CRIMINOLOGISTS’ OPINIONS ABOUT CAUSES AND THEORIES OF CRIME AND DELINQUENCY*

Lee Ellis, Minot State University
Anthony Walsh, Boise State University

What causes crime? Several surveys have been conducted among the general populations about their beliefs on this matter (e.g., Reuterman 1978; Johnson 1997), but the views of criminologists themselves have largely escaped empirical scrutiny. The first systematic study of criminologists’ opinions on crime causation was conducted in 1988 among persons attending the American Criminological Society meeting (Ellis & Hoffman 1990). According to this study, the most widely mentioned cause of serious/persistent offending was an economic system that prevents participation by some individuals. Regarding delinquency/minor adult offending, criminologists identified poor supervision in the home or unstable and uncaring family as most important.

The 1988 study also asked criminologists what theories they considered the most viable for explaining both serious/persistent criminality and delinquency/minor adult offending. The most widely mentioned theories were Hirschi’s control theory and social learning theory. The present study was undertaken to update these findings, although refinements in how questions were phrased makes comparability somewhat problematic.

Methods
A random sample of five hundred persons attending the 1997 American Society of Criminology meeting (in San Diego) were mailed a two-page questionnaire in 1998, an explanatory letter, and a stamped envelope. The only persons excluded were those whose address was outside the United States. Usable responses were obtained from 147 respondents, a 29% return rate. While disappointing, this return rate was only marginally lower than the 45% return rate from the 1988 ASC conference attendees (Ellis & Hoffman 1990) and the 35% return rate in a more recent survey of ASC members on self-reported offending (Robinson & Zatzow 1999).

Demographics for the present sample were as follows: 65% of the respondents were male, 35% female. Professionally, 32% of the respondents indicated that their primary responsibilities were teaching, 29% identified research as their main work, and the remaining 39% stated that their work was a combination of research and teaching. In terms of academic background, 44% indicated they had been primarily trained in sociology, 23% criminal justice, 20% criminology, 3% psychology, and 10% listed a variety of other primary areas of academic training.

The questionnaire contained questions pertaining to what respondents considered the most viable theories at the present time, and the most important causes of offending behavior. We asked respondents to answer separately for serious/persistent criminality and for delinquency/minor adult offending.

Results
Results concerning what criminologists considered the most viable criminological theories at the present time are shown in Table 1. The two versions of control theory (social and self) were chosen most often for explaining both serious/persistent offending and delinquency/minor adult offending. Next was differential association theory, followed by conflict theory. Together, these three theories were chosen by 43% of the respondents in the case of serious/persistent offending and 44% in the case of delinquency/minor adult offending.

Table 2 summarizes responses to our list of possible causes of criminal and delinquent behavior. (For both serious/persistent offending and delinquent/minor adult offending, the five highest rated causes are presented in bold.) One can see that economic and educational deprivation factors are considered the most important causes of serious/persistent offending. Regarding delinquent/minor adult offending, peer influence and lack of parental supervision are thought to be most important.

Most of the main causes of criminal and delinquent behavior had to do with societal/economic factors, the family, and peers. The variables receiving the lowest ratings in terms of importance were those having to do with mass media, biological factors, and the criminal justice system.

Discussion

Comparing the present results to those from a decade ago (Ellis & Hoffman 1990) suggests that some changes may have taken place in criminologists' collective opinions, particularly regarding which theories are most viable. While control theory has remained prominent, and may have even risen in popularity, social learning theory seems to have waned in its appeal between the two reporting periods. Differential association theory and conflict theory appear to have become more popular now than they were a decade ago.

Regarding which types of causal variables are considered most important, few changes seem to have taken place. For serious/persistent offending, the main causes identified in both surveys had to do with an unfair economic system. Regarding delinquency/minor adult offending, criminologists in the present sample felt that the most important cause was peer influence and lack of parental monitoring. In the earlier survey, parental monitoring was considered important, but peer influence was rated as less important than unfair economic factors.

Caution needs to be exercised in interpreting these results, particularly in light of our low response rate. Nevertheless, the results should provide at least a rough benchmark against which to compare future changes in criminologists' opinions about the causes of criminal and delinquent behavior.

ALFRED UNIVERSITY. The Division of Social Sciences at Alfred University announces the availability of a tenure track position at the Assistant Professor level in the area of Criminal Justice Studies. Contingent on funding, the position will begin Fall, 2000. Duties will include teaching Deviance and Society, Crime and Delinquency, and Concepts of Penology and supervising fieldwork. The Criminal Justice Studies major at Alfred is part of the College of Liberal Arts and sciences. Responsibilities for faculty at Alfred University include teaching, research, advising, and service. Ph.D. preferred. ABD considered. Send letter of interest, curriculum vitae, graduate transcripts, and three letters of recommendation to Dr. Arthur L. Greil, Chair, Division of Social Sciences, Alfred University, Saxon Drive, Alfred, NY 14802. Review of applications will begin Nov. 1 and continue until the position is filled. Women and minorities are encouraged to apply. AA/EOE.

CAMPBELL UNIVERSITY. Campbell University is seeking applications for a criminal justice position at the assistant or associate level for the Spring semester 2000. A Ph.D. or assurance of its near completion in criminal justice, criminology or related field is required, and specialization areas are open. The Criminal Justice Program operates within the Government and History Department, so candidates may be asked to teach a course in American government. Campbell is a liberal arts university affiliated with the N.C. Baptist Convention and estems both its academic and Christian purposes. The successful candidate must be willing to accept committee assignments, share in organizational and departmental responsibilities, advise students, and participate in the overall life of the University. Campbell University is an E.O.E. Send c.v., the names and phone numbers of three references, transcripts, and statement of Christian teaching philosophy to Dr. Martin Sellers, Criminal Justice Search Committee, Department of Government and History, Campbell University, P.O. Box 356, Buies Creek, NC 27516. Processing of applications will occur immediately, until the position is filled.

EASTERN KENTUCKY UNIVERSITY. The Department of Police Studies in the College of Law Enforcement seeks to fill two tenure track faculty positions and one nine-month visiting faculty position (possible reappointment) beginning Fall 1999. Faculty positions are open at the Full, Associate, or Assistant rank. Faculty candidates should be able to teach and/or conduct research in core areas of criminal justice including, but not limited to: police studies, statistics, research methods, social diversity, and theory. Preference will be given to those candidates with a demonstrated potential for scholarship and teaching. For the tenure track positions, a doctorate in criminal justice or a related discipline is required; however, well qualified ABD’s will be considered, but degree must be completed prior to appointment. Faculty salaries are highly competitive. The visiting faculty applicant should have demonstrated experience in teaching and hold at least a master’s degree in criminal justice or a related field. Eastern Kentucky University’s College of Law Enforcement was selected as the University’s program of distinction which has significantly increased resources devoted to research and other related activities. The Department encourages the applications of women and minority candidates. Applicants should forward a letter of application, a current vita, copies of graduate transcripts, and three references to Dr. Victor Kappeler, Department of Police Studies, 467 Stratton Building, 521 Lancaster Avenue, Richmond, KY 40475-3102 (606) 622-1980. Review of applications will begin June 1, 1999, and will continue until positions are filled.

