W.E.B. Du Bois on Crime: Rethinking the Beginnings of American Criminology

Shaun L. Gabbidon
Coppin State College

"And of course the prime victim of [academic] exclusion and prejudice was W.E.B. Du Bois who, as long as he lived, was recognized as a "Negro leader," a "Negro activist," and begrudgingly, as a competent "Negro intellectual." Only twenty years after his death does the academic establishment begin—an I emphasize begin—to recognize his contributions as a leading American intellectual of the twentieth century (Platt, 1990:43)."

Young and Greene (1995), in their recent article, highlight the importance of incorporating African-American perspectives in the criminology and criminal justice (C/CJ) curriculum. Their article not only discusses the importance of the inclusion of African-American perspectives, but provides a review of those African American scholars whose writings should be included in the C/CJ curriculum. In presenting their findings, Young and Greene divide African American writings into three periods: early writings, later writings, and contemporary writings. The first person listed under early writings is scholar and activist W.E.B. Du Bois, who is the focus of this essay.

Since Du Bois’s life has been the focus of many publications (see, for example, Du Bois, 1968; Lewis, 1993; Marble, 1986), only his educational training is mentioned here. Du Bois was born in Great Barrington, Massachusetts on February 23, 1868. He was educated in the public schools of Massachusetts, where he was an outstanding student. Following high school, Du Bois attended Fisk University in Nashville, Tennessee. He graduated cum Laude in 1888, and enrolled at Harvard, where he received another A.B. degree in philosophy (1890), an M.A. in History (1892) and a Ph.D. in History (1895). Du Bois was the first African American to receive a Ph.D. at Harvard. In addition, he spent two years in Germany at the University of Berlin.

The purpose of this discussion is twofold and will be presented as two parts of a series. First, in the series is an argument to expand on Gabbidon’s argument for the inclusion of W.E.B. Du Bois’s writings in the scholarly C/CJ literature by examining closely on of Du Bois’s criminological publications. Second, in the series (January/February 1999) is a comparative analysis of Du Bois’s 1901 publication, “The Spawn of Slavery: The Convict Lease System in the South” with William Chambliss’s 1964 publication, “A Sociological Analysis of the Law of Vagrancy.” Chambliss’s publication was selected because it is widely regarded as a classic example of a conflict/ Marxist analysis. By way of comparative analysis, the author aims to show the theoretical underpinnings of one of Du Bois’s most theoretically oriented crime related publications. Even though Du Bois’s analysis is set both in a different country and era, it represents a remarkably similar analysis to that of Chambliss.

Du Bois on Crime

Recently, the substance of Du Bois’s work has begun to find its way into several conference presentations (see for example, Gabbidon and Thompson, 1994; Gabbidon, 1994; Tatum, 1995) and scholarly publications (see for example,
CONFERENCES AND WORKSHOPS

The British Society of Criminology 1999 British Criminology Conference will be held at the Britannia Adelphi Hotel from July 13-16th. The main theme of the conference will be Criminology: Towards the Millennium. The deadline for paper proposals is January 29, 1999. For further details, visit the conference website at: http://cwis.livjm.ac.uk/bcc99 or contact: Denise Glinister, LJMU Enterprise House, 2 Maryland Street, Liverpool L1 9DE. 44 (0) 151 231 3585, FAX 44 (0) 151 709 5057, email: d.glinister@livjm.ac.uk.

The International Sunbelt Social Network Conference, Hawthorn Suites Hotel, Charleston, South Carolina, February 18-21, 1999. Deadline for abstracts is December 15, 1998. The keynote speaker: Nan Lin, Professor of Sociology and Director of the Asian Pacific Studies Institute, Duke University, will deliver the keynote address entitled "Building a Network Theory of Social Capital." The conference provides an opportunity for individuals interested in theory, methods, or applications of social networks to share ideas and common concerns. Conference information will be updated regularly at the INSNA web site: http://www.ucin.cmu.edu/project/INSNA/.

AROUND THE ASC

The American Society of Criminology is pleased to announce the winner of the 1998 Email Mentor of the Year, Hal Pepinsky of Indiana University. Previous winners of the Mentor of the Year Award are: Christine Sellers (1995) and Pamela Irving Jackson (1997).

