MAKING A CASE FOR THE STUDY OF PUBLIC SECURITY IN CRIMINAL JUSTICE

LESLIE W. KENNEDY and ALISON J. SHERLEY
Rutgers School of Criminal Justice

Introduction

This paper will examine the need to develop a concentration within the field of criminal justice that looks at the broad area of public security, as distinct from the study of policing, administration of justice, criminogenesis and corrections. Public security is also broader than the study of terrorism alone, which Rich Rosenfeld (2002) advocated that criminologists add to their research interests. Criminal justice schools are developing course work and recruiting faculty in this area, but what underlying reasons justify the development of this area of study and does it fit comfortably within the field of criminal justice?

The most direct origin of this interest come from the broadening of agency response beyond conventional approaches to crime reduction to a much wider focus on risk coming from hazards such as terrorism, cyber-attack, biological outbreak, economic upheaval, and environmental disaster (an all-hazards approach). While prompted by the urgent efforts that have developed around counter-terrorism, programs have focused on responding to all threats in securing commerce, communities, and health. This type of interagency thinking is not uncommon in criminal justice. However, the notion that crime (or public security threat) has consequences beyond the criminal justice realm, which should be a consideration in defining response, is not a centrally located idea in the discipline.

Questions that need to be addressed as we move forward on this initiative include:

1. What do we mean by “public security”? What are the different disciplinary traditions from which we can draw as we develop the parameters of this area of study?

Generally, we can define public security as the assessment of risk in preventing and responding to events in an all-hazards environment. Thus, in addition to addressing hazardous events such as terrorism, public security encompasses, more or less, any threats to public well-being. In today’s “risk society”, as defined by Beck (1992) and others (Giddens, 1990, 2003), we are increasingly preoccupied with securing both public and private sectors. The move towards a “risk management”, intelligence-led, approach in policing has redirected attention from strict offender-based policing strategies to reducing opportunities for attack, predicting and managing future risks, and intervention. With rapid growth in available funds for counter-terrorism, local police are much more directly involved with state and federal agencies in addressing security concerns, increasingly called upon to provide intelligence related to national security. The strategies that have emerged out of these collaborations are distinctly different from crime response (although there is a tenuous tie to the efforts made to counter organized crime).

The challenges to criminal justice practice from public security threats involve identifying likely offenders, developing prevention strategies, and involving the public in enhancing their own security. In these tasks, the police are in-increasingly included in discussions and preparations with emergency services organizations, health specialists, private and corporate security, physical planners, school security officers and community planners. In addition, a new role for agencies includes a focus on national and international levels, an emphasis that has long been promoted in studies of organized and transnational crime. A national security component of this approach (drawn from strategic studies disciplines) targets the role that intelligence plays in managing security.

2. What are the different components of public security? How do we frame the issues in a way that coincides with our disciplinary background?

In the U.S, at least, terror threats were historically much more likely to come from domestic sources. With 9-11, the framing of threats as originating outside the nation has meant increased control of the flow of people, money, and weapons at border points. Still, the central concern about public security remains broadly domestic. This is true as a co-mingling of threats other than terrorism can create extensive damage, a point made clear from the rapid spread of SARS in Canada and the concern in the U.S. about anthrax distributed throughout the mail.

As with the crime problem, the impetus in responding to these threats appears to come from national initiatives. However, notwithstanding the national thrust of the war on crime, law enforcement response to crime is still primarily local. With an understanding of how public security matures, it is likely that the local concerns will be more clearly articulated and common themes will emerge in the development of programs of prevention and response.

3. How does the study of crime fit into the model of public security?

Some in criminal justice circles argue that terrorism ties directly to common crime. The detection of terrorists, then, is most likely to occur through the unraveling of financial scams, identity thefts, and immigration violations. Super vigilance on the part of the police in identifying individuals likely to be doing surveillance on potential targets and breaking up radical groups all will contribute to the curtailment of terrorism.

This model of common crime may help to identify terrorists but is less useful in looking at other threats from a public security perspective. At the same time, the intelligence that police use to identify crime problems can be adopted to provide early warning and prevention strategies for non-crime based hazards. Further, increased emphasis has been placed on adapting crime prevention strategies, such as environmental design and community policing initiatives, to identify and harden likely targets for attack.

It is also evident that a long history of research on community reactions to crime, including an extensive literature on fear of crime, has relevance in understanding how the public relates to public security concerns. Current interest in context-based analyses, as well as crime event analyses, also ties into the study of public security through the examination of dynamic and shifting contexts and situations.

4. There is an increasing interest in risk management as part of public security. Is this consistent with its application in crime analysis or are there new innovations that we need to use in the more broadly based study of public security?

The risk society model discussed above is much more in line with the demands of security intelligence and prevention than is conventional offender based crime control. It supposes that we are preoccupied with the future and its security. Security depends on a balance of trust and acceptable risk. Individuals rely on and trust 'experts', in this case, various levels of officials, to provide relevant and accurate information. Without this trust, there is a lack of security. The future-oriented direction and the management of an abundance of information in the name of security allows for a predictive stance to be taken with various risks, attempting to address them before they become a threat.