GEORGE MASON UNIVERSITY. Associate or Advanced Assistant Professor, Administration of Justice. George Mason University invites applications for a tenure-track Associate or advanced Assistant Professor position in the Administration of Justice Program in the Department of Public and International Affairs for Fall 2000. Requirements: (1) Ph.D. in a relevant field, (2) strong record of research and publication, (3) strong teaching record, and (4) demonstrated ability to obtain external funding. Area of specialization is open; candidates with strong quantitative skills in policing or corrections are especially encouraged to apply. AoI is a multidisciplinary program enrolling nearly 400 undergraduates and offers a concentration in the department’s nationally ranked MPA program. Current program faculty hold doctorates in political science, criminal justice, and law. Applicants should submit a letter of interest, vita, teaching evaluations or other evidence of teaching effectiveness, examples of published research, and three letters of recommendation. Review of applications will begin September 1 and continue until the position is filled. Submit applications to: Stephen D. Mastrofski, Administration of Justice Program, MSN 4F4, George Mason University, Manas-
THE GEORGE WASHINGTON UNIVERSITY. The Department of Sociology invites applications for a tenure-track assistant professor position specializing in criminology, to begin in Fall 2000. Fields of related interest include the sociology of gender, social stratification, urban sociology, and quantitative methodology. We seek candidates who demonstrate outstanding commitment to research and teaching. The successful candidate will also be affiliated with the Department’s new Institute on Crime, Justice, and Corrections, headed by William Chambliss and James Austin. A candidate must have completed the doctoral degree by the time of appointment. Review of applications will begin on September 1, 1999, and continue until the position is filled. The George Washington University is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employer. Applicants should submit a letter of application, curriculum vitae, three letters of recommendation, and evidence of research potential and teaching abilities to Criminology Search Committee, Department of Sociology, The George Washington University, 2129 G Street, NW, Washington, DC 20052.

INDIANA UNIVERSITY-South Bend. The School of Public and Environmental Affairs at Indiana University-South Bend announces a faculty vacancy at the Assistant/Associate Professor level with teaching and research interests in criminology or criminal justice. Area of specialization is open. Preference will be given to candidates who have demonstrated skills in quantitative analysis and a strong record of scholarship. The successful candidate will teach criminal justice and related courses at both graduate and undergraduate levels, be committed to working with local criminal justice agencies on applied research/service projects, interact with a state-wide network of criminal justice colleagues, and be interested in working in an interdisciplinary setting. Terminal degree in a relevant discipline is required. SPEA is a multi-disciplinary, university-wide division of Indiana University, organized as a professional school committed to excellence in teaching, research, and service, addressing critical issues of environmental science, public and environmental policy and management. With over 100 faculty (tenure or tenure-track) on six campuses, SPEA is the largest school in the nation offering programs in environmental science and public affairs. The graduate program consistently ranks among the best in the country. IUSB is a comprehensive urban university of 7,500 students located in the heart of the South Bend/Mishawaka/Elkhart metropolitan area.

The review of application materials will begin November 1 and continue until the position is filled. Please submit a letter of application, current vitae, and names, addresses, e-mail, and phone numbers of four references to: Professor Kirsten A. Gronborg, Associate Dean for Academic Affairs, School of Public and Environmental Affairs, Indiana University, Bloomington, IN 47405. See: http://www.indiana.edu/~speaweb. Indiana University is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employer, and strongly encourages applications from members of historically underrepresented groups.

1999 STUDENT PAPER COMPETITION

The Division on Women and Crime announces its 1999 Student Paper Competition, which is intended to encourage excellent student writing on matters of feminist scholarship, gender issues, or about women as offenders, victims, or professionals. Any student currently enrolled in school at the undergraduate or graduate level at the time of submission is eligible to enter.

Papers must be no longer than 30 pages with an acceptable referencing format such as APA. Papers must contain an abstract of 100 words to be typed double spaced, and submitted on 8-1/2 x 11 inch paper. Three copies of the paper must be submitted along with verification of current student status. Papers by multiple authors are acceptable as long as all authors are students.

Papers must not have been previously published. The committee will judge papers based on significance of the topic, conceptualization, and clarity of writing. The winner will be presented with a $250 cash award at the Division on Women and Crime annual meeting at the ASC. Three copies of the paper must be received no later than September 10. THE POLICE FOUNDATION. The Police Foundation seeks a Ph.D. level researcher for a position as Senior Research Associate. The candidate will become part of the senior research staff of the Foundation, which is responsible for developing the overall research program and direction of the Police Foundation research group. The candidate will be expected to develop and direct research projects in the area of policing, and to advance the work of the Foundation through publications and participation in the scholarly community. We seek a candidate with strong research skills and interest in basic and public policy research in the area of policing. Exceptional candidates with strong research skills in other areas will also be considered. The salary level of the position will depend on the experience and background of the applicant. Interested researchers should send (or fax: 202-659-9149) a letter of application describing their experience and background and a curriculum vitae to Professor David Weisburd, Senior Research Scientist, or Dr. Rosann Greenspan, Research Director, Police Foundation, 1201 Connecticut Avenue, NW, Suite 200, Washington, DC 20036. Inquiries may also be directed to Professor Weisburd at msefrat@pluto.mscs.hiju.ac.il, or Dr. Greenspan at rgreenspan@policefoundation.org (phone 202-833-1460).

UNIVERSITY COLLEGE DUBLIN, Faculty of Law, Institute of Criminology, (Ref:162/99). Position of Director. A new Institute of Criminology will shortly be established in University College Dublin. The primary object of the Institute will be: (a) to engage in high quality interdisciplinary research on crime and punishment in Ireland, (b) to develop a close working relationship with governmental, professional and other bodies and agencies actively involved in the prevention, detection, trial and punishment of crime. The position of Director is essential to the success of the Institute and, accordingly, requires a person of international reputation in the field of criminology and related areas. International reputation will be reflected in the research profiles of the applicants. In addition, the post of Director requires a person with strong leadership ability, organisational skills and, overall, the commitment and enthusiasm to establish the Institute as a dynamic research entity. The Director will be expected to identify priority areas for research and to develop and implement a programme of research. The Director will also be expected to play the chief role in developing relations between the Institute and relevant governmental and research bodies both nationally and internationally. Candidates should have the following: (a) First rate academic qualifications in criminology and related areas at preferably Ph. D. level, (b) a record of scholarly research and publications, (c) Managerial/organisational ability and experience. The current salary scale is IR£48,175 – IR£50,989 – IR£53,805 – IR£56,621 – IR£59,436 – IR£62,250 (new entrants).

Closing date: not later than 5:00 p.m. on Friday 20 August, 1999. Prior to application, further information (including application procedures) should be obtained from the Personnel Office, University College Dublin, Belfield, Dublin 4, Ireland (quoting above reference number), Telephone inquiries: (353-1) 706 1645 and 706 1274 Fax: (353-1) 2692472. THE UNIVERSITY OF AKRON. Faculty Search, Assistant Professor of Sociology (Two Positions). The Department of Sociology invites applications for two tenure-track assistant professor positions (beginning through advanced) to start in fall, 2000. (1) For the first position, the Department seeks a specialist in criminology/law/deviance. (2) For the second position, the Department seeks a candidate whose expertise is in one of our specialty areas, i.e. criminology/law/deviance, family, inequality, medical, social psychology. The candidate must also be able to teach social theory or statistics/methods at the graduate level. Responsibilities for both positions include conducting research, publishing, applying for external grants, professional service, and teaching at the Bachelor’s Master’s and Ph.D. levels. Successful candidates must have a Ph.D. at the time of appointment. The Department of Sociology provides a supportive environment for professional growth. The Department, one of 14 Ph.D. granting departments within the university, has been designated as a priority department within the college, and expects to receive additional faculty lines in each of the next several years. Presently, the Department includes 17 full-time faculty, 500 undergraduate majors, and 40 graduate students, 30 of whom are on full-time assistantships. In the past five years the Department has received $12 million in external funding. Furthermore, the Department has been recognized by the American Sociological Association for its exemplary graduate teacher training program. The Department and College are supportive of dual-career relationships, and will try to accommodate these needs. Applicants should send a letter of application, a curriculum vitae, and a list of three references including telephone numbers and e-mails to: Dr. Richard J. Gigliotti, Department of Sociology, The University of Akron, Akron, OH 44324-1905. To ensure full consideration, applications must be received by October 1, 1999, but the search will continue until the positions are filled. Salary is competitive and depends upon qualifications and experience. The University of Akron is the third largest state-assisted university in Ohio and an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer. Minorities and women are encouraged to apply.