There will be a reunion of everyone associated with the Berkeley School of Criminology, University of California during its history. All former students, faculty, visiting scholars and staff are warmly invited. It will be held during the Western Society of Criminology meetings in Oakland, February 25-28, 1999. There will be a panel on the school and a separate social event. Plans are being formulated, and suggestions and especially contact names are welcome. If you are interested in possibly attending, please get on the list by telephoning Paul Takagi at 510-339-2209 or 510-339-8312. Or you can email Barry Krisberg at bkrisberg@aol.com or Dorie Klein at dorick@publichealth.org.

Hawkins, 1995; Young and Greene, 1995; Gabbidon, 1996). These presentations and publications suggest that Du Bois was a noteworthy contributor to the early development of criminology in the United States.

References to Du Bois’s crime-related writings, however, are scant compared to the mass of material on his life. There have been, however, a few early and several recent comments regarding Du Bois crime-related publications. Sutherland (1924) and Sellin (1928) provide two early references to Du Bois’s writings. Sutherland, and his first edition of his classic text Criminology (1924), refers to Du Bois’s The Philadelphia Negro (1899) to illustrate patterns of African-American crime. Sellin (1928) also referred to the earlier publications of Du Bois while discussing African American crime. Gunnar Myrdal, in his classic An American Dilemma (1944), relied heavily on Du Bois’s writings to discuss the American Negro and their involvement in the justice system (see Myrdal, 1944:524-569). Later, African-Americans scholar, E. Franklin Frazier, while reviewing literature on African-American crime, noted that Du Bois viewed the etiology of African American crime in the same light as the Chicago School scholars (see Frazier, 1949). Following these early references to Du Bois’s crime-related publications, it was not until the early 1970s that the substance of these writings were again carefully considered.

Green (1973: 1338), recognizing this oversight in the discussion of Du Bois’s writings on crime, suggested that the two foremost scholars on Du Bois during that era, Francis L. Broderick and Elliot M. Rudwick, failed to address Du Bois’s contributions to criminology. Because of this oversight, Green developed a chapter to focus on Du Bois publications on crime. He focused on many books, journal articles, and editorials from Du Bois’s years as editor of The Crisis magazine of the NAACP. From Green’s analysis of these publications, he concluded that Du Bois recognized four basic causes of African American crime: 1) the convict lease system, 2) the attitude of the courts towards blacks, 3) the increasing lawlessness and mob-actions of whites, and 4) the unnatural separations of the races (1973: 384). Furthermore, Green identified several other factors that Du Bois believed contributed to crime including: increased complexity of life, industrial competition, urban migration, and economic and moral strain (1973: 384). These findings by Green represent an early and significant analysis of Du Bois publications on crime. After discussing his findings, Green labeled Du Bois one of America’s first scientific criminologists (see Green 1973:338).

Following Green’s discussion, several other publications cited Du Bois’s writings on crime, but did not include extensive analyses (see, for example, Caldwell and Greene, 1980; Davis, 1975; Greene, 1979; Simms and Myers, 1988; Duffee and Bailey, 1991). More recently, several works by criminologists have revisited the writings of Du Bois. Young and Greene (1995), for example devote part of their article to the review of several Du Bois’s writings on crime. They argue that Du Bois’s writings preceded mainstream criminological thinkers and included the following thematic content: social disorganization as a result of slavery and emancipation, African-American criminal class, crime statistics and economics and crime (Young and Greene, 1995-99). Hawkins (1995), commenting on Du Bois’s analysis of African American crime in Philadelphia notes:

Du Bois and others saw their task to be that of providing social explanations for he comparatively high rate of black crime. For Du Bois the over involvement of Philadelphia blacks in crime was a natural product of their genetic makeup, but of the degradation and social disruption caused by slavery... (Hawkins, 1995:15).

Elsewhere, Gabbidon (1996) has provided an in-depth discussion of several of Du Bois’s publications on crime. The thesis of this essay also supports the argument that Du Bois should be included in the mainstream C/CJ curriculum.

