Change in Editorship of Criminology

Beginning with volume 26 the editorship of Criminology will transfer to the Institute of Criminal Justice and Criminology at the University of Maryland. Persons with papers they wish to submit to Criminology should continue to send their manuscripts to the current Editor, Joe Weis. As Editor-Elect I would like to acknowledge the significant strides made by Joe Weis and his editorial staff. Despite major obstacles related to the transcription to publishing Criminology in house, Joe and his staff have produced a journal of uniformly high quality. It is easy to say that Joe has firmly established Criminology as the premier publication in our discipline and I will extend every effort to maintain the high standing of the journal.

My editorial philosophy is simple: to publish the best work which criminologists are doing independent of the problems they address, the theories they examine, or the methods they employ. It is my firm belief that to advance the field of criminology scholars must communicate across areas of specialization and the journal Criminology is an important forum for such exchange. It is my hope that the pages of Criminology will reflect the intellectual diversity of our discipline and at the same time contribute to a synthesis of ideas which defines our common core identity as criminologists.

To accomplish these goals requires only two things. First, the pages of Criminology must be open to the many types of scholarship which criminologists produce. Second, we must receive your work for editorial review. What is published in Criminology is a function of what is submitted, and it is only with your input that the journal can continue to advance our field. I look forward to working with each of you to make this a reality.

Sincerely,

Douglas Smith

Recidivism and Prior Criminal History: New Findings From Illinois

The Illinois Criminal Justice Information Authority has released the latest findings from its Repeat Offender Project (ROP). The ROP study is tracking the criminal activity of 760 inmates released from Illinois prisons between April 1 and June 30 of 1983. A 27 to 29-month follow-up period has so far been evaluated. To date the analysis has been confined to 539 of the releases since the other 230 were released (though not officially discharged) before April 1 and could therefore have been at risk of offending prior to the drawing of the sample. This group will be analyzed in a subsequent report.

In the ROP study, official state police Computerized Criminal History (CCH) "rap sheets" provided the data on criminal activity, and general demographic data on the inmates were obtained from self-reported in-

Carolyne Rebecca Bloch, Senior Analyst at the Illinois Criminal Justice Information Authority’s Statistical Analysis Center, has received an award for excellence in analysis from the Criminal Justice Statistics Association. Bloch received the award for her study “Specification of Patterns Over Time in Chicago Homicide: Increases and Decreases, 1965-1981.”

Elmer H. Johnson, Distinguished Professor in the Center for the Study of Crime, Delinquency, and Corrections at Southern Illinois University at Carbondale, has been accepted as a member of the Academy of Independent Scholars. The Academy, based in Boulder, Colorado, is an association of people from academics, government, business, labor and the arts “who have demonstrated originality and creativity in any branch of learning.”

Edward J. Latessa writes that he is seeking any information on the impact of technology in prisons. Latessa is directing a research project funded by the National Institute of Corrections. The project will examine all aspects of technological change in correctional settings, including their effects on inmates and staff. Members with information should write or call Latessa at the Department of Criminal Justice, M.L. 108, University of Cincinnati, Cincinnati, OH 45221 (513) 475-5827.

Maynard L. Erickson

Maynard L. Erickson, Professor of Sociology at the University of Arizona, died May 8, 1986, after a brief illness. A native of Utah, Erickson earned bachelor’s and master’s degrees from Brigham Young University and a doctorate from Washington State University before coming to the University of Arizona in 1968.

Criminologists will remember him for the Provo Experiment with LaMar Empey and for the Community Tolerance Survey with Jack Gibbs and Gary Jensen. From these research projects, Erickson fashioned a remarkable record of publication focused mainly on delinquency measurement and program evaluation.

In conjunction with his research projects, Erickson directed a large NIMH sponsored training program through much of the 1970s, and thus contributed directly and significantly to the education of an impressive number of currently active criminologists. His students will remember him for his role in creating one of those “moments” in graduate education where ideas, effort, enthusiasm, and fellowship come together in such a way that the participants feel they have glimpsed the essence of the enterprise.

His friends will remember him for his honesty and selflessness, his extraordinary capacity to organize people, and perhaps, most of all, for the joy he took in living.

