Praise for the 1986 ASC Meeting Site

1986 Program Co-Chairs Barbara Raffel Price and Carl Wiedemann accompanied ASC President Lloyd E. Ohlin to Atlanta for a first-hand look at the facilities available for the 1986 Annual Meeting. They were very impressed with the comfort, convenience, and amenities of the Downtown Marriott Hotel, site of the meeting.

The hotel has set aside 500 rooms for the Society at the highly competitive rate of $55.00 for single or double rooms. An additional 200 rooms have been made available at the Holiday Inn directly across the street. Rooms available on a first-come, first-serve basis, but Society members must register before October 1 to take advantage of the low rates and to ensure the availability of a room.

Both hotels have swimming pools, and there are saunas, a health club, and hydrotherapy pool at the Marriott. Be sure that when making room reservations at the Marriott you specify the original Downtown Marriott, located at Courtland Street and International Boulevard.

More information on the 1986 Annual Meeting will be forthcoming in subsequent editions of THE CRIMINOLOGIST.

FROM THE EDITOR

This edition of THE CRIMINOLOGIST marks a change in editorship. John Kramer has stepped down after a three-year stint. I would like to express my gratitude to John, both for his outstanding work as editor, and for the help and counsel he gave me personally when we met recently in Columbus under the watchful eye of Sarah Hall.

That meeting gave rise to some ideas about future developments in these pages. I would like to take this opportunity to share these ideas with the membership, and invite readers with comments or suggestions to get in touch with me.

The series describing programs in criminology and criminal justice around the country will continue. In this issue, Sheldon Messinger describes the program at Berkeley. Other members are invited to send brief accounts of their programs. Descriptions of programs at foreign universities are also welcome.

- Many of us find it hard to keep up with state and federal legislation and appellate decisions bearing on crime. If you hear of an important or merely interesting case in your jurisdiction, let other members know about it through these pages.

- Members engaged in new teaching or research projects will often benefit from the knowledge and experiences of other members. THE CRIMINOLOGIST can help if you send in specific questions arising from your teaching or research.

- Student members and others contemplating a career outside academe will be interested in the experiences of M.A. and Ph.D. criminologists who are not in teaching environments. If you are among the latter, send THE CRIMINOLOGIST a brief description of what you do, how you got there, and what the prospects are for newcomers.

- THE CRIMINOLOGIST is for and about members of the Society. Let your colleagues know what you are doing and what is happening to you as a criminologist. Are you writing a new book, beginning or concluding a study, taking over the chair of a program, going on leave, or changing jobs? Have you had a memorable experience that you would like to share with your colleagues? Let the editor know. Also let the editor know if you have complaints about THE CRIMINOLOGIST.

Berkeley’s Jurisprudence and Social Policy Program

The University of California, Berkeley offers an unusual opportunity for students interested in graduate study of criminal justice. The ‘Jurisprudence and Social Policy’ program, leading to the Ph.D., is offered by the School of Law under the auspices of the Graduate Division. Since 1977, the School of Law has added nine full-time faculty, including economists, historians, political scientists and sociologists, with a special responsibility for JSP. Many have a particular interest in criminal justice. Among the law faculty with this special interest are Malcolm Feeley (plea bargaining, courts and reform, Caleb Foote (trial, discretion), Phillip Johnson (criminal procedure, sentencing), Sanford Kadish (jurisprudence of criminal law), Sheldon Messinger (prisons, sentencing), Jerome Skolnick (police), and Franklin Zimring (deterrence, juveniles). JSP students also have the opportunity to work with other Berkeley faculty whose work in criminal justice is well-known, including Troy Duster and David Matza (sociology) and William Muir (political science).

There are presently some 35 doctoral students in the JSP program. About half are simultaneously pursuing a professional law degree (the J.D.), although this is not required. Their JSP courses of study aim at familiarizing them with jurisprudential analyses of legal doctrine; at deepening their grasp of social science theory as it bears on legal institutions and processes; and acquainting them with empirical research methods. Finally, students are expected to bring this knowledge to bear on the analysis of law-related problems of social policy.

Students are required to take an intensive, year-long introductory seminar; several basic law courses (if they have not already had them); and such methods courses as needed. As in all Ph.D. programs at Berkeley, students must pass a language examination and a Qualifying Examination before being permitted to prepare a dissertation.