Editor’s Note: The discussion of the importance of W.E.B. Du Bois to the field of criminology is continued in the second part of this series. Specifically, part two of this series to be printed in the January/February 1999 issue of the newsletter, is devoted to a comparison of the academic significance of the Du Bois analysis of the convict lease system in the United States as consistent with the quality of the work of William Chambliss on the analysis of the law of vagrancy.

LETTER FROM THE EDITOR

Since 1996, I have had the privilege to serve as editor of The Criminologist. I have appreciated the opportunity to serve the members of the American Society of Criminology in this fashion. I have been overwhelmed by the nature of support that the membership and the Executive Board have offered in relation to my efforts to fulfill a challenging mission.

My first duty as I exit this position is to thank the members of the University of Nebraska at Omaha community that contributed in supporting roles to the publication of the last three volumes of the newsletter. Angela Patton, has been an indispensable partner in the construction of each issue. The information management and desktop-publishing skills she has developed throughout her academic and employment career were invaluable assets to me as an editor. Her dedication to producing a high quality publication on a bi-monthly basis for three years for an organization to which she had no previous ties, can only be described as remarkable. Also offering unwavering support roles when needed were staff members June Turner and Erika Frenzel. The book review editors that gave time to this process in the first two years of my editorship offered invaluable assistance. A special thanks to (now) Drs. Ni “Phillip” He and Chuck Katz; as well as, doctoral candidates Anne Garner and Bill Wells. A number of colleagues offered support in this endeavor, but special thanks go to the problem solving skills of Dr. Susan Jacobs, Dr. Finn Esbensen and Dean David Hinton. Thanks are also due to the administrators who offered resources for the last three years.

Several people contributed to the actual production of the newsletter. The staff of the university printing and duplicating department (especially Fran Neff, Marian McDonald and Rick Simanek) were instrumental in producing a professional publication in a timely manner. In addition, the printing services of Commercial Printing (especially Jose Novoa) were always flawless. We appreciate the considerable abilities of these groups and their considerable patience.

To each of you who have submitted essays, written book reviews, contributed announcements, and prepared memorial essays your assistance has been invaluable. In particular, I would like to acknowledge the efforts of those who have served as program chairs and Division presidents during the last three years who each made us a priority. A special thanks to each of the members who have offered suggestions to improve the quality of the publication.

I am particularly proud of the editorial teams attempts to continue the quality publication we inherited. Our accomplishments in this area are due in no small part to the legacy of the former editorial teams. We relied heavily on the format and content of prior issues to guide our decisions for the last three years. Accomplishments in this area are also due to the imagination and creativity of the managing editor, Angela Patton. She was also the main force behind the professional presentation and timely printing of each issue. We are also very pleased that the newsletter has been able to highlight issues related to “News from the Divisions” and “In the Classroom”. To highlight elements of the last 18 newsletters that I hope will be remembered as accomplishments, I am including a bibliography of lead essays and teaching skills essays (see back cover).

In closing, I would like to make special recognition of Sarah Hall and the rest of the ASC staff in Columbus, Ohio for their numerous contributions. The least of which were the arduous tasks of mailing and billing. To the membership and the Executive Boards past and present of the American Society of Criminology, thank you again for providing me this opportunity to serve the organization. I wish the organization and future editorial teams great success in meeting the challenges of the evolving mission of the newsletter.

Miriam A. DeLone, University of Nebraska at Omaha

P.S. A personal thank you to the following (you each know why): Greg, Jacob, Sam, Ang, Kathy, June, Marc, Ted and Jake.

Annual Meeting 1999

CALL FOR PAPERS

Toronto, Ontario Canada

November 17-20 Royal York Hotel

THEME: EXPLAINING AND PREVENTING CRIME: THE GLOBALIZATION OF KNOWLEDGE

The 1999 Annual Meeting of the American Society of Criminology will be held at the Royal York Hotel from Wednesday, November 17 through Saturday, November 21.

The 1999 Program consists of five AREAS: 1) Explanations and Approaches, 2) Research Methods, 3) Criminality and Deviance, 4) Law Making, Policy and the Public, 5) Institutions of Social Control and Criminal Processing. Each AREA includes specific DIVISIONS within which we invite the submission of panels and papers.