The risk society model comes at a price, however, as it requires that we develop predictive models for identifying high risk targets and high risk offenders which may unfairly target certain groups or individuals. Also, problems arise related to denial of privacy, preemptive surveillance, and other challenges to civil liberties. New challenges arise for criminal justice researchers who have developed good relations with police in obtaining crime data, but are blocked from information that they can use in research about hazards (sometimes deemed classified or strategically sensitive). In addition, the data we use to provide risk assessment are not always accurate nor are the data collectors always accountable for error correction or appeal.

Borrowing from other forms of crime analysis allows us to cross disciplinary boundaries in studying public security. The growth in spatial analysis in the study of crime patterns has prepared us with the tools that complement those used in public health, for example, where epidemiological analysis is applied in tracking the spread of disease.
5. How do we accommodate the interests across sectors, e.g., health, corporate security, and law enforcement? Are there commonalities and differences that play throughout these areas?

Increasingly, criminal justice schools are offering certificate programs and concentrations in areas that require multiple skills, for example, forensic science relies on the marriage of biology and chemistry with criminal justice. Corporate security studies are benefiting from the training being offered in tandem by criminal justice and business schools. Emergency response programs are learning from administrative science departments, as well as public, health departments. It is in the core areas of these cross-disciplinary efforts that some sort of common ground needs to be established. But, what is common to these areas that they can contribute to a public security curriculum? Included in this list would be problem identification, pattern analysis, predictive modeling, prevention, and deterrence. Further, we cannot ignore cultural and societal forces that impinge on risk and influence the ways in which we perceive security.

6. What are the products of public security?

We can study these in terms of intended consequences (e.g. greater accountability in agencies for prevention) and unintended (e.g. lowered levels of civil liberties or greater integration of data sets across sectors allowing for more informed strategic decision making). There are products that are specifically the object of plans to make the public safe and secure. Then, there are those that come as a result of other actions and may have positive or negative effects. For example, the need for better information about the public means that documentation management for individuals is made more secure but at the same time it may open opportunities for greater personal loss of privacy. Moreover, while a public security event may be local, in the sense that it is site-specific, the repercussions felt by a single event are widespread. Take, for example, the speed at which the effects of an event may be felt in the transportation and trade industries, interruptions in business supply-chains.

7. What types of research opportunities will emerge from this area of study?

As stated, the study of public security extends beyond crime analysis and analysis of the offender to include areas such as corporate, health, all-hazards response, and national security. Research could target corporate response and risk management, security management, risk/threat analysis, and crisis management. Research in areas of national security may include terrorism event analysis, identity protection, border security, globalization of crime, political aspects of crime and terror, and the legal consequences of heightened security. The study of crime and its relation to health and health consequences, the public response and risk management of health security events such as that experienced with the SARS epidemic are also important areas to be addressed. Opportunities for interdisciplinary collaboration are clear, including collaboration between criminal justice and medicine, nursing, law, political science, geography and engineering, to name a few.

8. What are the future developments in the field? Is this area likely to be fad?

It seems unlikely to be the case that this is a passing fad given the strong imperatives to manage public security in a more integrated fashion. With globalization and technological advances, security threats will continue to evolve, and the management of these threats will become more complicated as state and national borders become less concrete. The involvement of intelligence of all sorts present a major shift in the ways in which agencies incorporate information into their decision-making. Criminal justice programs need to be on the leading edge of these initiatives. The hard lessons we learned in dealing with the problems of crime prevention and deterrence should not be lost in the rapid development of responses being developed around public security. The field of criminal justice has been instrumental in working with police in refining their approaches to controlling crime, both through fact-based and conceptually sound practices. The same contribution awaits the field in the area of public security if we are willing to take on this task.

Master’s of Advanced Study Degree in Criminology, Law and Society
Announces First Graduating Class

At the June Commencement Ceremony, the School of Social Ecology’s groundbreaking Master’s of Advanced Study (MAS) Program will have 16 students in its first graduating class. The MAS in Criminology, Law and Society is unique in that it is the first degree program offered online in the entire UC system.

The degree program reflects the vision and hard work of several dedicated faculty, including founding Director Henry Pontell, current Faculty Adviser John Dombrink, and Department Chair Valerie Jenness. Also involved have been Professors Arnold Binder, Kitty Calavita, Paul Jesilow, Joan Petersilia, Bill Thompson, George Tita, and Diego Vigil. In addition, Professors Ross Conner of Planning, Policy and Design, and Calvin Morrill of Sociology have developed and are teaching classes.

The newly minted grads are:

   Amy Bradshaw, Supreme Court of Virginia
   Christina Carich, U.S. Citizenship and Immigration
   Christopher Fitzgerald, U.S. Air Force
   Bobbie Jo Garza, Senior Investigator, District Attorney’s Office, Riverside County (CA)
   Melissa Hsieh, Google
   Juan Medrano, Orange County Probation (CA)
   Sgt. Thomas “Clancy” Mitchell, California Highway Patrol
   Pamela Newcomb, Supervising Probation Officer, Orange County Probation (CA)
   Meghan O’Donnell, freelance producer and assistant
   Sgt. James Olson, Cypress Police Department (CA)
   Officer Paul Pedersen, Tracy Police Department (CA)

We Need Old Journals...Never To Be Returned

As many of you are aware, ASC has entered into an agreement with Blackwell to not only publish Criminology, and Criminology & Public Policy, but to also digitalize our journals. We scoured the ASC archives for extra copies of old journals and sent them on to Blackwell to be scanned. Unfortunately, we only have one copy of a number of issues. The digitalization/scanning process destroys journals, and we do not feel we can send/destroy our only print copy. So, this is a generic request to the ASC membership at large.... we would really appreciate it if some could donate any the following issues "to science," so that they can be digitalized. The needed issues are as follows