New Directory of Criminal Justice Issues
Now Available

A comprehensive state-by-state directory of criminal justice policy research is now available. The Directory of Criminal Justice Issues in the States, Vol. III summarizes the criminal justice programs and policy research conducted by 43 state Statistical Analysis Centers (SACs) in 1985, and indexes them by issue areas. Criminal justice researchers, planners, legislative analysts, and policymakers will find the Directory invaluable.

There are 365 different SAC projects listed in the Director on such issues as domestic violence, jails, juvenile justice, overcrowding, sentencing reform, victims, etc. In all, 33 subject areas are listed in the index.

Statistical Analysis Centers (SACs) are state agencies which analyze policy-relevant statistics on crime and criminal justice from a systemwide perspective. They provide policy relevant information that spans the criminal justice system—from law enforcement to courts to corrections to legislation. The SACs were established in 1972 under federal funding. Most are now state funded.

Published by the Criminal Justice Statistics Association (CJSA). The Association is a national organization which promotes the development, reporting, analysis, and use of crime and justice statistics. Association members include the directors of the SACs and other criminal justice analysts.

The Directory can be purchased for $20.00. To order, or make inquiries contact: CJSA, Suite 606, 444 N. Capitol St., NW, Washington, DC 20001 or call (202) 347-4608.

CALL FOR NOMINATIONS

The Crime and Delinquency Division of the Society for the Study of Social Problems is inviting nominations for the Division's 1987 Award for Outstanding Scholarship. The award is given to work that makes a significant contribution to the sociological understanding of crime and delinquency. Works published in 1986 are eligible for the 1987 award. The deadline for nominations is April 15, 1987. Assuming that the quality of nominated work merits it, the Division will announce the winner of the 1987 award at the Division Business Meeting in Chicago.

Send nominations to Marvin Krohn, Awards Committee Chairperson, Department of Sociology, State University of New York at Albany, Albany, NY 12222.
International Course in to be Held in Montreal

The International Society of Criminology is sponsoring the 38th International Course in Criminology, to be held at the International Centre for Comparative Criminology, University of Montreal, August 17-21, 1987. Course directors will be Alfred Blumstein and Marc LeBlanc. The title of the course is “New Technologies in Criminal Justice: Overview, Evaluation, and Controversy.” Three technologies will be evaluated: identification technologies, developed to identify suspects and detect crimes; control technologies, especially electronic surveillance devices; and support technologies, particularly, the use of computers and video systems in law enforcement and corrections.

For further information, contact Marc LeBlanc or Pierre Tremblay, International Centre for Comparative Criminology, Lionel-Groulx Building, University of Montreal, P.O. Box 6128, Station A, Montreal, Quebec H3C 3J7; or phone (514) 343-7075/6619.

NIJ/BJS Research Solicitation: Supplementing the National Crime Survey

The National Institute of Justice has announced a research program to enhance the value of the National Crime Survey (NCS). Applications are invited from the criminal justice community. Suggested themes for applications to explore are:
- whether self protection affects crime rates or victimization risk
- how respondents feel about the treatment they received as victims, how satisfied they were with police follow-up, and what factors affected their decisions to report crimes
- the dynamics of victimization, particularly, why certain forms of crime victimization occur, why they result in greater or lesser injury, and why they often go unreported
- the follow-up studies which extend the current NCS design in order to trace victimization experiences beyond the initial interview.

Proposals will be evaluated by a panel staffed by NIJ, BJS and Census Bureau personnel, as well as outside experts. For further information, ASC members should contact Ms. Lauresa Stillwell of the National Institute of Justice at (202) 724-2962. The deadline for submission of proposals is March 27, 1987.

Conference on Crime Victims to be Held in San Jose

California’s Fourth Annual Governor’s Training Conference on Crime Victims will be held April 6-8 at the LeBaron Hotel, San Jose, California. The conference is designed to allow professionals from all disciplines and backgrounds to share their work in a concerted effort to improve services to crime victims, to deliver services to runaway and homeless youth, to develop innovative crime prevention programs, and to improve law enforcement investigation and prosecution techniques for the benefit of crime victims.

The conference will be attended by approximately 500 persons representing all disciplines. Attendees will have the opportunity to hear the latest research findings, examine viable community action plans, attend skill-building workshops, exchange ideas, and renew their dedication to their work. For more information, call Michele Snyder at the Office of Criminal Justice Planning (916) 324-9206.