UNIVERSITY OF HAWAII AT MĀNOA. The Department of Sociology at the University of Hawaii at Mānoa invites applications for a tenure track position at Assistant or Associate (Continued on page 22)
ASC CODE OF ETHICS

As noted in The Criminologist's May/June issue (p 3), the Ethical Issues Committee has been developing a Code of Ethics for the American Society of Criminology. An invitation to review the proposed Code appeared in three issues of The Criminologist. Responses from ASC members and Divisions have been incorporated into the current document.

THE PROPOSED ASC CODE OF ETHICS IS NOW READY FOR A FINAL REVIEW BY THE MEMBERS OF THE ASC

The most recent draft of the Code of Ethics is published below. Please review the draft and send any comments to Angela Browne, Chair, Ethical Issues Committee (see address below). The Code is also located on the ASC website, www.asc41.com. Further opportunity to discuss the Code will be offered at a Town Meeting at the ASC’s Annual Meeting in Toronto this November. We look forward to your comments.

DRAFT

AMERICAN SOCIETY OF CRIMINOLOGY

I. PREAMBLE

(1) Criminology is a scientific discipline and criminologists subscribe to the general tenets of science and scholarship. They also recognize that the discovery, creation, transmission, and accumulation of knowledge in any scientific discipline involves ethical considerations at every stage.

(2) The Code of Ethics of the American Society of Criminology (ASC) is intended not only to assure ethical conduct by criminologists but to sensitize criminologists to ethical issues that may arise in their work, and to encourage criminologists to behave ethically. This Code of Ethics sets forth General Principles and Ethical Standards that underlie criminologists’ professional responsibilities and conduct, along with the Policies and Procedures for enforcing those principles and standards. The Code of Ethics should be used by criminologists as a guideline for determining ethical behavior in the context of their everyday professional activities.

(3) The General Principles contained in this Code express the values and ideals of the American Society of Criminology for ethical behavior in the context of the professional activities of criminologists. The general principles should be considered by criminologists in arriving at an ethical course of action in specific situations. They will form the basis of consideration for the Ethics Committee and the Executive Board of the ASC in determining whether ethical violations have occurred and whether sanctions should be applied.

(4) The Ethical Standards set forth enforceable rules for the behavior of criminologists in specific situations. Most of the Ethical Standards are written broadly, in order to apply to criminologists in varied roles, and the application of the ethical standards may vary by context. The Ethical Standards are not exhaustive--conduct that is not included in the Ethical Standards is not necessarily ethical or unethical. Ethical standards are not simply determined by whether an action is legally actionable; behavior that is technically legal may still be unethical. The Ethical Standards of the American Society of Criminology always should be interpreted in the context of the General Principles and in ways that enhance the credibility of and foster public trust in the profession of criminology.

(5) Membership in the American Society of Criminology commits members to adhere to the ASC Code of Ethics in the conduct of functions that are related to their profession as criminologists. Activities that are purely personal and not related to criminology as a profession are not subject to this Code of Ethics.

(6) Violations of the Code of Ethics may lead to sanctions associated with membership in the American Society of Criminology, including restrictions on or termination of that membership. Ignorance of the Code of Ethics does not constitute a defense against violations of the standards by ASC members.

II. GENERAL PRINCIPLES

(7) In their professional activities, criminologists are committed to enhancing the general well being of societies and of the individuals and groups within them. Criminology operates in the larger context of social justice. Thus criminologists have an obligation not to recreate forms of social injustice such as discrimination, oppression, or harassment in their own work. Criminologists also must be careful to avoid incompetent, unethical, or unscrupulous use of criminological knowledge.

(8) Criminologists recognize the great potential for harm that is associated with the study of crime and criminal justice. Although some of the work done by criminologists involves risk, criminologists do not knowingly place the well-being of any subject in jeopardy in their professional work. Criminologists fully apprise researchers, interviewers, and other staff of potential risks and only involve those who consent once this information has been disclosed.

(9) Criminologists are honest and open in their professional dealings with others. They are committed to free and open access to knowledge, to public discourse on findings, and to sharing sources of those findings whenever possible. They do not knowingly make false, misleading or deceptive statements in their professional roles. In particular, they do not knowingly present false, misleading or deceptive accounts of their own or other peoples’ professional work for any purpose or for any reason.

(10) Criminologists strive to maintain high levels of competence in their work. Such competence includes ongoing familiarity with current ideas, literature, and research in the subject area. Criminologists recognize the limits of their expertise and undertake those tasks for which they are qualified by education, training, and experience.

(11) Criminologists respect the rights, dignity and worth of all people. The worth of people gives them the right to demand that information about them remains confidential. In their work, criminologists are particularly careful to respect the rights, dignity and worth of crime victims and those accused or convicted of committing crimes, as well as of students and research subjects. They do not discriminate on the basis of age, gender, race, ethnicity, national origin, religion, sexual orientation, health or physical condition, or domestic status. They are sensitive to individual, cultural, and role differences among people(s). They acknowledge the rights of other people and groups to hold values, attitudes, and opinions that are different from their own.

(12) In some situations, the above general principles may seem to come into conflict with each other, in the sense that different principles may seem to call for different courses of action. The following Ethical Standards attempt to clarify the present thinking of the American Society of Criminology regarding ethical courses of actions in some of those situations. However, to some extent, each individual criminologist must evaluate the ethical requirements of a specific situation, actively seek out a range of alternatives, consult with other colleagues and experts on the matter, decide on an ethical course of action, and take responsibility for those actions.

III. ETHICAL STANDARDS

A. CRIMINOLOGISTS AS RESEARCHERS

Criminologists should strive to maintain objectivity and integrity in the conduct of criminological research.

(13) 1. Criminologists should adhere to the highest possible technical standards in their research.

(14) 2. Since individual criminologists vary in their research modes, skills, and experience, criminologists should always set forth ex ante the limits of their knowledge and the disciplinary and personal limitations that may affect the validity of their findings.

(15) 3. In presenting their work, criminologists are obliged to fully report their findings. They must not misrepresent the findings of their research or omit significant data. Details of their theories, methods, and research designs that might bear upon interpretations of research findings should be reported.

Draft of ASC Code of Ethics, June 1999
4. Criminologists must fully report all sources of financial support and other Sponsorship.

5. Criminologists should not make any commitments to respondents, individuals, groups or organizations unless there is full intention and ability to honor them.

6. Criminologists should provide adequate information, documentation, and citations concerning scales and other measures used in their research.

7. Criminologists must not accept grants, contracts or research assignments that appear likely to violate the principles enunciated in this Code, and should dissociate themselves from research when they discover a violation and are unable to correct it.

8. When financial support for a project has been accepted, criminologists must make every reasonable effort to complete the proposed work on schedule.

9. When a criminologist is involved in a joint project with others—including students, research assistants, and employees, there should be mutually accepted explicit agreements at the outset with respect to division of work, compensation, access to data, rights of authorship, and other rights and responsibilities. Such agreements may need to be modified as the project evolves and such modifications must be agreed upon jointly. Authorship of a completed article or product should reflect the relative contribution of authors in terms of data gathering, analysis, text, and original work and not the relative professional status of the authors (see also B1). Students should normally be the principal authors of any work that substantially derives from their thesis or dissertation.

10. Criminologists have the right to disseminate research findings, except those likely to cause harm to clients, collaborators or participants, those which violate formal or implied promises of confidentiality, or those which are proprietary under a formal or informal agreement.