Criminology
Vol. 1-7; all issues
Vol. 8 #1
Vol. 9 #1,4
Vol. 10 #1-4
Vol. 11 #1,2,3
Vol. 12 #1-4

The Ultimate Corrections Textbook

Corrections: Past, Present and Future
Jeanne Stinichcomb, Ph.D.
Your search for the ideal introduction to corrections textbook ends here. Corrections: Past, Present and Future is the most comprehensive text available anywhere. Stinchcomb provides students with a realistic look at the many facets of the nation's correctional system. The book begins by examining how the correctional system was created and how it developed into its current form. After establishing these concepts, the book turns to the current system and its make-up. Areas examined include: services, practices, and institutions; custody, treatment and release; special populations; juvenile corrections; staff, liability; current trends; and future issues. An instructor's manual is available for professors who adopt the textbook. (2005, 650 pages, index, 1-56991-218-1)

DIVISION OF CRITICAL CRIMINOLOGY

CALL FOR PAPERS – CRITICAL CRIMINOLOGY: AN INTERNATIONAL JOURNAL

Critical Criminology is the official journal of the Division of Critical Criminology in the American Society of Criminology. The journal deals with questions of social, political and economic justice. Critical Criminology is for academics and researchers with an interest in anarchistic, cultural, feminist, integrative, Marxist, peace-making, postmodernist and realistic criminology. The journal does not limit the scope of the inquiry to state definitions of crime and includes issues of social harm and social justice. It also deals with issues that include class, gender, race/ethnicity and heterosexism. Conclusively we can say that the journal is of interest for all persons with an interest in alternative methodologies and theories in criminology, including chaos theory, non-linear analysis, and complex systems science as it pertains to the study of crime and criminal justice. The journal encourages works that focus on creative and cooperative solutions to justice problems, plus strategies for the construction of a more inclusive society.

Please send three hard copies of manuscripts to: Barbara Sims, Editor-in-Chief, Penn State Harrisburg, 777 West Harrisburg Pike, Middletown, PA 17057. Prior to submission, please access the following URL and follow the posted author’s guidelines.

CALL FOR PAPERS

ASC DIVISION OF INTERNATIONAL CRIMINOLOGY

Student Paper Competition

At the 2004 meeting of the American Society of Criminology in Nashville, the Division of International Criminology voted to establish a student paper competition in order to promote quality comparative scholarship in international criminology. The committee members are:

Dr. Wojciech Cebulak, Associate Professor, Department of Criminal Justice, Minot State University, Minot, ND, USA (Chairperson); Dr. Wayne Pitts, Assistant Professor, Department of Criminology and Criminal Justice, The University of Memphis, Memphis, TN USA; Dr. Mahesh Nall, Professor of Criminal Justice, School of Criminal Justice, Michigan State University, East Lansing, MI, USA.

Paper topics must be related to international or comparative criminology or criminal justice. Any student, both in the United States and anywhere in the world, currently enrolled in an academic university/college program, is invited to participate in the American Society of Criminology Division of International Criminology Student Paper Competition. Students of all university/college levels are invited to take part: undergraduate, master’s, and doctoral. Absence of the undergraduate/graduate distinction in a particular country is not an obstacle; however, high school (secondary) students do not qualify: participants must be enrolled in institutions of higher education. Submissions must be authored by the submitting student (only). Student submissions will be evaluated in three categories: undergraduate, master’s and doctoral levels. Papers must be previously unpublished and cannot be submitted to any other competition or made public in any other way until the committee reaches its decision. Manuscripts should include a 100 word abstract, be double-spaced (12-point Times New Roman or Courier), written in English, and should be no more than 7,500 words. Submissions should conform to the APA 5.0 format for the organization of text, citations and references. Manuscripts should be submitted as an e-mail attachment in any of the following: Word, Wordperfect, a .pdf file, or an .rtf file, simultaneously to the three committee members:

Wojciech.cebula@minotstateu.edu; nalla@msu.edu; wpitts@memphis.edu by August 31st, 2005. Late submissions will not be accepted. The submission must be accompanied by a hard-copy letter of support/introduction from the student’s primary academic advisor, on the university’s letterhead and with the faculty member’s handwritten signature, indicating the academic status of the student. Proof of current full-time enrollment must also be provided in hard copy. Please send the above by airmail to:

Dr. Wojciech Cebulak, Associate Professor
Minot State University
Department of Criminal Justice
500 University Ave. West
Minot, North Dakota 58707 USA

If a student does not have access to email, he/she should submit their work in hard copy by airmail to Dr. Cebulak (committee chairperson) at the above address, postmarked by August 31st, 2005. Submissions must be accompanied by a cover sheet where the student should provide the following: first and last name, the university and department’s name and location, and the student’s category: undergraduate, master’s, or doctoral. The winning submissions in each category will receive a monetary award and be given recognition at the 2005 ASC meeting in Toronto. The winning articles will also be considered for publication in the International Journal of Comparative and Applied Criminal Justice (although winning the competition is not a guarantee of publication as the manuscript will have to go through the journal’s regular peer-review process.) Depending on the volume of submissions, the Committee may also decide to designate two second-place winners (runner-ups).