Submission should be made to the CHAIR of the DIVISION you think most appropriate (DO NOT SUBMIT THE SAME PANEL OR THE SAME PAPER TO MORE THAN ONE DIVISION CHAIR). It is essential that EACH AUTHOR’S name, mailing address, telephone number, FAX number, and E-mail address be provided on panel submission forms, abstract forms, and abstracts. We will apply the two appearance rule: only one first author presentation and one other appearance as chair or discussant; unlimited appearances as co-author. Please limit your submissions and acceptance of invitations to participate to no more than two separate panels. Address questions about submission to the appropriate AREA CHAIR or Simon I. Singer, Program Chair.

ASC members willing to serve as session chairs or discussants should notify an appropriate Division Chair. Your willingness to serve is greatly appreciated, but it does not guarantee your program participation.

The FIRM DEADLINE for submission is March 31, 1999. LATE SUBMISSIONS should be submitted to Simon I. Singer. They will not be considered for panel sessions. Late submissions will be organized into “Table Sessions” in which groups of scholars present their papers to each other (and others who want to join the table). No submissions will be accepted after July 1, 1999.

SUBMISSION DETAILS

♦ Submissions must be received by March 31, 1999

♦ Please send your submission to just one DIVISION Chair. If the Chair decides another Division is more appropriate for your submission, your forms will be forwarded to the Chair of that Division: you will be notified of this change.

♦ Each participant is limited to a maximum of two program appearances (chair, presenter, discussant).

♦ We suggest that a panel include not more than five paper presentations or four papers and a discussant.

♦ All paper or panel submissions must include an abstract. In submitting your abstract, please limit it to 200 words. The abstract should only briefly note the purpose, method, and the results of the study, or the general theme of the paper.

♦ Please note that the Meeting is in NOVEMBER. Program participants are expected to preregister for the meetings. Preregistration materials will be sent to you by September of 1999. Failure to preregister may result in the removal of a paper from the program.

♦ The meetings are Wednesday through Saturday. Participants should expect to be in attendance the entire time as we cannot guarantee any particular day and time for panel presentations.

♦ Please remember to submit only papers that are original and have not been published or presented elsewhere.

The 1999 Meeting will include panel sessions, table sessions, “author meets critic” sessions, thematic sessions, and plenary sessions. We welcome suggestions for any of the above as we strive to organize a program that cuts across criminology disciplines, professions and approaches.

We look forward to seeing you in Toronto.

ASC Students

Call For Entries

1999 ASC GENE CARTE STUDENT PAPER COMPETITION

We invite participation in The American Society of Criminology Gene Carte Student Paper Competition. These awards are given to recognize outstanding scholarly work of students. Following are the procedures for the 1999 competition.

Who Is Eligible

Any student currently enrolled on a full-time basis in an academic program at either the undergraduate or graduate level. Persons who are previous first place prize winners of this competition are ineligible.

Specifications For Papers

No paper may be submitted to more than one ASC student competition for the same year. Any paper that has previously won any prize in any ASC competition is ineligible for submission to another ASC competition. Papers may be conceptual and/or empirical but must be directly related to criminology. Papers must be typewritten, double-spaced on 8 1/2 x 11 white paper, and no longer than 7,500 words. The CRIMINOLOGY format for the organization of text, citations and references should be used. Authors' names, departments and advisors (optional) must appear ONLY on the title page, since papers will be evaluated anonymously. The next page of the manuscript should include the title and a 100-word abstract. The author must submit EIGHT copies of the manuscript, accompanied by a letter indicating the author's enrollment status and co-signed by the dean, department chair or program director.

Deadline

Papers must be submitted with a postmark on or before April 15, 1999 to:

Celeste A. Albonetti
Department of Sociology
University of Iowa
W140 Seashore Hall
Iowa City, Iowa 52245
(319) 335-2502
(319) 335-2509 FAX

Procedures For Judging Entries

The Student Awards Committee will rate entries according to criteria such as the quality of the conceptualization, significance of the topic, clarity and aptness of methods, quality of the writing, command of relevant work in the field, and contribution to criminology. The Committee's award determinations will be final.