11. The demands of science, public trust, and public policy demand that criminologists share data and documentation as a regular practice. After a criminologist's research findings have been published, the senior author of the publication is obligated to make available for reanalysis any data on which those findings were based, except where the sharing of such data (e.g., personalized information from ethnographic interviews) would comprise the confidentiality of individual subjects or groups. The responsibility to share such data is discharged by placing the data in a public archive or by making it available in a usable form to other researchers who request it. Parties requesting data are responsible to bear reasonable associated incremental costs. Parties providing data for reanalysis may only request compensation for actual costs of providing those data and may not profit from data sharing. In sharing data, criminologists must protect the confidentiality of subjects by removing personal identifiers and/or by other efforts to preserve privacy. Anticipation of sharing data should be built into research designs to facilitate both the protection of confidentiality and later data sharing. Parties who use data first gathered or analyzed by other researchers must explicitly acknowledge the role and contribution of the original researchers in all presentations and publications related to these data.

Disclosure and Respect of the Rights of Research Populations by Criminologists

12. Criminologists should not misuse their positions as professionals for fraudulent purposes or as a pretext for gathering intelligence for any organization or government.

13. Criminologists should not mislead respondents involved in a research project as to the purpose for which that research is being conducted.

14. Subjects of research are entitled to rights of personal anonymity unless they are waived.

15. Information about subjects obtained from records that are open to public scrutiny cannot be protected by guarantees of privacy or confidentiality unless linked to confidential information in a database.

16. Criminologists must comply with appropriate federal and institutional requirements pertaining to the conduct of their research. These requirements might include, but are not limited to, proper review and approval for research that involves human subjects and recommendations made by responsible committees concerning research subjects, materials, and procedures.

17. The process of conducting criminological research must not expose respondents to substantial risk of personal harm. Investigators must make every effort to ensure the safety and security of respondents and project staff. Informed consent must be obtained when the risks of research are greater than the risks of everyday life. All research must meet the human subjects requirements imposed by educational institutions and funding sources.

(30) 18. Criminologists should take culturally appropriate steps to secure informed consent and to avoid invasions of privacy. In addition, special actions will be necessary where the individuals studied are illiterate, are mentally ill, are minors, have low social status, are not comfortable or familiar with the language being used in the research, are under judicial or penal supervision, or are unfamiliar with social research and its constraints and purposes.

(31) 19. Criminologists should seek to anticipate potential threats to confidentiality. Such means as the removal of direct identifiers, the use of randomized responses, and other statistical solutions to problems of privacy should be used where appropriate. Care should be taken to ensure secure storage and maintenance of sensitive records. Criminologists are responsible for knowing how the Freedom of Information Act or other public disclosure laws may affect their ability to protect the confidentiality of research information and disclosures of subjects and must inform potential subjects in cases in which they are unable to guarantee confidentiality before they request subject consent.

(32) 20. Confidential information provided by research participants must be treated as such by criminologists even when this information enjoys no legal protection or privilege and legal force is applied.

(33) 21. The obligation to respect confidentiality also applies to members of research organizations (interviewers, coders, clerical staff, etc.) who have access to the information. It is the responsibility of administrators and chief investigators to instruct staff members on this point and to make every effort to insure that access to confidential information is restricted.

(34) 22. While generally adhering to the norm of acknowledging the contributions of all collaborators, criminologists should be sensitive to harm that may arise from disclosure and respect a collaborator’s wish or need for anonymity.

(35) 23. Study design and information gathering techniques should conform to regulations protecting the rights of human subjects, irrespective of source of funding or if there is funding, as outlined by the American Association of University Professors (AAUP) in Regulations Governing Research On Human Subjects: Academic Freedom and the Institutional Review Board, Academe, December 1981: 338-370.

B. PUBLICATIONS AND REVIEW PROCESS

Questions of Authorship and Acknowledgment for Criminologists

(36) 1. Criminologists should acknowledge persons who contribute to their research and their copyrighted publications. Claims and ordering of authorship and acknowledgments must accurately reflect the contributions of all main participants in the research and writing process, including students and junior staff, except in those cases where such ordering or acknowledgment is determined by an official protocol. Criminologists should not list as authors individuals who did not contribute substantially to the research and writing process.

(37) 2. Data and material taken verbatim from another person’s published or unpublished written work must be explicitly identified and referenced to its author. Citations to original ideas and data developed in the written work of others, even if not quoted verbatim, should be acknowledged. Use of methodological techniques such as instruments, scales, and statistical tools should be acknowledged.

Criminologists as Editors and Authors

(38) 3. Editors should continually review the fair application of standards without personal or ideological malice.

(39) 4. Journal editors must provide prompt decisions to authors of submitted manuscripts. They must monitor the work of associate editors and other referees so that delays are few and reviews are conscientious.

(40) 5. An editor’s commitment to publish an essay must be binding on the journal. Once accepted for publication, a manuscript should be published expeditiously.

(41) 6. Submission of a manuscript to a professional journal clearly grants that journal first claim to publish. Except where journal policies explicitly allow multiple submissions, a paper submitted to one English language journal may not be submitted to another journal published in English until after an official decision has been received from the first journal.

Criminologists in the Review Process

7. Criminologists should decline requests for reviews of work of others where strong conflicts of interest are involved, such as may occur when a person is asked to review work by teachers, friends, or colleagues for whom he or she feels an overriding sense of personal obligation, competition, or enmity, or when such requests cannot be fulfilled on time, or when the work is in an area the individual is unqualified to review.

8. Materials sent for review should be read consciously, carefully, and confidentially. Evaluations should be justified and explained clearly and be free from insulting or unnecessarily negative comments.

9. Criminologists who are asked to review manuscripts and books they have previously reviewed should make this fact known to the editor requesting review.

C. TEACHING AND SUPERVISION

Criminologists and the Rights of Students to Fair Treatment.

1. Criminologists do not harass on the basis of gender, race, age, national origin, religion, sexual orientation, health or physical condition, or domestic status.

2. When acting as administrators, criminologists should ensure that instructors are qualified to teach the courses to which they are assigned.

3. When acting as administrators, criminologists must work to ensure the equal and fair treatment of all students by adhering both in spirit and content to established equality of opportunity guidelines.

4. When acting as administrators, criminologists should provide graduate students explicit policies and criteria regarding conditions for admission into the graduate program, program requirements, financial assistance, employment, funding, evaluation, and possible dismissal.

5. When acting as teachers, criminologists should provide students an honest statement of the scope and perspective of their courses, clear expectations for student performance, and fair, timely and easily accessible evaluations of their work.

6. When acting as teachers or administrators, criminologists must refrain from disclosure of personal information concerning students where such information is not directly relevant to issues of professional competence.

7. When acting as teachers or administrators, criminologists should make all decisions concerning textbooks, course content, course requirements, and grading solely on the basis of professional criteria without regard for financial or other incentives that may directly benefit them.

Criminologists and Exploitation of Students and Others.

8. Criminologists must not coerce or obtain through manipulation personal or sexual favors or economic or professional advantages from any person, including students, respondents, clients, patients, research assistants, clerical staff, or colleagues. When acting as administrators or teachers, criminologists have the responsibility to understand the applicable laws and policies regarding sexual harassment and intimidation and ensure that students, colleagues, and others are free to register a complaint without concern for reprisals. Sexual harassment includes advances, solicitation, or requests for sexual favors from those over whom an individual exercises professional authority or with whom one attends classes or works. Harassment may consist of a single intense act or multiple persistent acts that are unwelcome, offensive, and/or that create a hostile work, school, or professional environment. Harassment can include written or electronic communications and nonverbal conduct such as touching, staring, or physically following an individual. It can also include verbal behavior that reflects excessive attention to physical appearance, especially after notice has been given that such attention is unwelcome.

9. Criminologists do not have sexual relationships with anyone over whom they exercised evaluative or supervisory power because of the potential for exploitation and harm. Exercising professional authority over someone with whom there has been a relationship should be avoided whenever possible because of the likelihood of impaired judgement and the difficulty in maintaining professional boundaries.