CALL FOR PAPERS

International Journal of Comparative and Applied Criminal Justice

Now in its 28th year, and newly adopted by the DIC, the International Journal of Comparative and Applied Criminal Justice has provided a forum for scholars, academics, and practitioners who are interested in comparative theory and empirical research in the field. The Journal focuses on two distinct but related concepts. First, papers should be comparative: i.e., comparative analysis of cross-cultural theories of crime, legal systems, policing, courts, juvenile justice, women offenders, and, minority offenders. Second, papers should include policy recommendations for applying research findings to the operations of criminal justice in a given country or region. We invite you to consider submitting your manuscript to this peer-reviewed journal for possible publication. Please send three copies of typewritten, double-spaced original manuscripts not published previously or currently under consideration to Mahesh Nalla, Editor IJCACJ, Michigan State University, School of Criminal Justice, 560 Baker Hall, East Lansing, MI 48824-1118. Guidelines for authors are available at www.cj.msu.edu/~international.

UNITED NATIONS NEWS

As many ASC members now know, the DIC is spearheading the ASC’s efforts since it obtained consultative status as an NGO at the United Nations. Nancy Grosselinger is the main representative to the United Nations at Vienna for the ASC, and Cindy Smith and Rosemary Barberet are additional representatives. A large delegation of ASC members will be travelling to the UN Crime Congress in Bangkok, Thailand in mid-April to participate as presenters in ancillary sessions.

The United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime (www.unodc.org) collaborated with the ASC Division of International Criminology to archive the proceedings of Congresses I - X. The documents are currently available only in English. DIC Executive Councillor Cindy Smith has led a documentation project for the ASC and along with DIC member Jen Connolly, scanned 50 Years of Proceedings of the United Nations Congresses on the Prevention of Crime and the Treatment of Offenders. The United Nations convenes a crime congress every five years. The proceedings of those meetings, are now available on the DIC’s webpage at www.asc41.com then click on Divisions, DIC, United Nations, and UN Congress OR a direct link to www.asc41.com/undocs.htm

Many subjects have been addressed at these meetings, such as:

- Community policing
- Crime prevention
- Drugs and crime
- Human trafficking
- Juvenile justice
- Organized crime
- Rule of law
- Standards and goals
- Terrorism
- Treatment of prisoners
- Victimology
- Women and crime

DWC AWARD WINNERS

The Division on Women and Crime is pleased to announce the winners of the Division's 2004 awards:

LIFETIME ACHIEVEMENT AWARD
Christine Alder received our first Lifetime Achievement Award. She has been a visiting "fellow" at Keele University, Leuven University, and Cambridge University. She has published three books, edited five other books, written 29 book chapters, and 14 journal articles. Her publications provide a fruitful mix of advocacy and research on women and girls. She has advanced the research literature in so many ways, through her solid empirical and theoretical analysis to the policy relevance of her work. Finally, she has been a staunch supporter of other feminist scholars emerging in the field.

SENIOR SCHOLAR AWARD
Walter DeKeseredy (University of Ontario Institute of Technology) and Martin Schwartz received the DWC Senior Scholar Award jointly for their outstanding contributions over the years. They have 20 books (5 books they co-authored), 85 articles, and 78 book chapters. They are well-known, and well-respected in the area of woman abuse, producing path-breaking research into male-peer support for woman abuse. They are both internationally recognized as leaders in the field of violence against women research and policy. In addition, both have been proud mentors of many other feminist criminologists and active supporters of the Division on Women and Crime.

NEW SCHOLAR AWARD
Sharon Redhawk Love, University of Pennsylvania-Altoona, received the New Scholar Award. As an indigenous woman, she has written about and for indigenous women in criminology. She employs a multi-ethnic feminist approach to her work. In service, she has made important contribution to the American Indian Institute, to her faculty senate, to the Commission on Racial/Ethnic Diversity and to the LGBTQ Student Resource. She has received recognition as a Distinguished Minority Scholar, as an Outstanding Graduate Student, and a Multicultural Achievement Scholarship.
Call for Nominations for the
2005 Division on Women and Crime Awards

Nominations are requested for the following Division on Women and Crime awards:

Distinguished Scholar Award which recognizes outstanding contributions to the field of women and crime by an established scholar. The contributions may consist of a single outstanding book or work, a series of theoretical or research contributions, or the accumulated contributions of an established scholar. Eligibility includes scholars who have held a Ph.D. for eight or more years.

New Scholar Award which recognizes the achievements of scholars who show outstanding merit at the beginnings of their careers. Outstanding merit may be based on a single book or work, including dissertation or a series of theoretical or research contributions to the area of women and crime. Eligibility includes scholars who held a Ph.D. for less than eight years.

Lifetime Achievement Award which recognizes scholars upon retirement. We inaugurated this award on our 20th Anniversary, 2004. Scholars receiving this award should have established a career advancing the goals and work of the Division on Women and Crime.

"Inconvenient Woman of the Year" Award recognizes the scholar/activist who has participated in publicly promoting the ideals of gender equality and women's rights throughout society, particularly as it relates to gender and crime issues. This award will be granted on an ad hoc basis. Nominations should include specific documentation of public service (news articles, etc) and should describe in detail how this person's activism has raised awareness and interest in the issues that concern the Division on Women and Crime. This award was inaugurated in honor of our 20th Anniversary in 2004.

