it is difficult to administer.

The Board, however, expressed an interest in encouraging full participation by students in the Society's affairs. It noted that students make up only about 10% of the total membership, and that these are mostly dedicated graduate students or advanced undergraduates who contemplate careers in criminology.

Members are being asked (by mail ballot) to vote on the following alternatives: (1) keep the present arrangement of half-rate dues but no voting rights for Student Members; (2) eliminate the status of Student Member, giving full voting rights and the same dues charges to all members; (3) eliminate the status of Student Member, giving the same voting rights to all members, but charge only half the regular dues to members who present a certification that they are full-time students.

Members should return ballots on the above issue as soon as they are received.

POSITIONS—VACANCIES—OPPORTUNITIES

THE CRIMINOLOGIST will regularly feature in these columns position vacancies available in organizations and universities, as well as positions sought by members of the Society.

NEWS AND NOTES FROM THE NATIONAL INSTITUTE
VOLUME II OF "CRIME AND JUSTICE" SLATED FOR PUBLICATION

The second volume of "Crime and Justice" is due out in October of this year, the National Institute of Justice announced recently.

The volume is the second in a series of annual reviews of criminal justice research prepared under the auspices of the National Institute. The first volume was published in Fall 1979.

Edited by Norval Morris, Julius Kreeger Professor of Law and Criminology at the University of Chicago Law School, and Michael Tonry, Associate Professor of Law at the University of Maryland Law School, the commissioned essays integrate the significant work in criminal justice research that has emerged from an ever-growing number of disciplines.

The Institute funds the annual review as a way to broaden awareness of the growing body of knowledge about crime and justice.

An editorial review board, chaired by Morris, invites contributors to each volume. The manuscripts are reviewed by the board and other experts.

Essays appearing in the second volume are: "Urban Police and Crime in 19th Century America," by Roger Lane; "Crime and Justice in 18th and 19th Century England," by Douglas Hay; "Biology and Crime," by Sarnoff A. Mednick and Jan Volavka; "A Critique of Marxist Criminology," by Richard F. Sparks; "Research in Criminal Deterrence: Laying the Groundwork for the Second Decade," by Philip J. Cook; and "Criminal Juries," by John Baldwin and Michael McConville.

Also included are: "Criminal Career Research: A Review of Recent Evidence," by Joan Petersilia; "Continental Cures for American Ailments: European Criminal Procedure as a Model for Law Reform," by Thomas Weigend; and "The Natural History and Impact of the Prisoners' Rights Movement," by James B. Jacobs.

Plans for the third volume are currently underway. The list of possible topics includes essays on handguns and violence, demography and crime, and long-term trends in imprisonment.

As announced in the January 1980 issue of The Criminologist, copies of Volume I may be ordered from the University of Chicago Press, 11030 South Langley Avenue, Chicago, IL 60628. The price is $14. Specify order number ISBN: 0-226-53955-5. Information on standing orders for subsequent volumes is available from the University of Chicago Press Marketing Department at the above address.

LEGISLATION

by Peggy A. Frandsen

Special Assistant to the Director, U.S. Bureau of Prisons

Federal Criminal Code Reform (S 1722; HR 6915)

Senate floor action is expected to commence on S 1722 in the third week of August; the House Judiciary Committee completed mark-up of HR 6915. Rules Committee consideration is expected in mid-August with floor action in September.

Tax Disclosure Amendments (S 2403-2405; HR 6826-6828)

These proposed amendments to ease restrictions on law-enforcement access to federal tax records (and to permit limited state access to federal tax information) have been the subject of considerable Congressional interest. The Senate Finance Committee had hearings on the Senate bills on June 20. Prospects for enactment this year are remote but will improve if the bills are attached as a "rider" to other tax legislation.

Privacy Legislation

The medical-records privacy bill (HR 5935) had been reported by House Government Operations Committee and was pending before the Health Subcommittees of both the House Ways and Means and Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committees.

Stanford Daily Legislation

The House Stanford Daily bill (HR 3485) has been reported favorably by the House Judiciary Committee, complete with the provisions extending application to all third-party search warrants; coverage of this part of the bill was limited to the federal government. Prospects for enactment this year are uncertain. The Senate Judiciary Committee has reported S 1790 a considerably narrower 6:11.

False Identification Legislation (S 2429; HR 4278)

This legislation would make it a federal criminal offense to counterfeit, forge, traffic in, or possess false identification documents. While there has been some recent activity in the Senate regarding this legislation, no action is expected this Congress unless it is incorporated in the criminal code bills.

Wiretap Amendments (S 1717)

This proposal to authorize emergency wiretaps without judicial approval in life-threatening situations and to establish procedures for surreptitious entry to install electronic devices was reported by the Senate Judiciary Committee on May 20 without amendments. As the House has taken no action, prospects for enactment this year are remote.

East Side-West Side Organizing Crime in New York 1930-1950

Alan Block $24.95

In those tumultuous years, 1930-1950, politicians such as Fiorello La Guardia, Thomas E. Dewey and William O'Dwyer carved out their careers, and racketeers such as Waxey Gordon, Dutch Schultz, Lepke Buchalter, Lucky Luciano and Albert Anastasia murdered their way to notoriety. Based on several years research, East Side-West Side is unique in its reliance on primary source documents and as a result provides us with a new and accurate historical perspective—a singular achievement.

East Side-West Side establishes the interconnection between private violence and political and economic life in New York from 1930-1950. It convincingly demonstrates that such terms as Mafia, La Cosa Nostra, etc., will not do in discussions of American organized crime, that both are misconceptions fraught with racial and ethnic prejudices. East Side-West Side describes and analyses the social world of organized crime in all its complexity. The author identifies reciprocal services performed by professional criminals, politicians, and clients in such endeavours as gambling, prostitution, and extortion. Private violence is the treacherous ground upon which the social world of professional criminals is constructed. It is one thing to see, discuss and understand the social system and quite another to appreciate the social life of professional criminals and the violent consequences of many of the relationships found in the system. East Side-West Side takes the measure of this by focusing in part on the history of gangland murder, detailing New York's major killing zones during those years. It is a penetrating look at one of the most misunderstood aspects of American society.

Alan Block is a specialist in the history of crime. He is particularly interested in organized crime and its development within society. After some time in journalism he extended his education at the University of California, Los Angeles and California State University. Following an interlude as production associate with David Wolper Films in Hollywood, he reverted to academic teaching at Delaware University, where he now holds the post of Assistant Professor in Criminal Justice. Much in demand in Europe as well as in North America as a lecturer, he has in East Side-West Side produced his first major book.