Experience to date suggests that the program is well-suited to prepare students for teaching law-related subjects in a variety of humanities and social science programs, including criminal justice programs, and for applied research positions. Students who have or also get a professional law degree may be particularly well-prepared to teach in law schools.

Examples of criminal justice related dissertations underway include a study of the implementation of California’s massive reform of criminal law and procedure (‘Proposition 8’); a comparison of police practices in the U.S. and Japan; and a study of the role of law in transforming Australia from a penal colony into a democratic republic.

The deadline for 1987-1988 applications is February 1, 1987. For further information write to The Graduate Secretary-JSP Program, School of Law, University of California, Berkeley, CA 94720. The phone number is 415/642-4038. The current chair of the program is Sheldon Messinger.

Organized Crime Conference

The International Association for the Study of Organized Crime (IASOC) and the University of Illinois at Chicago (UIC) are sponsoring a conference on organized crime, August 27-29. The conference will take place at UIC and focus on the final report of the President’s Commission on Organized Crime; that report will be made public on April 1st. The conference will be divided into topical areas including traditional organized crime, outlaw motorcycle gangs, Colombian, black, and oriental criminal organizations and the Sicilian Mafia.

There will be international authorities on organized crime presenting papers, and respondents from the President’s Commission. The conference will include plenary sessions and roundtables organized around topical areas.

Earlier in the week, August 25-27, the University of Illinois at Chicago will present an international conference on terrorism. Special rates will be available to those attending both conferences. Further details may be obtained from: Secretariat, St. Xavier College, Chicago, IL 60655, (312) 779-3300.

Correction to January article on “Reflections and Comments on the 1984 and 1985 Annual Meetings”

Marc Riedel, chairman of the 1984 and 1985 ASC Annual Meetings asked that a correction be made to his article with regard to the task of the Program Committee in assembling panels for the 1985 meeting. Riedel was aware of the mistake he had made and wanted the correction to show that the Program Committee had the task of assembling twelve to sixteen panels per Committee member, not assembling twelve to sixteen panels of the meeting.

New Officers Elected Division on International Criminology

Results of the recent election for the ASC Division on International Criminology were announced at ASC’s annual meeting in San Diego. Clayton Hartgen, Rutgers University, was elected Chairman; Wesley Skogan, Northwestern University was elected Secretary, and Gary LaFrenie, University of New Mexico; Maria Los, University of Ottawa, and Harold E. Pepinsky of Indiana University, were elected as Counselors to the Executive Board.

CALL FOR ENTRIES

1986 ASC Gene Carte Student Paper Competition

Entries are invited for the 1986 Gene Carte Student Paper Competition. The competition is open to any currently enrolled full-time undergraduate or graduate student.

All entries must be empirical and/or theoretical papers related to criminology. Papers must be 6,000 words or less, typewritten, double-spaced on 8½ x 11 white paper following a standard format. Author(s) name(s), affiliation(s), department(s), and advisor(s) must appear only on the title page since entries will be evaluated anonymously.

Judges will rate entries based upon criteria such as significance of the topic, quality of theoretical orientation, methodology, scholarly comprehensiveness and interpretation, quality of writing, and contribution to the field. The judges’ selection of entries for awards will be final.

The 1st, 2nd, and 3rd place papers will be awarded prizes of $300, $150, and $100, respectively. Prize-winning papers will be presented in the general sessions of the Society’s 1986 meeting in Atlanta, Georgia, October 29-November 1. Student authors will be recognized at the Annual Meeting Awards Ceremony.

Deadline: SIX copies of a paper should be submitted on or before April 15 to Joseph E. Scott, Department of Sociology, Ohio State University, 190 N. Oval Mall, Columbus, OH 43210. Authors of winning entries will be notified in writing by September 1, 1986.

A.P.A. DISSERTATION AWARDS

Division 41 of the American Psychological Association has opened its competition for outstanding doctoral dissertations in psychology and law. The competition is open to those who have obtained their degrees between January 1 and December 31, 1985. One copy of the dissertation and five-page abstract should be sent to William C. Thompson, Program in Social Ecology, University of California, Irvine, CA 92717. Inquiries, call 714-856-6156.
CALL FOR PAPERS
2nd Annual National Correctional Trainers Conference
October 1-3, 1986
Lexington, Kentucky

Papers and other presentations are invited for the 2nd Annual National Conference for Correctional Trainers. The conference will address innovations in correctional training, model curriculum, training standards, vicarious liability, and other topics relating to the inservice training needs of correctional personnel.