The nominees are evaluated by the awards committee based on their scholarly work, their commitment to women crime as a research discipline, and their commitment to women in crime as advocates, particularly in terms of dedication to the division on women and crime. In submitting your nomination, please provide the following supporting materials: a letter evaluating a nominee's contribution and its relevance to the award and the nominee's c.v. (short version preferred). No nominee will be considered unless these materials are provided and arrive by the deadline. Send nominations and supporting materials by October 15, 2005.

Awards: Division Awards will be presented at the Division on Women and Crime meeting at the ASC conference in November. The committee reserves the right to give no award in a particular year if it deems this appropriate. Submissions: Please send a letter of nomination describing the nominees contributions, identify the award for which you are nominating the individual (distinguished scholar, new scholar), and make sure that a vita for this nominee reaches the committee in a timely fashion. Self nominations are welcome. Send to: Kimberly J Cook, Chair, Department of Sociology and Criminal Justice, University of North Carolina at Wilmington, 601 South College Rd. Wilmington, NC 28403, or by e-mail: (This is a temporary e-mail address.)

Greetings Friends and Colleagues,

We are writing to you on behalf of the Conference organizing committee to inform you of: The University of Ontario Institute for Technology ~ First International Critical Race Theory & Human Rights Conference ~ October 26 to October 28, 2005 at the Renaissance Hotel Toronto at Skydome. The conference will address a range of critically important themes relating to Critical Race Theory and Human Rights in academia and the broader community.

There will be numerous papers, colloquium and workshop presentations by experts in the fields covered by the themes raised by the merging of Critical Race Theory and Human Rights. Participants are welcome to submit presentation proposals, either as 60 minute workshops or 90 minute jointly presented colloquium sessions. Presenters may choose to submit electronic papers for publication before or after the conference to be included in a conference CD-ROM report.

We encourage papers that address the proposed themes, but are not restricted to them. We welcome a diversity of perspectives from many different academic disciplines and from many different countries. The diversity of perspectives among our participants will greatly enrich our Critical Race Theory and Human Rights conversations, and we hope to host an exciting and stimulating conference.

Deadline for submission of proposed papers/workshops is June 15, 2005.

For further information, please contact either Dr. Wesley Crichlow (905-721-3111 ext. 2651) or Janette Watt (905-721-3111 ext. 3429) or by reply email at the University of Ontario Institute of Technology.

Yours sincerely,
Dr. Wesley Crichlow and Janette Watt, LL.B.

NEW PERSPECTIVES IN CRIMINOLOGY AND CRIMINAL JUSTICE BOOK SERIES

Jeffrey Ian Ross, Series Editor
www.jeffreyianross.com

Peter Lang Publishing is proud to announce the creation of a new series titled New Perspectives in Criminology and Criminal Justice. This list edited by Jeffrey Ian Ross (Associate Professor, University of Baltimore) is a forum for cutting edge work that pushes the boundaries of the disciplines of Criminology and Criminal Justice. This body of work will be devoted to eclectic, and underexplored issues in the fields, and imaginative approaches in terms of theory and methods. While primarily aimed at Criminology/Criminal Justice audiences (including scholars, instructors, and students), it will also appeal to those with an interest in anthropology, cultural studies, sociology, political science and law. CALL FOR PAPERS

SECURITY JOURNAL
The Security Journal provides a forum for the debate and analysis of key issues within the field of security. It brings together papers written by some of the world's leading practitioners and academics with the aim of generating new ideas and improving the management and practice of security. The papers will aim to facilitate the exchange of knowledge and good practice, and bridge the various disciplines, professions and countries. The ultimate criteria for a paper's acceptance are that the reader will learn something new from it and that it will advance learning in terms of generating ideas and/or improving practice. Contributors will include policy makers, professionals and academics. The journal will include research-based papers and case studies, as well as papers aimed at developing theory and good practice (3,000 - 5,000 words) and where appropriate, shorter pieces describing work under consideration or in progress (1,000 - 2,500 words). For more information about the journal, please visit the website: http://www.perpetuitypress.com/acatalog/Perpetuity_Press_Security_Journal_22.html. For inquiries concerning submission guidelines and requirements, please contact co-editor Professor Bonnie Fisher at: Bonnie.Fisher@uc.edu

A CRITICAL JOURNAL OF CRIME, LAW AND SOCIETY
The Justice Professional has been replaced by A CRITICAL JOURNAL OF CRIME, LAW AND SOCIETY, a refereed journal published quarterly by Routledge, Francis and Taylor Group. It is housed at the C. W. Post Campus of Long Island University, Department of Criminal Justice. The journal publishes articles that deal with substantive criminal justice and criminological issues, inviting both qualitative and quantitative papers. We welcome all articles relevant to areas of criminal justice as well as areas of public administration and public affairs. Literature review, summary report of innovative research projects, and research notes are all considered as well. MANUSCRIPT Typewritten, double spaced manuscripts must be submitted in quadruplicate (three blind copies) and sent to: Roslyn Muraskin, Ph.D., Editor, A Critical Journal of Crime, Law and Society, C.W.Post Campus – Post Hall 3C3, 720 Northern Blvd., Brookville NY 11548. An abstract of not more than 100 words, as well as a brief biographical statement describing the author's current affiliation and rank should accompany the manuscript along with the article on disk in Word. A CRITI-