International Directory of Victim-Offender Reconciliation Programs Now Available

The National Victim-Offender Reconciliation Resource Center, a project of the PACT Institute of Justice, has published a second directory of victim-offender reconciliation and mediation programs in the United States, Canada, and England. The directory has been selected by the National Criminal Justice Reference Service for inclusion in its database.

The directory includes only those programs which specifically involve face-to-face meetings, in the presence of trained mediators, of crime victims and perpetrators; (2) operate within the context of the criminal justice system, rather than in civil courts, and (3) focus on increasing participants’ understanding of the event and of each other. The directory is available through PACT at $4.60 post-paid. For further information contact PACT, 901 Washington Street, P.O. Box 177, Michigan City, IN 46360; (219) 872-3911.

CALL FOR PAPERS

The Justice Professional, a recently established refereed journal in the justice field, is seeking high quality papers on criminal justice education, training, professionalism, and ethics. Studies, opinion pieces, and essays will all be considered. Three copies of each manuscript, along with a $100 fee, should be sent to Dr. Frank Schmalberger, Editor, The Justice Professional, Department of Sociology and Social Work, Pembroke State University, Pembroke, NC 28372. Unsolicited book reviews may be sent to Dr. Richard Kania, Book Review Editor, The Justice Professional, Criminal Justice Department, Guilford College, Greensboro, NC 27410. For further information, call (919) 521-4214 ext. 380.

Conference on Juvenile Justice to be Held in San Francisco

The Fourteenth National Conference on Juvenile Justice will be held March 15-18, 1987 in San Francisco. The conference will commemorate the bicentennial of the U.S. Constitution, and its topics will include the death penalty, the child as victim/witness, sexual harassment, drug-free schools, child problem drinking, intensive probation, the termination of parental rights, and more.

The conference will be held at the San Francisco Hilton and Tower hotel. Early registration (by February 13, 1987) will be $230 for NDAA and NCJFCJ members, and $260 for nonmembers. Other registration will be $30 more. The fee includes 4 audio tape cassettes, notebook, two lunches, and all coffee breaks. The conference is open to all professionals involved with juvenile justice and to any other interested groups or persons.

For further information, contact the National Council of Juvenile and Family Court Judges, University of Nevada, Reno, P.O. Box 8970, Reno, Nevada 89507; phone (702) 784-6012.
CALL FOR ENTRIES

1987 ASC GENE CARTE STUDENT PAPER COMPETITION

We solicit your interest in The American Society of Criminology Gene Carte Student Paper Competition. Following are the procedures and specifications that will be adhered to for the 1987 competition.

Those Eligible to Enter Papers

Any student currently enrolled on a full-time basis in an academic program at either the undergraduate or graduate level.

Specifications for Papers

All entries must be empirical and/or theoretical papers related to criminology. Papers must be 6,000 words or less, typewritten, double-spaced on 8½ x 11 white paper using standard format for the organization of papers and citations. Author(s) name(s), affiliation(s), department(s), and advisor(s) MUST appear only on the title page, inasmuch as papers will be evaluated anonymously.

Deadline for Entries

Entries should be submitted on or before April 15, 1987 to:

Jonathan Casper
Department of Political Science
Northwestern University
Scott Hall
1890 Sheridan Road
Evanston, Illinois 60201

Entries will be judged by a panel of scholars in the field and, therefore, it will be necessary that EIGHT copies of papers be provided.

Procedures for Judging Entries

Judges will rate entries based upon criteria such as significance of the topic, quality of theoretical orientation, methodology, scholarly comprehensiveness and interpretation, quality of writing, and contribution to the field. The judges' selection of entries for awards will be final.

Awards

The 1st, 2nd, and 3rd place papers will be awarded monetary prizes of $300, $150, and $100, respectively, and will be eligible for presentation at the 1987 meeting of The American Society of Criminology in Montreal, Quebec, November 11-14. Prize-winning student papers will be presented in the general sessions of the Society's meeting. Students will be acknowledged at the Annual Meeting Awards Ceremony.

Notification of Awards

The author of entries selected by the judges for awards will be notified in writing by September 1, 1987.
1987 ANNUAL MEETING — MONTREAL, QUEBEC

THE 1987 Annual Meeting of The American Society of Criminology will be held at the Le Grand Hotel from Wednesday, November 11 through Saturday, November 14. For the 1987 meetings the theme is, “CRIMINOLOGY TODAY: COMPARATIVE AND INTERDISCIPLINARY RESEARCH AND PRACTICE.” For each of the areas listed, the Program Committee is especially interested in papers and sessions on comparative and interdisciplinary research and practice. Where there are enough papers, separate sessions will be created.