Abstracts should be submitted by June 1, 1986, and presenters should indicate length of presentation and whether they need audio/visual equipment. Include a brief biographical sketch. Send materials to Training Resource Center, Eastern Kentucky University, 105 Stratton Building, Richmond, KY 40475. Inquiries, call 606-622-1155.

World Congress of Victimology
July 9-13, 1986
Lake Buena Vista, Florida

The World Congress of Victimology invites the submission of papers or other presentations relating to victims of crime, terrorism, accidents, and disasters. All professions and perspectives are welcome, and providers of services to victims are particularly invited to participate in the Congress.

Send abstracts and/or papers to Sherry L. Icenhour, World Congress, 2333 North Vernon Street, Arlington, VA 22207. Inquiries, call 703-528-8872.

Midwestern Criminal Justice Association

The 1986 Annual Meeting of the Midwestern Criminal Justice Association will be held October 1-3 at the American Congress Hotel in Chicago. This year's theme is "Challenges to Crime: The Contributions of Theory, Research, Policy, and Practice." Papers are invited in the areas of policing, corrections, courts, sentencing, juvenile justice, delinquency, criminal law, criminology, crime policy, victimization, and criminal justice education.

Persons interested in participating in the program should send abstracts to: Patricia Van Voorhis, Criminal Justice Department, M.L. #108, University of Cincinnati, Cincinnati, OH 45221. Inquiries, call 513-475-5827. The deadline for the submission of abstracts is June 1, 1986.

IN MEMORIAM:
Frank E. Hartung
Author, Criminologist, Colleague

The profession of Criminology lost a brilliant and productive contributor late last year with the death of Frank E. Hartung. Professor Hartung passed away on December 6, 1985. Born March 2, 1908, in Detroit, Michigan, Professor Hartung devoted his professional career to the sociological analysis of crime and deviance.

Frank earned his B.A. in 1933 from what was then the City Colleges of Detroit. He went on to earn an M.A. and a Ph.D. in Sociology from the University of Michigan. In 1942 Frank began teaching at the City Colleges of Detroit, the institution which was later to become Wayne State University. Although Frank spent most of his professional career there, he had also taught at the University of Wisconsin, Washington University, the University of Rhode Island, the University of California at San Jose, and the Center for the Study of Crime, Delinquency and Corrections at Southern Illinois University at Carbondale.

Frank's knowledge of crime and corrections also crossed international boundaries. He was much in demand as a lecturer in Canada, having taught at the University of Alberta, the University of Manitoba, the University of Calgary, and Acadia University.

Frank's seminal work, Crime, Law and Society, published in 1965, was the best selling publication of the Wayne State University Press for many years. In this book, as well as in numerous journal articles, book chapters, and conference papers, Frank presented a well reasoned, thoroughly documented series of arguments for the sociological approach to crime. Through its contention that criminals act out of free will and with a clear recognition of the nature of their acts, this approach stands in diametrical opposition to biological and psychiatric views.

Frank was passionate in his opposition to the psychiatric view of deviance. He was firm in his convictions that criminal offenders are not mentally ill; that they accept a different set of norms and values; that they act with a full awareness of their behavior and its consequences; and that they should be held responsible for their actions.

In addition to being scholarly explicators, Frank's writings were delivered with an acerbic wit and incisive style. As Donal E. J. MacNamara commented in a review of Frank's book: "Washington Irving tells us that 'a woman's tongue is the only sharp-edged tool which grows keener with constant use,' but the squire of the Hudson Valley never heard of Frank Hartung, whose acrimonious, biting, iconoclastic, incisive, stimulating, sometimes waspish prose has been entertaining, infuriating, and educating students of criminology for fifteen years.'"

Frank had a "test" he applied to each new criminology text: with characteristic wit, he would check to see if it cited Crime, Law, and Society. Most criminology texts meet Frank's criterion of excellence; all cite his work, because it is impossible to have a thorough consideration of the sociological view of crime without considering the views of Frank Hartung. MacNamara predicted that Crime, Law, and Society would "... entertain sociologists, infuriate psychiatrists, and educate both." Time has proven him correct, as Frank's book remained a standard for the sociological approach to crime for two decades.

Frank was well recognized not only in academic circles, but also among practitioners in the field of crime and corrections. He had served as a consultant to corrections officials in the United States, Canada, Venezuela, England, Italy, Japan, Hong Kong, and Formosa. He was also a member of numerous advisory committees for groups such as the Governors Conference on Crime and the U.S. Bureau of Prisons.