CAL JOURNAL regards submission to the journal as a commitment to publish herein. Permission for use of copyright material is the responsibility of the author. Manuscripts should not exceed 20 typewritten double spaced pages. All footnotes, references, tables, figures, illustrations must be camera ready on an eight and one half by eleven wide paper. Footnotes and bibliographic citations must follow the journal style based upon that followed the American Psychological Association (APA). Since manuscripts are sent out anonymously for editorial evaluation, the authors' name should appear on a separate cover sheet. Electronic copies are accepted and should be sent to Roslyn.Muraskin@liu.edu.
POSITION ANNOUNCEMENTS

THE CRIMINOLOGIST will regularly feature in these columns position vacancies available in organizations and universities, as well as positions sought by members of the Society. A charge of $150.00 with the absolute maximum of 250 words allowed will be made. A charge will of $75.00 will be charged to institutional members of ASC to place a position announcement in the newsletter.

It is the policy of the ASC to publish position vacancies announcements only from those institutions or agencies which subscribe to equal education and employment opportunities and those which encourage women and minorities to apply. Institutions should indicate the deadline for the submission of application materials. To place announcements in THE CRIMINOLOGIST, send all material to: Sarah Hall, ASC., 1314 Kinnear Road, Suite 212, Columbus, OH 43212-1156. Telephone (614)292-9207, Fax (614)292-6767. When sending announcements, please include a phone number, fax number and contact person in the event we have questions about an ad.

The Professional Employment Exchange will be a regular feature at each Annual Meeting. Prospective employers and employees should register with the Society no later than three weeks prior to the Annual Meeting of the Society. The cost is $100 to register online at www.asc41.com/employg.html. Dr. Ken Adams (kenadams@mail.ucf.edu) is in charge of the website Employment Exchange.

WEB-BASED CRIME DATA RESOURCES AT THE NCOVR DATA CENTER

by

Jacqueline Cohen\(^1\) and Jerone Porter\(^2\)

With support from the National Science Foundation, the Data Center of the National Consortium on Violence Research (NCOVR) at Carnegie Mellon University provides web access to a number of data collections relating to violent offending and victimization. Currently the collection includes:

- UCR police agency data on offenses and arrests for years since 1980,
- SHR incident-based reports of homicides since 1980,
- NIBRS incident-based reports of offenses and arrests since 1997,
- NCVS national victimization survey data since 1973, and
- Census data from the decennial census in 1980, 1990 and 2000 for geographical levels from census block groups to national totals.

While violent offending has been a substantive focus of NCOVR, understanding the shared and distinctive features of violence often involves comparisons among violent and non-violent behaviors. So NCOVR data resources include the full range of offending types available in each data collection.

Two web-based tools are available for accessing the data. Oracle's Discoverer\(^\circledR\) application is a menu driven query tool that allows users to customize an extract file to include user selected variables and impose conditions on desired records. The Discoverer\(^\circledR\) tool allows the user to easily access subsets of variables and records without downloading the entire dataset and then processing it through user-created data preparation programs. Cognos Powerplay\(^\circledR\) provides flexible access to structured data "cubes." Cubes are multi-dimensional tables that focus on a specific theme. Users can manipulate these cubes to aggregate or disaggregate data and focus on particular areas of interest by changing the dimensions displayed and filtering the contributing data through a graphical "drag-and-drop" user interface. Users only need an internet connection and standard browser to access the data with either tool.

- http://www.ncovr.heinz.cmu.edu/docs/home.htm -- select "Access to NCOVR Data Sets," or

---

\(^1\) Jacqueline Cohen, Research Professor, National Consortium on Violence Research, Carnegie Mellon University

\(^2\) Jerone Porter, Data Center Manager, National Consortium on Violence Research, Carnegie Mellon University
• go directly to the data access page at:

http://www.ncovr.heinz.cmu.edu/docs/Data_Docs/Direct_access_data_cubes_and_discoverer.htm

The data access page includes links to tutorials on how to use data cubes and discoverer queries, background information on the various data sets, and links to access individual data sets. Users can log on as a guest using the direct "Log on as guest" link or enter user ID "Guest" and password "NCOVR" (without quotes). For expanded capabilities users can register for a personal account. This free service establishes a personal directory on the NCOVR server where users can save queries for their own future use or to share with others. New users can register directly from the data access page. The user's customized table can also be exported in csv or pdf format for use in other computer applications or printing.

• The NCOVR data collection includes several enhancements to the raw data available from original sources. UCR data since 1980 are combined into a single file permitting direct access to trends. Yearly UCR data include counts of offenses and arrests provided by police agencies reporting to the FBI's UCR program, along with the population covered and the number of months included each year. The latter are used to report population rates from the raw data and after straightforward adjustments for incomplete reporting by some agencies during an annual reporting cycle. In addition to total population covered by each agency, place-linked census data for 1980, 1990 and 2000 are available for the same demographic categories found in UCR arrest data.

• NCVS and NIBRS data are available as multi-year linked files. NCVS data are grouped for collections of years that use a common survey design. Current NCVS and NIBRS data cubes report incident counts—providing both sample and population counts for NCVS data. The current cubes focus on features of incidents and participants especially relevant to violent offending. These will be expanded to include cubes organized around property incidents, population based victimization rates, costs of crime, and offender and victim participants.