10. Criminologists must not let their personal animosities or intellectual differences deter students from contact with other professionals.
11. Criminologists have an explicit responsibility to acknowledge the contributions of students and to act on their behalf in setting forth agreements regarding authorship and other recognition.

12. Criminologists must not coerce or deceive students into serving as research subjects.

D. CRIMINOLOGISTS AS EVALUATORS, EMPLOYERS, AND EMPLOYEES

Criminologists and Hiring, Promotion, and Tenure Practices

1. Criminologists making decisions as to hiring, promotion and tenure should specify the requirements and communicate these requirements thoroughly to colleagues, employees, and prospective colleagues/employees. Good practice in hiring, promotion, and tenure decisions dictates that employers develop guidelines—including examples of well-prepared, successful tenure and promotion portfolios—and make these available to all candidates for review. Good practice further means that, when employees/candidates come up for review, internal and external reviewers include women and people of color. Decisions on hiring, tenure, and promotion must be based on professional criteria and include input that is sensitive to cultural diversity.

2. When acting as employers, criminologists should make every effort to ensure equal opportunity and fair treatment to all persons at all levels of employment.

3. When acting as employers, criminologists have the responsibility to be knowledgeable about fair employment codes, to help to create an atmosphere upholding fair employment practices, and to attempt to change any existing unfair practices within their organization or university.

4. All employees, including part-time employees, at all levels of employment, must be afforded the protection of fair employment practices and of due process through clear grievance procedures. It is the obligation of criminologists when acting as employers to communicate these procedures and to protect the rights of employees who initiate complaints. Criminologists acting as employers should also communicate standards of employment, and provide benefits and compensation.

Criminologists as Employees

5. When seeking employment, criminologists should provide prospective employers with accurate information on their relevant professional qualifications and experiences.

6. Criminologists accepting employment in academic, practice, and research settings should become aware of possible constraints on research and publication in those settings and should negotiate clear understandings about such conditions accompanying their research and scholarly activity. In satisfying their obligations to employers, criminologists in such settings must make every effort to adhere to the professional obligations contained in this Code.

7. When planning to resign a post, criminologists should provide their employers with adequate notice of intention to leave.

Criminologists as Sponsors in Employment Processes

8. In helping to secure employment for students and trainees, criminologists should make every attempt to avoid conflicts of interest. When a conflict of interest does arise, full disclosure of potential biases should be made to jobseekers.

E. CRIMINOLOGISTS AS EXPERTS

1. In situations in which criminologists are requested to render a professional judgement, they should accurately and fairly represent their areas and degrees of expertise.

2. In their roles as practitioners, researchers, teachers, and administrators, criminologists have an important social responsibility because their recommendations, decisions, and actions may alter the lives of others. They should be aware of the situations and pressures that might lead to the misuse of their influence and authority.

3. In these various roles, criminologists should also recognize that professional problems and conflicts may interfere with professional effectiveness. Criminologists should take steps to ensure that these conflicts do not produce deleterious results for clients, research participants, colleagues, students, and employees.

IV. POLICIES AND PROCEDURES
The Ethics Committee (EC) appointed by the Executive Board of the American Society of Criminology (ASC) shall have responsibility for interpreting and publicizing this Code, promoting ethical conduct among criminologists, receiving inquiries about violations of the Code, investigating complaints concerning the ethical conduct of members of the American Society of Criminology, mediating disputes to assist the parties in resolving grievances, holding hearings on charges of misconduct, and recommending actions to the Executive Board of the American Society of Criminology.

A. COMPOSITION OF THE ETHICS COMMITTEE OF THE ASC

1. The EC shall be a standing committee of the ASC.

2. The EC shall consist of seven members, in good standing, of the ASC.

3. The Executive Board of the ASC will select the membership and will make every effort to select a committee to reflect the diversity of the ASC membership.

4. In general, the voting members shall serve a three-year term. However, two of the six voting members of the first committee after ratification of this Code and procedure will be appointed for a one-year term, another two appointed for a two-year term, and the final two appointed for a three-year term. Each following year, two voting members will be selected by the Executive Board of the ASC to fill the vacated seats on the EC. The EC will elect a Chair from its membership each year. The first Chair of the EC after ratification will be chosen by the President Elect of the ASC. The Vice President of the ASC will serve on the EC as an ex-officio member.

5. Except as hereinafter provided, all formal policies and procedures of the EC shall be adopted at meetings—usually held in conjunction with the annual meeting of the ASC—at which a quorum is present (4 of the 7 voting members) by a majority vote of the members of the EC. These policies and procedures shall be written in a copy forwarded to the Executive Board of the ASC and be available upon request to any party of an EC action. Any action of the EC that could be taken at a meeting may be taken upon a vote in writing or by electronic communication.

6. Members of the EC with conflicts of interest in any case will so disclose and will be excluded from all EC deliberations and communications on that case. Deliberations and communications on that case will be held in confidence from any EC member with conflicts of interest until final actions have been taken on the case. In situations in which more than one of the 7 EC members declares a conflict of interest on a particular case, the other EC members will agree on a list of twice the number of people to be replaced and will forward this list to the Executive Board of the ASC. The Executive Board will select from this list and will appoint temporary members to serve only on issues related to the case in question until the matter is resolved or final action has been taken. In cases in which the Chair of the EC has a conflict of interest, the past Chair will serve as Chair only related to that matter until the matter is resolved or a new Chair begins his or her term of service.

B. COMMITTEE MANDATE

1. At any time, not necessarily in the context of the investigation of a particular case, the EC may advise the Executive Board of the ASC of its views of general ethical questions, which the Executive Board may elect to publish in appropriate publications of the Society.

2. The EC shall receive complaints of violations of the Code of Ethics and endeavor to resolve them by mediation, and if mediation is unsuccessful, proceed to a hearing. If after a hearing the EC determines that an ethical violation occurred, it will notify the parties within 30 days and will prepare a report for Executive Board within 60 days, which may or may not recommend one of the following actions:

   a. Apply no sanctions
   b. Private reprimand
   c. Public reprimand
   d. Denial of membership privileges (e.g. participation in meetings, editorial boards, etc.)
   e. Termination of membership.

C. OPERATING PROCEDURES

1. All inquiries about violations of the Code of Ethics should be directed to the Chair of the EC who shall determine whether the alleged violator is a member of the Society. A person making an inquiry will be sent a copy of the Code and requested to specify in writing the time, place, persons, and events constituting the alleged violation and cite the paragraph(s) of the Code alleged to have been violated. This formal complaint must be submitted within 60 days of the initial inquiry to the EC. Anonymous complaints will not be accepted. In the event that a complaint alleges conduct that is, or may be, subject to other legal or institutional proceedings, the EC may defer dealing with the complaint until conclusion of those proceedings.

(78) 2. After receipt of a formal and specific complaint, the Chair of the EC shall notify the Vice President of the ASC of the inquiry. The Chair, in conjunction with the Vice President, shall determine whether or not the complaint is in fact covered by the Code. If so determined, the complainant will be notified of the acceptance of the complaint by the EC. The Chair shall then communicate the entire complaint to the person or persons accused, together with a copy of the Code and an explanation of the composition and purpose of the EC (by registered mail with return receipt requested) and request a written response to the allegations within 60 days.

(79) 3. The EC shall consider complaints received from both members and non-members of the Society against members of the Society.

(80) 4. In order to be considered by the EC, complaints must be received within twelve (12) months of the discovery of the alleged violation or, if received later, must be certified for EC consideration by the ASC Executive Board. In no case will a complaint be considered if it is received more than five years after the alleged violation occurred or was discovered.

(81) 5. The Chair of the EC shall send copies of the complaint, responses, and supporting documents to all members of the EC for their deliberation within 30 days of the time the paperwork is complete.