CALL FOR ARTICLES

New Journal Announced

Violence and Victims is a new quarterly journal sponsored by The Family Research Laboratory at the University of New Hampshire. The Journal will act as a forum for the latest developments in theory, research, policy, clinical practice, and social services in the area of interpersonal violence and victimization. Special emphasis will be given to original research in the following areas: violence-related victimization within and outside the family; the etiology and perpetration of violence; and the nature and implications of legal and other interventions and responses.

Violence and Victims encourages submission of articles dealing with physical and sexual abuse of children, of spouses and other partners, of the elderly, and in the course of medical or psychological treatment; also rape, assault, and homicide among strangers.

Manuscripts should conform to APA style, and authors should submit four copies to Angela Browne, Editor-in-Chief, Violence and Victims, Family Research Laboratory, Horton Social Science Center, University of New Hampshire, Durham, NH 03824. Inquiries, call 603-862-2991.

Police and Law Enforcement

Police and Law Enforcement, an annual review of critical issues in law enforcement, is currently seeking papers for volume V, to be published by AMS Press in 1986. Literature reviews, think pieces, and research reports will be considered. Special attention will be paid to papers that combine theoretical and practical considerations.

Final drafts of papers will be due May 1, and should run from 20 to 40 pages. Authors should send papers or detailed abstracts to Daniel B. Kennedy, Center for Criminal Justice Studies, University of Detroit, 4001 W. McNichols, Detroit, MI 48221. Inquiries, call 313-927-1077.

NATO

Advanced Study Institute

August 31-Sept. 9

Tuscani, Italy

The North Atlantic Treaty Organization is sponsoring a NATO Advanced Study Institute on the "Biological Bases of Antisocial Behavior." This Institute will consider the application of psychophysiological, neuropathological, neuropsychological, and biochemical research findings and methods toward a better understanding of the etiology, treatment and prevention of antisocial behavior.

Abstracts of papers are being solicited from persons interested in participating. For meeting details and further information, contact Sanoff A. Mednick, Social Science Research Institute, University of Southern California, University Park, Los Angeles, California 90089-1111, (213) 743-5699.

Editor Sought

The International Association for the Study of Organized Crime (IASOC) is seeking an editor for a 2-year term for Criminal Organizations: An International Journal. The biannual journal will publish research on organized crime and criminal activities - the myth and the realities - the actors involved, the law enforcement response, and social reactions. The editor will be expected to encourage the submission of manuscripts, to manage a blind review process with a Board of Editors, to work with authors (both academics and practitioners) who need to revise their manuscripts, and to work with the publications committee of IASOC. Additionally, the editor will need the support of her or his institution in preparing a 'camera-ready' copy of the journal, and will be responsible for arranging printing schedules and handling correspondence.

Individuals interested in being considered for the editor's position should send a vitae and should provide information on prior experience relevant to the publication of a journal and on institutional support. Information should be mailed to Merry Morash, School of Criminal Justice, Michigan State University, East Lansing, MI 48824-1118. For further information call 517-353-4088 or 517-355-2197. Application Deadline: April 15.

CALL FOR PAPERS

1986 Annual Meeting - Atlanta, Georgia

The 1986 Annual Meeting of The American Society of Criminology will be held at the Atlanta Marriott Downtown Hotel from Wednesday, October 29 through Saturday, November 1. For the 1986 meetings the theme is, "INTEGRATING THEORY, RESEARCH AND PRACTICE." For each of the areas listed, the Program Committee is especially interested in papers and sessions on the interrelations of theory, research and practice. Where there are enough papers, separate sessions will be created.

If you would like to organize a panel and/or present a paper in any one or more of the areas, send your proposal, abstract, or completed paper to the member of the Program Committee whose name is listed with the area. Please note that the areas listed are meant to be suggestive rather exhaustive.

Abstracts of papers and/or panel suggestions should be sent directly to the appropriate organizer before April 1, 1986. The chances that the paper or a proposed panel will find a place on the program will be increased if it is submitted early. Use the attached forms to share with us your suggestions, panel and/or paper abstract.

If you are unsure of the topical area into which your panel or paper falls, send it to the 1986 ASC Program Chair:

Barbara Raffel Price
Dean of Graduate Studies
John Jay College of Criminal Justice
444 West 56th Street
New York, NY 10019
212/489-3958

As usual, each participant is limited to a maximum of two program appearances (chair or organizer, presenter, discussant). Because of past experience, we suggest that your panel include not more than four presentations and a discussant. This framework will enable discussants to do their assigned task and will allow members of the audience to interact and exchange ideas.