Awards

The 1st, 2nd, and 3rd place papers will be awarded prizes of $300, $150, and $100, respectively and will be eligible for presentation at the 1999 meeting of The American Society of Criminology in Toronto, Ontario, Canada, November 17-20, 1999. The 1st prize winner also will be granted a travel award to the meeting. The Committee may decide that no entry is of sufficient quality to declare a winner. Fewer than three awards may be given. Prize-winning students will be acknowledged at the Annual Meeting Awards Ceremony.

Notification Of Awards

The author(s) of entries selected by the judges for awards will be notified in writing by August 1, 1999.
AMERICAN SOCIETY OF CRIMINOLOGY

RUTH SHONLE CAVAN YOUNG SCHOLAR AWARD
Sponsored by Wadsworth/West Publishing Co.

This Award will be given to recognize outstanding scholarly contributions to the discipline of criminology by someone who has received the Ph.D., MD, LL.D, or a similar graduate degree no more than five years before the selection for the award (for this year the degree must have been awarded no earlier than May of 1993). The Award may be for a single work or a series of contributions, and may include coauthored works.

Those interested in being considered for the award or nominating someone for the Award should send copies of applicant’s/nominee’s vitae and published works to:

FRANK R. SCARPITTI
Sociology and Criminal Justice
University of Delaware
Newark, DE 19716
302/831-2495; 302/831-2607 FAX
frank.scarpitti@mvs.udel.edu

Five copies of all materials submitted in support of a nomination must be received by March 1, 1999. The person selected for the Award will receive a plaque commemorating the Award, one thousand dollars, and up to five hundred dollars towards expenses associated with attending the 1999 ASC meeting.

FELLOWSHIP FOR ETHNIC MINORITIES
Up to $18,000
Deadline: March 1, 1999

Eligibility: The fellowship is designed to encourage African American, Asian American, Latino, and Native American students to enter the field of criminology and criminal justice. Applicants need not be members of the American Society of Criminology. Individuals studying criminology or criminal justice issues are encouraged to apply. The recipient or recipients of the fellowship must be accepted into a program of doctoral studies.

Application Procedures: A complete application package must be received no later than March 1, 1999. A complete application must contain (1) up-to-date curriculum vita; (2) indication of race or ethnicity; (3) copies of undergraduate and graduate transcripts; (4) statement of need and prospects for financial assistance for graduate study; (5) a letter describing career plans, salient experiences, and nature of interest in criminology and criminal justice; and (6) three letters of reference.

Notification: Award(s) will be made by June 1, 1999.

Applications should be sent to:
Sarah Hall, Administrator
American Society of Criminology
1314 Kinnear Road, Suite 214
Columbus, Ohio 43212

The Society reserves the right not to award the fellowship.

NOMINATIONS FOR 1999
MICHAEL J. HINDELANG AWARD
For the Most Outstanding Contribution to Criminology

The American Society of Criminology has established the Michael J. HIndelang Award, to be given annually for a book published during the previous two to three years that makes the most outstanding contribution to research in criminology. To be considered, a book must be nominated by an individual, as opposed to a corporate, member of the ASC. The Committee will not consider anthologies and/or edited volumes. The Award will be presented during the annual meeting of the Society. The Executive Board may decide not to give the Award in a given year.

The Award Committee is soliciting nominations for the Michael J. HIndelang Award. To nominate a book, please send the title of the book, its authors, the publisher, the year of the publication, and a brief discussion of your reasons for the recommendation to the Award Committee. The deadline for receiving nominations is March 15, 1999. Send your nomination to:

SCOTT DECKER, CHAIR
Michael J. Hindelang Award Committee
Department of Criminology and Criminal Justice
University of Missouri-St. Louis
598 Lucas Hall, 8001 Natural Bridge Road

NOMINATIONS FOR 1999 ASC AWARDS

The ASC Awards Committee invites nominations for four major awards, to be presented at the 1999 annual meetings. The awards:

EDWIN H. SUTHERLAND AWARD, which recognizes outstanding scholarly contributions to the discipline of criminology by a North American criminologist. Outstanding scholarly contributions may consist of a single outstanding book or work, a series of theoretical or research contributions, or the accumulated contributions of a senior scholar.

THOERSTEN SELLIN & SHELDON AND ELEANOR GLUECK AWARD, which recognizes outstanding scholarly contributions to the discipline of criminology by a non-North American criminologist (i.e., not U.S. or Canadian). The recipient need not speak English; however, his/her work must be available, in part at least, in the English language (either by original publication or through translation).