(82) 6. The EC shall have 45 days for deliberation of a case once paperwork is received and shall decide by majority vote whether (1) the case should not be pursued further, (2) further information is needed, (3) mediation should be attempted, or (4) the case should come to a hearing. These deliberations can occur in the absence of a response by the accused if no response has been received within 90 days. In cases in which the vote is tied, the option that receives the fewest votes will be eliminated and the EC will revote on the remaining option(s). If a second tie occurs (or only two options were voted on in the first tie), the Vice President of the EC will vote to break the tie.

(a) If the EC decides there should be no further pursuit of the case, the Chair shall communicate the decision and the reasons to the Vice President of the ASC, who shall notify all parties.

(b) If the EC decides that further investigation of the case is necessary, it may direct inquiries to either the complainant or the alleged violator(s), with copies of the request and responses thereto in every instance to the other party.

(c) If the EC decides to attempt mediation, the Vice President of the ASC shall appoint a mediator from among members of the Society, who is acceptable to both parties. The mediator shall in due course notify the EC that the matter has been resolved by written agreement of the parties or, if no such resolution has been achieved, the mediator may (1) recommend that the matter be dropped, or (2) recommend that the case proceed to a hearing.

(d) If the EC decides that a hearing is appropriate, either upon the recommendation of a mediator, or upon its own initiative, then the Vice President of the ASC and the Chair of the EC shall appoint a Hearing Subcommittee of the EC, consisting of the Chair and at least two members, who shall be responsible for conducting the hearing. All members of the EC will be notified that a hearing will take place and which members have been selected to form the Hearing Subcommittee. All members of the Hearing Subcommittee will sign a statement that there is no conflict of interest with any party involved in the complaint. The Chair of the EC will replace any member for whom a conflict of interest is indicated. The Vice President of the ASC and the Chair of the EC also shall advise the complainant and the alleged violator that a hearing will be conducted, giving at least 90 days notice of time and place which shall be convenient, if possible, to all parties. The alleged violator(s), as well as the complainant, shall be advised of his/her rights to introduce witnesses and evidence in their behalf, to cross-examine witnesses, and to have the assistance of professional or other counsel at the hearing. All documentary evidence to be introduced by the complainant and the names of all witnesses to be offered in support of the charges shall be supplied to the alleged violator at least 60 days prior to the hearing. If the alleged violator(s) refuses to participate in the hearing, the EC may continue without their participation. An alleged violator who refuses to participate in the process may be denied subsequent membership privileges in the ASC and will be so notified by the Vice President of the ASC. This denial of benefits is not to be construed as a finding of guilt but as a penalty for not abiding by the procedures set forth in the Code of Ethics ASC members have agreed to accept.

(87)  e. At the hearing, the evidence in support of the complaint shall be presented by the complainant, by the complainant’s lawyer or by a representative of the ASC, and the alleged violator(s) or the alleged violator(s) lawyer shall have full opportunity to answer the charges. The EC may introduce its own witnesses in order to answer the factual questions.

(88)  f. The EC shall record the proceedings of the hearing. The alleged violator(s) or his or her representative(s) shall have the right to be present either in person or, with the consent of all parties, through a conference telephone hook-up at all evidential sessions of the hearing and to have a transcript at cost. Every attempt will be made to conduct hearings at one time and place so as to reduce travel costs of the parties involved in the dispute.

(89)  g. Unless the alleged violator(s) requests and the EC grants a public hearing, the hearing of the complaint shall be private. All persons except those necessary for the conduct of the hearing shall be excluded and the recording and all transcripts from the proceedings shall be held in strict confidence by the EC (see C7).

(90)  h. At the conclusion of the introduction of all evidence, the alleged violator(s), counsel for the alleged violator(s), or both shall be permitted to argue against or in mitigation of the complaint.

(91)  i. Thereafter, the EC shall conduct its further discussions in private, either in person or through telephone conference calls.

(92)  j. If the EC finds that no ethical violation has occurred, the parties, organizations and individuals contacted during the investigation shall be so notified by the Vice President of the ASC and the case closed. The Vice President of the ASC shall vote only to break a tie.

(93)  k. If the Committee finds that an ethical violation has occurred, it shall prepare a report of the case summarizing its findings and recommendations. A copy of that report shall be sent to the alleged violator(s) and complainant, who shall both have an opportunity to prepare written comments within 30 days as part of the appeals process.

(94)  l. When the EC has followed the procedure set forth in paragraph “k”, the findings shall be automatically appealed to a Review Board composed of three past Presidents of the Society appointed by the current President. The Review Board shall consider the written record alone and, by majority vote, shall recommend to the Executive Board that the findings of the committee be upheld, reversed, or modified. Copies of the recommendations of the Review Board shall be sent to the complainant, the alleged violator(s), and the EC, all of whom shall have 30 days to comment in writing before the recommendation is forwarded to the Executive Board.

(95)  m. The Executive Board, after examination of the EC’s and the Review Board’s recommendations and comments thereto, shall make a final determination of the case on behalf of the Society and either dismiss the case or take appropriate action.

(96)  7. The filing of the complaint and all proceedings of the ASC’s EC, mediator(s), ASC VICE President and/or President, Executive Board, and Review Board concerning a complaint shall be kept confidential except when compelled by a valid subpoena, by a final court order, or by the request of the alleged violator. Initiation of legal action against the ASC or its officers or employees shall constitute a waiver of confidentiality by the person initiating such action.

(97)  8. At the discretion of the EC (as per IV B2, above) and the Executive Board of the ASC, in cases in which an ethical complaint results in a disciplinary action, the final action of the ASC may be made public by publication in The Criminologist of the name of the party, the substantiated violation, and the action taken.

(98)  9. At the conclusion of each term of service, the Chair of the EC shall report to the Executive Board of the ASC the number of referrals received with the category of the complaint(s), the number accepted for deliberation and the category of those complaints, and any final actions taken on cases during that Chair’s term of service. Such a report will not include identification of the parties. This report will then be published in The Criminologist so that ASC members remain aware of the process and informed as to how the process is being used.

This code and these procedures were developed using the American Sociological Association’s Code of Ethics with its permission.

Draft of ASC Code of Ethics, June 1999

ASC EXECUTIVE BOARD MEETING

Royal York Hotel, Toronto, Ontario Canada
Board meeting: Friday, April 20 – 3:00 and Saturday, May 1 – 8:30

Meeting brought to order by President David Farrington, 3:00 pm. Attending: David Farrington, President, Margaret Zahn, Past President, Roland Chilton, President Elect, Robert J. Bursik, Jr., Editor, Criminology, Doris MacKenzie, Executive Secretary, Chris Eskridge, Treasurer, Bob Crutchfield, Vice President, Ruth Peterson, Vice President Elect, Executive Counselors Julie Horney (2000), Candace McCoy (2000), Cathy Widom (2001), Steve Messner (2001), Lynne Goodstein (1999) and visitors Simon Singer, Margaret Beare, Ron Huff, Deborah Baskin.

The minutes of the November 14, 1998 Executive Board meeting were accepted. Treasurer’s report indicated that ASC is in good financial shape and all Divisions have assets. In the future we may need to buy more space on the web and we may want to change the ASC internet address in the future if it is not too disruptive. Routine auditing of the books will continue. Ruth Peterson and Ron Huff reviewed the search process for an Executive Director. A total of approximately 50 applications were received for the position. The committee reviewed the applications and attempted to find a pool of candidates to interview. However, overall they did not identify any candidate who was acceptable to all members of the committee. There was a discussion about other alternatives among the committee and between other members of the ASC Board. Chris Eskridge’s name came up and there was consensus that if he was willing he would be the best candidate. Chris Eskridge withdrew from the search committee. He submitted a proposal for the Board to consider. The committee recommends that we hire Chris half-time under the terms of the proposal he submitted to the Board. Suggestion that we should develop a formal contract defining exactly the terms of the commitment. Also, add some type of procedure for evaluation so he will know what we expect him to do as well as defining merit pay raises.