In order for the Program Committee member or Panel Chair to make an informed decision, it is required that an abstract of the paper be submitted to the appropriate Committee member. Abstracts of the paper are bound and made available to all program registrants.

Also, we wish to remind you that program participants are expected to preregister for the meeting. Preregistration materials will be sent to you in due time. Failure to preregister for the 1986 meeting may result in the removal of a paper from the program.

Finally, please remember that papers should be original works and should not have been previously published and/or presented elsewhere.

Thank you for your cooperation.

ABSTRACT:
CORRECTIONS IN AMERICA
An Introduction, Fourth Edition
HARRY E. ALLEN and CLIFFORD E. SIMONSEN
This new edition of one of the leading texts in its field has been updated to reflect the latest trends in corrections. CORRECTIONS IN AMERICA comprehensively covers the history and processes of corrections, the correctional client, and the correctional system.

CRIMINOLOGY
Second Edition
JOHN E. CONKLIN
570 pp. HB WITH: Instructor's Manual
The second edition of this highly popular text provides theoretical explanations of crime and efforts to solve the crime problem. Justifications for punishment are included with relevant sociological research for each. Current examples and statistics from FBI reports and national surveys are included.

THE POLICE AND THE COMMUNITY
Fourth Edition
LOUIS A. RADELET
Written for upper-level courses in police-community relations, this revised edition of THE POLICE AND THE COMMUNITY discusses the community role in and responsibility for crime and criminal justice. Seventeen new inserts, written exclusively for this text by leading scholars in the criminal justice field, have been added to the text.

Federal Judicial Center Releases Data

The Research Division of the Federal Judicial Center has prepared a data set that may be of great interest to those doing research on socio-legal questions. The Center has made available a data tape that presents data from the U.S. Census Bureau's 1983 County and City Data Book broken down by federal judicial districts (91 units), administrative divisions (204 units), and jury divisions (317 units); the data set may be sorted by state, U.S. Circuit number, U.S. District number, District Prefix, and Division or Jury Number. Data for each of these judicial units contain information on area and population, households, vital statistics, health, income, crimes, housing, education, labor force, government finances, manufacturers, wholesale and retail trade, service industries, and agriculture. In preparing the tape the Census Bureau gathers data from the 1980 Census of Population and Housing, the 1977 Economic Censuses, the 1978 Census of Agriculture and other data from a number of Federal government and private agencies; in total, there are approximately 500 variables by judicial unit. The data set, technical information, and codebook are available through the Interuniversity Consortium for Political and Social Research [ICPSR, P.O. Box 1248, Ann Arbor, Michigan 48106]; if there are additional questions, please contact Carroll Seron at the Research Division, Federal Judicial Center, 1520 H Street NW, Washington, D.C. 20005 or at [202] 786-6123.

Journals and Books Needed

The newly established Department of Sociology and Social Administration at the University of Ilorin, Nigeria, is seeking journal/book gifts/donations, from scholars, publishers, authors, libraries, foundations and research institutions in Sociology, Social Administration, Criminology, Criminal Justice, Deviance, Juvenile Delinquency, and related areas in the Social Sciences. There is a genuine need for these materials/resources in Nigeria where libraries have been unable to increase their collections or replace old books for several years. Please send materials to: The Dean, Faculty of Business and Social Sciences, University of Ilorin, c/o The Education Attaché, Nigerian Universities Office, 2010 Massachusetts Avenue, Washington, D.C. 20036.

Submitted on behalf of the University of Ilorin by: Patrick Edobor Iginiova, Ph.D., Department of Criminal Justice, Alabama State University, Montgomery, Alabama 36115.

All inquiries and correspondence on the subject should be directed to the latter address.

SSSP CALL FOR NOMINATIONS

The Crime and Delinquency Division of the Society for the Study of Social Problems is inviting nominations for the Division’s 1986 Award for Outstanding Scholarship. The award is given to a work that makes a significant contribution to the sociological understanding of crime and delinquency. Works published in 1985 are eligible for the 1986 award. The deadline for nominations is April 15, 1986. Assuming that the quality for the nominated work merits it, the Division will announce the winner of the 1986 award at the Division Business Meeting in New York. Please send your nomination and a copy of the nominated work to Awards Committee Chairperson, Patrick Donnelly, Department of Sociology and Anthropology, University of Dayton, Dayton, Ohio 45469-0001.