AUGUST VOLLMER AWARD, which recognizes outstanding contributions to applied criminology (criminological practice or policy). The award may be given for a single major effort or work, a series of contributions, or accumulated contributions to practice of policy.

HERBERT BLOCH AWARD, which recognizes outstanding service contributions to the American Society of Criminology and to the professional interests of criminology.

In submitting your nomination, provide the following supporting materials: a letter evaluating a nominee's contribution and its relevance to an award, and the nominee's c.v. (short version preferred).

Send nominations and supporting materials by March 1, 1999 to the committee chair.

NOMINATIONS FOR ASC FELLOWS

The ASC Fellows Committee invites nominations for Fellows in the Society. This title is available to those members of the Society in good standing who have achieved distinction in criminology. The last meeting of the ASC Executive Board approved the following clarification of this distinction: "The honorary title "Fellow" recognizes persons who have made a scholarly contribution to the intellectual life of the discipline, whether in the form of a singular, major piece of scholarship or cumulative scholarly contributions. Longevity alone is not sufficient. In addition, a Fellow must have made a significant contribution to the field through the career development of other criminologists and/or through organizational activities within the ASC."

The names of those who have been awarded the Fellow status will be announced at the 1999 Annual Meeting and the candidates will be acknowledged by the Society with the presentation of a Certificate.

In your nominating letter, please describe the reasons for your nomination and include a copy of the nominees curriculum vitae (or make arrangements to have it sent to the Committee). All materials should be received by March 1, 1999 to:

Joan Petersilia
Chair, ASC Fellows Committee

A New Forum for Penological Scholarship:

_Punishment & Society: The International Journal of Penology_

by David Garland, New York University

Punishment has always presented practical challenges and moral dilemmas, just as it has always exerted a profound fascination, whether for social theorists or for the literary and popular imagination. At the present time, however, penal issues have taken on a significance for politics and for popular culture that make the business of crime and punishment one of the most pressing problems of our age. In this context, the effectiveness of imprisonment, the ethics of the death penalty, the scope for restorative sanctions, or the appropriate framework for governing sentencing behaviour - cease to be matters purely for specialists and become relevant to everyone.

There is reason, too, to believe that our penal institutions are currently undergoing a profound structural transformation that is changing the meaning of criminal justice in ways that we are only beginning to understand. The erosion of correctionalist ideologies; the turn to expressive justice and punitive measures; the return of the victim; the stress upon public protection and the management of risk; the changing objectives of community corrections and custodial institutions; the politicization of penal policy discourse; the drift towards mass imprisonment...... all of these converging trends seem to suggest a field that is being extensively reconfigured, though no singular logic appears to explain quite how.

Twenty five years ago, academics, practitioners and informed commentators shared a set of assumptions about the correctionalist framework that shaped criminal justice and penal practice. There was a settled, self-conscious, institutional field and the debates and disagreements that occurred operated within its discursive parameters. Penological textbooks and practitioner training manuals could articulate the premises that guided penal practice and confidently transmit this culture from one generation to the next. Today, for better or for worse, we lack any such agreement, or any clear sense of the big picture. Policy development tends to be volatile and contradictory. No one is quite sure what is rational and what is reactionary. Private prisons, victim’s impact statements, community notification laws, sentencing guidelines, electronic monitoring, punishments in the community - these and dozens of other issues take us into unfamiliar territory where the ideological lines are far from clear and where the old assumptions are an unreliable guide.

The collapse of a long-established institutional framework tends to prompt intellectual ferment and innovation as old habits of thought and recipes for action lose their epistemological privileges and institutional supports. It is not, then, surprising that the traditional assumptions of a correctionalist, technicist penology have been increasingly disrupted over the past two decades by more critical and diverse ways of thinking about penalty. Practical penology has converged with historical, sociological and philosophical work in a way that has produced a whole new level of intellectual debate, and a whole new literature of scholarship in the penal realm, as scholars have tried to make sense of the changing terrain and the social and historical dynamics that lie beneath it.