If you would like to organize a panel and/or present a paper in any one or more of the areas, send your proposal, abstract, or completed paper to the member of the Program Committee whose name is listed with the area. Please note that the areas listed are meant to be suggestive rather than exhaustive.

Abstracts of papers and/or panel suggestions should be sent directly to the appropriate organizer before March 15, 1987. The chances that the paper or a proposed panel will find a place on the program will be increased if it is submitted early. Use the attached forms to share with us your suggestions, panel and/or paper abstract.

If you are unsure of the topical area into which your panel or paper falls, send it to the 1987 ASC Program Chair:

JOHN S. GOLDKAMP
Criminal Justice Department
Gladfelter Hall – Fifth Floor
Temple University
Philadelphia, Pennsylvania 19122
215/787-8081

As usual, each participant is limited to a maximum of two program appearances (chair or organizer, presenter, discussant). Because of past experience, we suggest that your panel include not more than four presentations and a discussant. This framework will enable discussants to do their assigned task and will allow members of the audience to interact and exchange ideas.

In order for the Program Committee member or Panel Chair to make an informed decision, it is required that an abstract of the paper be submitted to the appropriate Committee member. Abstracts of the paper are bound and made available to all program registrants.

Also, we wish to remind you that program participants are expected to preregister for the meeting. Preregistration materials will be sent to you in due time. Failure to preregister for the 1987 meeting may result in the removal of a paper from the program.

Finally, please remember that papers should be original works and should not have been previously published and/or presented elsewhere.

Thank you for your cooperation.

Highlighting Criminological Research: The Hindelang Center

The Hindelang Criminal Justice Research Center became a unit in the State University of New York at Albany (SUNYA) in 1983. During the 11 years before that, it was a private, non-profit corporation. The Center is named in honor of the late Professor Michael J. Hindelang, the major architect of the Center's operations from 1972 to 1982.

Although the Center is a university-wide research unit, it is formally associated with SUNYA's School of Criminal Justice. The School's Dean, Terence Thornberry, and the Center's Director, James Garofalo, work together to enhance the research opportunities for faculty members and the learning opportunities for graduate students.

The wide range of interests among the Center's staff and the School's faculty is reflected in the diversity of research projects undertaken at the Center. The projects described below were active during all or some of the last half of 1986.

Utilization of Criminal Justice Statistics ([Director: Prof. Timothy Flanagan. Funding: Bureau of Justice Statistics]. Since 1972, the Utilization project staff have engaged in continuous monitoring of national criminal justice data sets and have compiled the well-known Sourcebook of Criminal Justice Statistics, a compendium of national data published annually by the U.S. Government Printing Office.

Improving the Effectiveness and Utilization of Neighborhood Watch Programs ([Directors: Drs. James Garofalo and Maureen McLeod. Funding: National Institute of Justice]. This was a national assessment of the implementation, structure, operations, and impacts of community crime prevention programs that encourage citizens to exercise increased surveillance of their own neighborhoods. A final report was completed in the Fall of 1986, and publication is expected in the near future.

The Disturbed and Disruptive Inmate ([Directors: Prof. Hans Toch and Dr. Kenneth Adams. Funding: National Institute of Mental Health]. The relationship between mental health problems and disruptiveness among prison inmates is the topic of this study. It focuses on inmates who are both chronic violators of prison rules and mental health patients. The "careers" of these inmates are examined in conjunction with the responses of the mental health and prison systems to their problems.

The Authorization and Implementation of Victim Impact Statements ([Director: Dr. Maureen McLeod. Funding: National Institute of Justice]. Victim impact statements are relatively new phenomena in the criminal justice process. They are meant to provide objective assessments of crime's effects on victims and/or subjective expressions of victims' feelings about their victimizations and the responses of the system. This research examines the rationales for victim impact statements, their legal grounding, and how they are implemented and used in the criminal justice process.

The Careers of Mentally Disordered Violent Offenders ([Directors: Prof. Hans Toch and Dr. Kenneth Adams. Funding: National Institute of Justice]. This project compares violent offenders who have experienced emotional problems with other violent offenders, but its emphasis is on detailed studies of personal "careers" that involve sequences of offense behavior and contacts with the mental health system.