Previously there have been discussions about moving the office to Washington, DC. Board members recognized that this decision will not move the office to Washington. For the time being we will keep the office in Columbus and Chris will travel to Columbus to work with the staff there. Motion to ask Committee to draw up a contract for Chris for a three year period beginning June 1999, this will be reviewed by the ASC lawyer, and the President will enter into the contract with Chris Eskridge and the University of Nebraska at Omaha. Motion accepted. Final Comments on 1998 Washington, DC Meeting (Margaret Zahn). The luncheon plenaries as well as the late afternoon plenaries were successful. The total profit from the meeting was $60,000. The recommendations of the Award Committee were accepted: Larry Sherman, Sutherland Award, Hans-Jurgen Kerner, Sellin-Glueck Award, J. David Hawkins, August Vollmer Award, Sally Simpson, Block Award. Discussion on the appropriate procedures for the Awards Committee to follow. The Board requested Chris Eskridge, as the new Executive Director, to contact all committee heads to explain their duties and requirements. It was noted that, in general, the number of nominations are relatively low. In light of the report of the Fellows Committee, the following person were appointed ASC Fellows: David Bayley, Daniel Naging, Cornae Richey, Mann, Michael Tonry. The Board accepted the Ruth Cavan Young Scholars Award Committee’s recommendation of Richard A. Leo as the Young Scholar. Decision to table Minority Fellowships until more information is obtained from Julius Debro. The Michael Hindelang Book Award Committee and the Student Awards Committee reports indicated that deadlines are not until later so no decisions could be made by the Board. The Board decided to eliminate the Advertising Committee because the duties would be taken over by the Executive Director. The Constitution and By-Laws Committee and the Executive Director were asked to specify the responsibilities of all committees. After the discussion, the recommended Committee Assignments for 1999-2000 were accepted. Simon Singer/Margaret Beare reviewed the progress of the 1999 Annual Meeting. Some roundtables will be used for panels with low predicted attendance. We expect approximately 3,000 attendees. Criminology Report by Robert J. Bursik, Jr. request for an annual increase of $3,400 for a total budget of $18,900. Motion to increase amount to University accepted. Motion to make changes to Editorial Advisory Board accepted. Abstracts will be put on the web. The new Executive Director may want to add new sections/articles to The Criminologist. Suggestion that Marge Zahn write a short summary of the success of the last Annual Meeting for The Criminologist. David Farrington will ask the COSSA representative and Division Chairs to put short articles in about their activities. Mid-year meeting, April 28-29, 2000 in San Francisco. The Board voted to start the procedure to eliminate the Treasurer position and combine the Treasurer and Executive Secretary position because we will have an Executive Director who will take over much of the Treasurer’s work. Motion carried. We received several write-in votes for Jeffrey Ross’ name to be added to the election ballot but he did not get the needed votes. Two percent of the members in good standing (excluding students) must nominate someone if they are going to be put on the ballot. The Board voted that candidates have a maximum of one month to send their personal statement to ASC office, if their statement does not arrive at the office before this time the slate goes out to the membership without the statement. At present, we have approximately half the members voting in the elections. Chris Eskridge and Sarah Hall will be responsible for counting the votes. Two panels were submitted to the AAAS Annual Meeting. The new ASC representative will be Colin Loftin. The Constitution and By-Laws Committee report indicated that the last update of the Policies and Procedures Manual was 1992. The Board voted to provide additional finances to the ASC office to assist in organizing previous decisions by the Board regarding committees and amalgamating these in policies and procedure manual. Another priority is to review the policies and procedures and redefine tasks in light of our new hiring of Executive Director. Ron Huff reviewed the options for the 2006 meeting (Los Angeles, Phoenix, San Antonio, San Diego, San Francisco, Santa Fe, Seattle, Vancouver). Roland Chilton as next president must be ready to complete contract negotiations and sign the contract in December, 1999. Motion to continue considering San Francisco, Los Angeles and Vancouver, accepted. David Farrington and Betsy Stanko sent a letter to international attendees of ASC Annual Meeting in 1998 to ask them to consider becoming members of ASC. David Farrington invited BSC president to formally attend ASC with fees waived. We will extend this privilege to the President of the International Society of Criminology and the Australian and New Zealand Society of Criminology, and arrange a Presidents session at the Annual Meeting to foster international collaboration. Sarah Hall and Chris Eskridge are working on a new information/application brochure. This will be sent to attendees of the annual meeting. Chris Eskridge is attempting to get money for a band for the Student Reception. The Ethical Issues Committee is working on a revised Code of Ethics. After comments by the Board, the code will be sent to The Criminologist to give members a chance to comment. A major session in a Town meeting format will be scheduled at the Annual Meeting to encourage comments. The Code of Ethics will be put to a vote of the membership in Spring 2000. A proposal for a Division on Sentencing and Corrections was submitted to the Board with approximately 120 names. A motion was made to approve the petition for the establishment of a Division on Sentencing and Corrections. Motion seconded, and accepted. Requested Steering Committee for Proposal submit supplementary material and a Division Constitution and By-Laws to the Board. Request that Steering Committee submit proposed Division’s Constitution and By-Laws to the Constitution and By-Laws Committee to be reviewed prior to the Board meeting. Request that materials be submitted in sufficient time to be reviewed by the Board prior to the Board meeting. Meeting of the Division will be scheduled at the Annual Meeting. The Board approved the Division on People of Color and Crime’s request to change in the name of the Distinguished Scholar Award to the Dr. Coramae Richey Mann Award. For media representatives, motion to continue to provide free conference materials, a press office, and the possibility of using our meeting rooms at times when we will not be using them (continue with previous years policies) was accepted. The Board asked Julie Horney to obtain more information on the Media Alert Web site. Calls from the media will be forwarded to Chris Eskridge and he will recommend members to contact. It would be helpful if we form a data base of members interests so people can search the web on names and also on interests. The Oral History Project was reviewed and discussed. Some of the tapes may deteriorate if we don’t take action. It is possible that NII may be able to process the tapes in a partnership with ASC and ACJS. Some urgency to this for various reasons. Motion that David Farrington, Fred Adler, Eve Buzawa and possibly an ACJS representative form a committee to develop a proposal to submit to NII to inquire about (1) copyrights, (2) saving the existing tapes in a form that can be used by others in the future, (3) editing these tapes and (4) possibly continuing the project with new interviews being sensitive to the need for diversity and involvement of Criminologists in decision making (possibility of a criminologist consultant during editing of the tape). Motion seconded and accepted. The Board endorsed the Decade of Behavior proposal. A motion was made to investigate the possibility that ASC would be invited to joint the Council of Scientific Society Presidents. A letter from one of our members describing a copyright dispute was reviewed. The Board requested David Farrington to respond to the letter saying we do not have any procedures for publishing this letter and to tell the author that we are currently developing a formal code of ethics for the organization and he might want to submit this letter to the Ethics Committee. Strategic plans for the ASC for the next five years will be developed by a committee of ASC Vice Presidents (current, past, future). Motion for a strategic plan committee made up of vice presidents, seconded and accepted. Next Board meetings: Tuesday, November 16 (3-7) and Saturday, November 20 (1:30-5:00) in Toronto.
CALL FOR SUBMISSIONS

PERF and NIJ Seek Studies for New Publication

The Police Executive Research Forum (PERF) and National Institute of Justice Crime Mapping Research Center (CMRC) are soliciting submissions for a proposed book titled Crime Mapping Case Studies: Successes in the Field, Volume 2. The book will be a collaborative effort between PERF and the CMRC. It will highlight various criminal justice agencies' successes with applying mapping to their problem solving, prevention and enforcement efforts. The book will encourage agencies' use of crime mapping and offer ideas on various ways to apply geographic information systems (GIS) and mapping. Readers will have the opportunity to form their own opinions about the efficacy and applicability of these efforts to their jurisdictions.