The new centrality of penal politics and the changing configuration of the field, together with the growth over the last two decades of a vigorous and impressive body of new penological scholarship, made it seem timely and important to establish a forum for discussion and debate. The idea was to continue the important tradition of practical penology - analyzing, evaluating and criticizing contemporary penal practice - but to engage that tradition in a conversation with the broader analyses produced by scholars working from disciplinary perspectives outside of the penal domain - in sociology, history, philosophy and cultural studies. In establishing _Punishment & Society_ my co-editors and I hope to promote that conversation and, in time, contribute to a more informed and perspicacious level of public discourse and criticism in penal affairs. We very much hope that members of the ASC will join us in this venture - by subscribing to the journal and by submitting their work for publication.

Mean Streets
Youth Crime and Homelessness
John Hagan and Bill McCarthy

"...this book brings insight to the social and emotional complexities that typify the lives of homeless adolescents and young adults in Toronto and Vancouver...found Mean Streets to be an insightful, beautifully written, meticulous analysis of a very complex street scene. Hagan and McCarthy should be commended for their hard work, dedication, and concern for revealing the lives of adolescents on the street."

—Social Forces

"Mean Streets is the first major study of street youth between the ages of 15 and 24, conducted on their own turf. It seeks to examine the perspectives of these young people, as well as the relationship between homelessness and crime...The findings are disturbing."

—The Toronto Globe and Mail

"Transcending the qualitative-quantitative divide, Hagan and McCarthy achieve a milestone in criminological research with the publication of Mean Streets. Based on a seamless blend of qualitative interviews with state-of-the-art quantitative analysis, Mean Streets provides criminology with an exciting new understanding of crime on the streets. This is 'must' reading at its best."

—Robert Sampson, University of Chicago

This field study features intensive personal interviews of more than four hundred young people who have left home and school and are living on the streets of Toronto and Vancouver. The study examines why youth take to the streets, their struggles to survive there, their victimization and involvement in crime, their associations with other street youth, especially within “street families,” their contacts with the police, and their efforts to rejoin conventional society.

Northern Arizona University. The Department of Criminal Justice is seeking qualified applicants for two tenure-track positions, one at the Assistant Professor level and the other at the Associate level, both beginning August, 1999. Minimum requirements are a (1) Ph.D. in criminal justice, criminology, sociology or a closely related discipline with a successful defense completed prior to the commencement of the position, (2) evidence of quality teaching as well as a willingness to teach within the core curriculum and participate in instructional technology including TV and web-based delivery, and (3) demonstrated potential for scholarly research and publication. Specialty areas are open, however, some preference may be given to applicants whose theoretical and/or research expertise encompasses one or more of the following: (1) the relationship between justice systems and racial/ethnic minority populations, particularly peoples of the Southwest, (2) the role of difference, identity and culture in adult and juvenile justice processes, and (3) public and private policing and surveillance. The University offers a range of bachelor's, masters, and doctoral programs to an increasingly diverse population of 19,000 students at its main campus in Flagstaff and through state-wide educational programs. Interdisciplinary initiatives include programs in Latin American Studies and Women's Studies, and a Native American Institute. The Department offers BS and MS degrees in criminal justice and contributes to state-wide programs through interactive instructional television and web-based course offerings. Due to the increasing ethnic diversity of the Arizona population, the department encourages applications from individuals with a commitment to creating a welcoming educational environment for students from all ethnic, racial, and cultural backgrounds. Please visit Northern Arizona University's website at http://www.nau.edu. Applicants should send a letter of interest, a curriculum vita, the names, addresses, and telephone numbers of three professional references, and transcripts of graduate course work to: Dr. Nancy Wonders, Chair, Screening Committee, Department of Criminal Justice, Northern Arizona University, P.O. Box 15005, Flagstaff, AZ 86001. The search will remain open until the position is filled, however, the department will begin reviewing applications December 1, 1998. Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity Employer.