ANNOUNCEMENT

The National Institute of Corrections has awarded a grant to the Pretrial Services Resource Center — an independent, nonprofit, Washington-based organization, established in 1976 as a national clearinghouse on pretrial alternatives — to provide technical assistance to pretrial programs and local and state officials in exploring effective pretrial responses to jail crowding. Assistance will be offered through phone consultation, written information and materials, systematic follow-up and on-site assessments. Specific areas in which the assistance will focus include: evaluating system-wide or agency-specific pretrial practices; designing and implementing improved pretrial screening and supervision procedures; developing pretrial services programs including screening instruments, classification and recommendation procedures, case-tracking procedures and follow-up; and information on such topics as citation release, pretrial release risk criteria, bail guidelines and other legal, research and program issues.

For more information on the type of assistance available, contact the Resource Center, 918 F Street, N.W., Suite 500, Washington, DC 20004-1482, (202) 638-3080.

The view that criminals can be held responsible for their actions often goes hand in hand with a brutal approach to corrections. A recognition that the offender has freely chosen the life of crime can easily lead to a belief in capital punishment and austere prison conditions. Frank Hartung would have no part of these views. He was passionate in opposing capital punishment, inhumane methods of punishment, or the extension of police powers.

At an appearance before the House Special Subcommittee on Education in 1965, Frank argued for more highly qualified personnel to staff our prisons: for more medical personnel and teachers to work toward more effective rehabilitation programs; and for better training for the "sincere but untrained line officer," who, he believed, was in a position of exerting "the greatest influence on the inmate" by demonstrating "a sincere concern for the inmate and his problems." Frank commented: We shall never be able to translate successfully our research findings in crime, delinquency, and corrections into effective programs of action until there is sufficient, qualified personnel to implement them" (Hartung, 1965:80).

Sadly, his words ring as true twenty years later as they did in 1965.

The same scholarly documentation, acumen, and iconoclastic wit that dominated Frank Hartung's writings also characterized his classes. To be taught by someone who is an internationally recognized authority in the field is a real privilege and a special catalyst for stimulation. Frank was the epitome of the scholar/teacher. He never saw a conflict between these two roles. He always believed that his teaching made him a better scholar, and his scholarship made him a better teacher. Frank was a stimulating, even an exasperating teacher. With Frank, there were no positions mildly held, to say the least! Every issue constituted a passionate commitment. He often made outrageous statements, well calculated to good students into responding. Consequently, students either passionately agreed with Frank, or passionately disagreed with him. In Frank's classes, it was difficult to be indifferent.

Following his retirement in 1978, Professor Hartung remained professionally active. He continued to participate in meetings of the American Society of Criminology. He was also a familiar figure in the Wayne State University Department of Sociology, where he held the rank of Professor Emeritus, maintained an office, and met with colleagues and students despite continually failing health. Professor Hartung is survived by his wife, Rosemary, a daughter, Louise, a son, Peter, and four grandchildren.

Frank Hartung stands — and will always stand — as one of the major exponents of the sociological view of crime. Criminology has lost a major figure in his death. A scholarship fund in his memory has been established by the Wayne State University Department of Sociology.

Michael Maltz Receives Leslie T. Wilkins Award
Nominations for 1985
Award Requested

The Hindelang Criminal Justice Research Center at SUNY-Albany has announced the presentation of the fourth annual Leslie T. Wilkins Award for the best book-length work in criminology and criminal justice. The work selected for this honor is Recidivism by Michael D. Maltz, published by Academic Press. The citation accompanying the award describes Recidivism as "a major methodological step in the increasingly sophisticated attempt to understand the impact of society's crime control efforts."

Michael Maltz is currently Director of the Center for Research in Law and Justice at the University of Illinois, Chicago Circle, where he also holds joint appointments as Professor of Criminal Justice and Professor of Information and Decision Sciences.

The Wilkins Award Committee is now accepting nominations of books published in 1985 for the fifth annual award. Nominations can be made by publishers, authors, and others in criminology and criminal justice. Nominations should be submitted to James Garofalo, Wilkins Award Committee, Hindelang Criminal Justice Research Center, SUNY-Albany, 135 Western Ave., Draper Hall, Albany, N.Y., 12222. Inquiries, call 518-442-5600.