• NCOVR invites returning and potential users to contact Jacqueline Cohen (jc63@andrew.cmu.edu) or Jerone Porter (jerone@andrew.cmu.edu) for further assistance in accessing NCOVR Data Center resources.

TRENDS IN ORGANIZED CRIME
Trends in Organized Crime offers a composite of analyses and syntheses from a variety of information sources to serve the interests of both practitioners and policy makers as well as the academic community. It is both a stimulus to and a forum for more rigorous empirical research on organized crime, both nationally and internationally. Published four times a year, Trends in Organized Crime is the official journal of the International Association for the Study of Organized Crime (IASOC). It has a distinguished international editorial board. Trends publishes peer-reviewed, academically rigorous research, excerpts significant governmental reports; offers reviews of major new books, and, presents analyses and commentary on current issues in organized crime. Manuscripts must be submitted in English, in electronic form to <finckena@aol.com> as either ASCII, RTF or Word files. For further information, contact the Editor at the above addresses, or at 973-353-3301.

CRIMINAL JUSTICE REVIEW
The Criminal Justice Review is a bimannual scholarly journal dedicated to presenting a broad perspective on criminal justice issues. It focuses on any aspect of crime and the justice system, and can feature local, state, or national concerns. Both qualitative and quantitative pieces are encouraged, providing that they adhere to standards of quality scholarship. As a peer-reviewed journal, we encourage the submission of articles, research notes, commentaries, and comprehensive essays that focus on crime and justice-related topics broadly defined. In addition to an electronic version of the manuscript submitted in either Microsoft Word or WordPerfect, five paper copies of manuscripts should be submitted in English, follow APA style, be double-spaced throughout, including references, tables and indented quotations, and cannot be under consideration by another publication. An abstract not to exceed 200 words must be included with submissions. Send to: Michael S. Vaughn, Editor, Criminal Justice Review, P.O. Box 4018, Georgia State University, Atlanta, GA 30302-4018; 404-651-3688; Email: mvaughn@gsu.edu; Web Site: www.gsu.edu/cjr.

INTERNATIONAL CRIMINAL JUSTICE REVIEW
The International Criminal Justice Review is an annual scholarly journal dedicated to presenting system wide trends and problems on crime and justice throughout the world. Articles may focus on a single country or compare issues affecting two or more countries. Both qualitative and quantitative pieces are encouraged, providing they adhere to standards of quality scholarship. Manuscripts may emphasize either contemporary or historical topics. As a peer-reviewed journal, we encourage the submission of articles, research notes, commentaries, and comprehensive essays that focus on crime and justice-related topics in an international and/or comparative context broadly defined. In addition to an electronic version of the manuscript submitted in either Microsoft Word or WordPerfect, five paper copies of manuscripts should be submitted in English, follow APA style, be double-spaced throughout, including references, tables and indented quotations, and cannot be under consideration by another publication. An abstract not to exceed 200 words must be included with submissions. Send to: Michael S. Vaughn, Editor, International Criminal Justice Review, P.O. CRITICAL PERSPECTIVES IN CRIMINOLOGY
Critical Perspectives in Criminology will publish scholarly books and edited volumes that are critically conceived, theoretically animated, integratively focused, and policy oriented. We hope to identify and secure commitments from established authors and emerging talent in the field of criminology, including individuals whose disciplinary base is sociology, psychology, law, philosophy, history, psychiatry, political science, gender studies, and any of the other related social and behavioral sciences. Books in the Series will be aimed at the scholarly community, including library acquisitions and single purchases by academic researchers, as well as classroom adoption in higher division undergraduate and lower division graduate courses. Volumes in the Series will NOT be intended for use as undergraduate textbooks. Questions about the Series or submissions should be sent to: Bruce A. Arigo, Ph.D., Series Editor, Critical Perspectives in Criminology, Department of Criminal Justice, University of North Carolina at Charlotte, 9201 University City Blvd., Charlotte, NC 28223-0001; Barrigo@email.uncc.edu - or - Kerry P. CALL FOR PAPERS

ANNALS OF THE AMERICAN ACADEMY OF POLITICAL AND SOCIAL SCIENCE
DEMOCRACY, CRIME AND JUSTICE

Special Issue Editors: Susanne Karstedt, Keele University, UK, and Gary LaFree, University of Maryland, USA

This volume seeks to consolidate and advance the study of democracy, crime and justice. We invite contributions from criminology, political science, sociology and related disciplines that explore the reciprocal connections between democratic institutions and processes and criminal behavior and criminal justice institutions. We seek broad coverage of these topics but with an emphasis on cross-national comparative approaches and democracies in transition. We plan to solicit both empirical and theoretical papers, and seek both cross-national comparative and case studies from both mature and newly emerging democracies and for a range of crime types and criminal justice institutions.