Northern Arizona University (Statewide: Tucson, Arizona). The Department of Criminal Justice is seeking qualified applicants for a tenure-track position at the Assistant or beginning Associate Professor level beginning August, 1999. The position will be based in Tucson with extensive travel to the various sites within the surrounding academic region. Minimum requirements are (1) Ph.D. in criminal justice, criminology, sociology or a closely related discipline with a successful defense completed prior to the commencement of the position, (2) evidence of quality teaching as well as a willingness to teach within the core curriculum and participate in instructional technology including TV and web-based delivery, and (3) demonstrated potential for scholarly research and publication. Specialty areas are open, however, preference will be given to applicants in the area of law enforcement or corrections, especially those with knowledge of the relationship between justice systems and racial/ethnic minority populations, particularly peoples of the Southwest. Other responsibilities include recruiting and advising students, coordinating offerings in the various state-wide locations, in this region, and networking with the criminal justice agencies in the area. The University offers a range of bachelor's, masters, and doctoral programs to an increasingly diverse population of students at its main campus in Flagstaff and through state-wide educational programs. This position will support the department's efforts to provide career enhancing education and advising to those seeking to enter and those currently employed in law enforcement and corrections in Arizona. Students will be transferring to NAU's state-wide system from area community colleges so that assistance with articulation is an important aspect of this position. Due to the increasing ethnic diversity of the Arizona population, the department encourages applications from individuals with a commitment to creating a welcoming educational environment for students from all ethnic, racial, and cultural backgrounds. Please visit Northern Arizona University's website at http://www.nau.edu. NATIONAL CONSORTIUM ON VIOLENCE RESEARCH

Opportunities for Research on Violence

The National Consortium on Violence Research (NCOVR) invites applicants to its Faculty Collaborator Program. NCOVR, which is based at the Heinz School of Public Policy and Management at Carnegie Mellon University, is a multi-disciplinary, multi-institutional Consortium comprised of a diverse team of researchers representing several disciplines including: sociology, psychology, criminology, public policy, statistics and operations research. NCOVR's Faculty Collaborator Program provides opportunities for faculty (especially those at institutions serving large numbers of students from groups historically under-represented among violence researchers) to enhance their technical and research skills for purposes of carrying out violence research. Collaborators work closely with NCOVR members in formulating research proposals which complement on-going NCOVR sponsored research projects, and in mentoring undergraduate students. NCOVR will support the Faculty Collaborator's violence research with funds, which will enable Collaborators to meet with fellow NCOVR members, obtain data sets, and procure research assistance in collecting, coding and analyzing data. Qualified applicants must hold a doctorate in a relevant field and be affiliated with an academic institution. Applicants must be strongly motivated and committed to pursue advanced training in some aspect of violence research. NCOVR strongly encourages members of racial and ethnic minority groups to apply. The deadline for receipt of your completed application packet is February 1, 1999. For additional information and application forms please visit the Consortium's Web-site at: http://www.ncovr.heinz.cmu.edu.

Fellowship Opportunities for Violence Research

The National Consortium on Violence Research (NCOVR) invites applicants to its postdoctoral research program. NCOVR, which is based at the Heinz School of Public Policy and Management at Carnegie Mellon University, is a multi-disciplinary, multi-institutional Consortium comprised of a diverse team of researchers representing several disciplines including: sociology, psychology, criminology, public policy, statistics and operations research. NCOVR's Postdoctoral program emphasizes the development of strong technical and research skills critical for carrying out empirical studies on violence. Trainees work under the mentorship of two Consortium members, each from a different discipline. Through multidisciplinary training, Fellows gain exposure to different theoretical and methodological approaches to the study of violence. Because NCOVR members are affiliated with over 30 institutions in the United States and abroad, Fellows may be in residence at any institution in the Consortium, or may divide their time between two institutions. The fellowship supports recipients as full time researchers for two years, with an annual stipend of $30,000. Additionally, limited funds are provided for travel to other member sites to maintain cross-disciplinary collaboration, facilitate participation in NCOVR's Summer Workshop and in other designated activities. Qualified applicants must hold a doctorate in a relevant field, or be assured of obtaining their degree before the start of the fellowship on September 1. Applicants must be strongly motivated and committed to pursue advanced training in some aspect of violence research. Excellent communication and analytic skills are required. NCOVR strongly encourages members of racial, ethnic or gender minorities to apply. The deadline for receipt of your completed application packet is February 1, 1999. For additional information and application forms please visit the Consortium's Web-site at: http://www.ncovr.heinz.cmu.edu.