Any employee, contractor or volunteer from a law enforcement or criminal justice agency should submit case studies. Agencies may submit as many case studies as they wish. Individuals who submit case studies will be recognized, but not listed as authors of the volume. Each case study will include a contact person and the name of the agency that conducted the work. In addition to the written case study, please include up to four examples of maps and/or charts that show the GIS role in the project. These figures must be black and white or grayscale and in a standard graphics format (TIFF, EPS, BMP, PICT, etc.). Though the case study book will not be in color, you are encouraged to submit additional color versions of your maps for display on the CMRC web site.

Deadline: Submit two hard copies of each case study to Nancy LaVigne, Crime Mapping Research Center, National Institute of Justice, 810 7th Street, NW, Washington, DC 20531 by August 15, 1999, or if you want to make a submission via e-mail, attach any examples electronically and send your case studies to cmrc@oij.usdoj.gov. All submissions should include the following contact information: name, position/rank, agency name, address, phone, fax and e-mail.

CALL FOR PAPERS

ANTHOLOGY OF WORK ON WHITE-COLLAR CRIME

Neal Shover and John P. Wright are preparing an anthology of work on white-collar crime to be published by Oxford University Press in 2000. The readings are organized using a rational-choice theoretical approach. It will emphasize the nature and distribution of white-collar criminal opportunities and controls as well as criminal decision making. There will be sections also on the victims and changing nature of white-collar crime. Most papers included in the book will be reprinted, but some original papers will be included also. Anyone who has a completed or nearly completed paper that conceivably would fit a rational-choice interpretation of white collar crime is invited to send it to the editors for consideration. Send papers to: John P. Wright, Department of Criminal Justice and Criminology, East Tennessee State University, Box 70555, Johnson City, TN 37614-07555

ALLEN E. Liska

Al Liska, Professor of Sociology at the University at Albany-SUNY, died on December 17, 1998, after waging a long and courageous battle against renal cell carcinoma.

Born in Milwaukee, Wisconsin on May 15, 1940, Al earned his BS from the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee, his MA from Marquette University, and his Ph.D. from the University of Wisconsin-Madison. He began his academic career at Central Michigan University, where he taught from 1968 through 1976. In 1977, Al joined the Department of Sociology at the University at Albany where he was promoted to Full Professor in 1982, and served as department chair from 1985 to 1988. He was a visiting professor at the University of Belgrade, Yugoslavia in 1983 and at Nankai University (China) in 1988.

Throughout his career, Al made significant contributions to two specialty areas—crime/deviance and social psychology. In the sociology of crime/deviance, he conducted influential research on social control, the fear of crime, and the functions of crime in society. In social psychology, he made significant contributions to the literature on the interrelationships between attitudes and behaviors. Working within these two areas, Al compiled a distinguished record of scholarship. He published over 50 articles, comments, and reviews in the professional journals. As testimony to the high quality of his work, many of Al’s articles appeared in the very best journals in the field (e.g., American Journal of Sociology, American Sociological Review, Criminology, Social Forces, and Social Psychology Quarterly). In addition, he published three edited books and a highly regarded textbook on crime and deviance, Perspectives on Crime and Deviance (1999, Prentice Hall). Recently published in its third edition, Al’s textbook has become a staple in upper-level undergraduate and graduate classes.

Al was also active in professional societies within Sociology and Criminology. He was elected and served as Chair of the American Sociological Association's Section on Crime, Law, and Deviance. He had the honor of being elected to the Councils of both the Section on Crime, Law, and Deviance and the Social Psychology Section. He was also elected and served on the American Society of Criminology’s Executive Board from 1992 through 1995. At the most recent annual meeting of the American Society of Criminology, Al was honored by being named a Fellow. His illness forced him to decline the nomination for the presidency of ASC.

Al also played a very important role in the training of new researchers in his field. He directed more Ph.D. students than any other member of our department, and co-authored extensively with his students.

But, professional activities and accomplishments were only one dimension of Al Liska’s life. He played with as much enthusiasm and enjoyment as he worked. During his leisure time, Al loved to race with his wife, Jean, in their sailboat on Saratoga Lake, and to walk along the beaches of Maine or Florida. He especially liked to watch the sunsets from one of his favorite vacation spots, Fort Myers Beach, Florida. Al also took full advantage of the summer entertainment at the Saratoga Performing Arts Center, where he enjoyed the ballet and symphony.

Al is survived by his wife, Jean Liska; his daughters Nicole Liska and Stefanie La Page; a brother, Terrence Liska; and three grandchildren, Perry Marshal, Chelsey Lynn, and Allen Michael La Page. In addition, he will be sorely missed by his many friends and colleagues in our department, and from around the country.

Richard B. Felson, Steven F. Messner, and Stewart E. Tolnay, University at Albany-SUNY.
IN MEMORY OF:

DR. BRYANT FEATHER

Dr. Bryant Feather founded the Department of Criminal Justice at Chicago State University in 1974 and served as its chairman until 1990. Dr. Feather was active in a number of national, regional and local criminal justice organizations. He was most noted for mentoring several thousand criminal justice students who graduated with B.S. or M.S. degrees from Chicago State.

With a background in Psychology (Ph.D., 1961, University of Michigan), Dr. Feather was well-known in the Chicagoland area due to his prominent mass media coverage. He had, for example, taught courses via Chicago’s WTTW Channel 11 and was frequently a guest on other radio and TV programs.

Dr. Feather retired in 1990 and moved to Michigan to be closer to family members. Dr. Feather died in Kalamazoo, Michigan, on May 7, 1999 of congestive heart failure. As a man of integrity, he will surely be missed by many, but forgotten by few who knew him.

NEW M.A. IN FORENSIC PSYCHOLOGY
THE SAGE COLLEGES OF TROY, NEW YORK

The Sage Colleges of Troy, New York, announces the approval of a M.A. in Forensic Psychology. This new program draws upon the fields of psychology, criminology, and criminal justice to address many important clinical and legal concerns of offenders with mental illnesses. The 45 credit M.A. curriculum includes the following: a forensic core, methods and assessment, internships, a final project, and psychology support courses. Students entering the program are expected to have an undergraduate or graduate courses in criminal justice, statistics, and psychology. For more information about the program, contact Dr. Connie Frazedr, Dean of the Sage Graduate School, Troy, NY 12180 or frazeec@sage.edu.

NEW APPLIED DEGREE IN JUSTICE STUDIES APPROVED FOR MOUNT ROYAL COLLEGE

Calgary, Alberta — Mount Royal College will offer a new applied degree in Justice Studies to begin with a bridging program in the fall of 1999. The Applied Degree in Justice Studies is meeting a workplace need for highly trained graduates who could go into policing, corrections, adult probation or security. Mount Royal also received approval for an Applied Degree in Child Studies to begin in the fall of 2000. Mount Royal already offers an Applied Degree in Interior Design, an Applied Degree in Communications with streams in Technical Writing, Public Relations and Journalism, and an Applied Degree in Small Business and Entrepreneurship. Students interested in applying for the Applied Degree in Justice Studies should contact the Criminology Department at 403-240-6379. For more information, contact: Maura Hamill, Marketing Communications Coordinator, 403-240-6622.

CALL FOR PAPERS
INTERNATIONAL SEMINAR ON “VIOLENCE AND ADOLESCENCE”

November 15-18, 1999 - Jerusalem, Israel

The International Seminar on Violence and Adolescence, organized by The Israel Society for Adolescent Health in association with The Adolescent Committee of The World Federation for Mental Health (WFMH), will explore and address the factors that determine the presence of violence, preventive measure to reduce its incidence and the provision of mental health care for the victims of violence.