Reducing Avoidable Felony Case Attrition ([Director: Dr. James Garofalo. Funding: National Institute of Justice]. A quasi-experimental design is being used to evaluate a New York State Police program that is meant to improve the investigation and preparation of felony cases through increased police-prosecutor coordination and cooperation.

Patrol Officer Effectiveness in Managing Police-Citizen Conflicts ([Directors: Prof. David Bayley and Dr. James Garofalo. Funding: New York State Commission on Criminal Justice and the Use of Force]. By observing and analyzing the patrol behavior of a group of officers identified by their peers as particularly skilled in handling conflict situations and a randomly selected comparison group of officers, this study seeks to identify patrol officer tactics that are effective in defusing conflict.

A Panel Study of a Reciprocal Causal Model of Delinquency ([Directors: Profs. Terence Thornberry, Margaret Farnworth, and Alan Lizotte. Funding: National Institute of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention]. This major, 4-year panel study has just been initiated. It is guided by a model that incorporates delinquency, individual differences, family variables, and social factors into a framework of reciprocal causality.

In addition to conducting a variety of research projects, the Hindelang Center engages in a range of other activities. The Center encourages the dissemination of research findings by sponsoring symposia, publishing a Working Paper series, and presenting the Leslie T. Wilkins Book Award to the author(s) of a significant book in criminal justice each year. Center staff who are not faculty members contribute to the academic program of the School of Criminal Justice by teaching courses, giving guest lectures, serving on dissertation committees, and providing opportunities for graduate students to participate directly in all phases of the research process. The Center occasionally places graduate students as interns with research-oriented criminal justice agencies in the State.

For further information about the Center, its specific research projects, or its other activities, contact James Garofalo, Director, Hindelang Criminal Justice Research Center, SUNY at Albany, 135 Western Ave., Albany, NY, 12222; (518) 442-5600.

*Editor's Note. This is the first report in a special series devoted to highlighting criminological research centers in this country and abroad. The next three reports will introduce ASC members to the Rand Corporation, to the International Centre for Comparative Criminology at the University of Montreal, and to the Home Office Research Unit in the United Kingdom. Directors of the criminological research centers are invited to report on current research at their centers for future issues of The Criminologist. Submissions should not be more than 1,000 words.*
WORKSHOP ON THE DESIGN AND USE OF THE NATIONAL CRIME SURVEY

To be held July 6-17, 1987, at the University of Maryland in College Park, the workshop will feature:

- Lectures by a distinguished faculty of fourteen statisticians and social scientists;
- The latest technical information on the design, collection, and analysis of the NCS;
- Hands-on instruction in the analysis of NCS data;
- A stipend of $1,000 plus travel and subsistence expenses.

The program for the workshop will introduce participants to both the methodology of the NCS and its substantive use. Topics to be covered include conceptual issues in measuring victimization, the design of the NCS (past, present and future), data collection procedures, file structure and software, estimation procedures, error properties, risk-assessment, longitudinal analysis, multi-level analysis and typology construction.

The workshop is designed to stimulate the use of the NCS by providing the necessary technical information and an opportunity for the exchange of ideas among users of the survey. Computing facilities and instruction will be available so that participants can use the data during the workshop.

Deadline for applications is March 1, 1987.
THE CRIMINOLOGIST will regularly feature in this column position vacancies available in organizations and universities, as well as positions sought by members of the Society.

There will be no charge for placing such announcements. For those agencies or persons not wishing to have their identities known, arrangements can be made for a box number and all appropriate inquiries will be forwarded accordingly.

It is the position of ASC to publish free of charge position vacancy announcements only from those institutions or agencies which subscribe to equal educational and employment opportunities and those which encourage women and minorities to apply. Institutions should indicate the deadline for submission of application materials.

The Professional Employment Exchange will be a regular feature at each Annual Meeting. Prospective employers and employees should register with the Society so later than three weeks prior to the Annual Meeting of the Society. Appropriate forms may be obtained by writing to the ASC offices in Columbus, Ohio.

To place announcements in The CRIMINOLOGIST, send all materials to: Hugh Barlow, Editor, The CRIMINOLOGIST, Dept. of Sociology/Social Work, Southern Illinois University, Edwardsville, IL 62026.