The following questions suggest the breadth of topics to be addressed: Under what circumstances does the transition to democracy initiate a wave of crime and corruption? Is democracy, especially in the context of market economies, inherently criminogenic? How do responses to crime in both established and transitional democracies undermine civil liberties and affect public demands for restrictive changes in democratic institutions? How can transitional countries develop new democratic institutions and yet meet public demands for safety and security? How can criminal justice innovations (e.g., community crime prevention, restorative justice) be used to strengthen democracies? What new roles can communities develop for providing the moral order on which democracies rely and on which they thrive? How can principles of democratic governance be transferred to the supra- and international level in an increasingly globalized security environment? How do democratic states preserve and defend justice in the face of increasing threats from transnational crime and terrorism? The editors plan to use the 14th World Congress of Criminology [Philadelphia, USA, 7-12 August 2005 (www.worldcriminology2005.com)] as an opportunity to identify papers for the volume. Timetable and deadlines: We plan to have a final list of contributors by November 30, 2005 and final manuscripts by June 30, 2006. Final acceptance of all manuscripts will be made by the Editors of the Annals. For more information, contact the special issue editors: Susanne Karstedt: s.karstedt@keele.ac.uk or Gary LaFree: g.lafree@msn.com

JOURNAL OF SCHOOL VIOLENCE

From playground bullying to mass murder, the Journal of School Violence tracks the causes, consequences, and costs of aggressive or violent behavior in children from kindergarten through twelfth grade. It presents up-to-date research, practice, and theory with a focus on prevention and intervention. The Journal of School Violence offers tested information on such urgent matters as threat assessment, hostage situations, stalking behavior, and teacher safety, as well as articles on longer-range strategic planning. This peer-reviewed journal shows teachers and counselors how to deal with immediate problems and helps administrators and policymakers plan effectively to ensure school security. Four copies of the manuscript should be submitted. The manuscript should be approximately 15-20 pages double-spaced with a one-inch margin on all four sides and should include an abstract of 100 words, a title page, and a brief biographical sketch of author(s). References, citations, and general style of manuscript should follow the AA style (as outlined in the latest edition of Publication Manual of the American Psychological Association. References should be double-spaced and placed in alphabetical order. Send all requests and manuscripts to: Edwin R. Gerler, Jr., EdD, Department of Educational Research, Leadership & Counselor Education, College of Education & Psychology, North Carolina State University, Box 7801, Raleigh, NC 27695-7801; Tel: (919) 515-5975; Fax: (919) 515-6891; E-mail: Egerler@gw.fis.ncsu.edu or edwin_gerler@ncsu.edu. CRIMINAL JUSTICE STUDIES: A CRITICAL JOURNAL OF CRIME, LAW AND SOCIETY

Special Issue: Criminal Justice and Homeland Security (Early 2006 Issue)

Criminal Justice Studies: A Critical Journal of Crime, Law and Society, edited by Roslyn Muraskin, invites manuscripts for consideration in a planned special issue on Criminal Justice and Homeland Security. The Guest Editor requests submissions that examine the nexus between criminal justice and homeland security. A broad range of submissions are encouraged that critically analyze the relationship between law, police, courts and correction efforts to protect the United State's homeland.

Manuscripts should be 15-20 pages in length and follow standard editorial procedures of the journal. Each submission should include a disk with four hard copies and a brief biographical sketch of the author(s). Manuscripts must be received no later than August 15, 2005. Please send all materials to: Everette B. Penn, University of Houston-Clear Lake, 2700 Bay Area Boulevard, Box 275, Houston, TX 77058. Phone: (281) 283-3363; Fax: (281) 283-3408; pennev@cl.uh.edu

A CRITICAL JOURNAL OF CRIME, LAW AND SOCIETY
The Justice Professional has been replaced by A CRITICAL JOURNAL OF CRIME, LAW AND SOCIETY, a refereed journal published quarterly by Routledge, Francis and Taylor Group. It is housed at the C. W. Post Campus of Long Island University, Department of Criminal Justice. The journal publishes articles that deal with substantive criminal justice and criminological issues, inviting both qualitative and quantifiable papers. We welcome all articles relevant to areas of criminal justice as well as areas of public administration and public affairs. Literature review, summary report of innovative research projects, and research notes are all considered as well. MANUSCRIPT Typewritten, double spaced manuscripts must be submitted in quadruplicate (three blind copies) and sent to: Roslyn Muraskin, Ph.D., Editor, A Critical Journal of Crime, Law and Society, C.W.Post Campus – Post Hall 3C3, 720 Northern Blvd., Brookville NY 11548. An abstract of not more than 100 words, as well as a brief biographical statement describing the author’s current affiliation and rank should accompany the manuscript along with the article on disk in Word. A CRITICAL JOURNAL regards submission to the journal as a commitment to publish herein. Permission for use of copyright material is the responsibility of the author. Manuscripts should not exceed 20 typewritten double spaced pages. All footnotes, references, tables, figures, illustrations must be camera ready on an eight and one half by eleven wide paper. Footnotes and bibliographic citations must follow the journal style based upon that followed the American Psychological Association (APA). Since manuscripts are sent out anonymously for editorial evaluation, the authors’ name should appear on a separate cover sheet. Electronic copies are accepted and should be sent to Roslyn.Muraskin@liu.edu.

JOURNAL OF CONTEMPORARY CRIMINAL JUSTICE
The Journal of Contemporary Criminal Justice invites individuals to submit manuscripts for consideration for inclusion in a planned special issue on the topic, Prosecuting Change, Changing Prosecutors. The Guest Editor encourages submissions dealing with either the prosecution of emerging crime problems (e.g., terrorism) or changes in the role of the American prosecutor (e.g., from traditional to community prosecution). Inquiries about the appropriateness of topics should be directed to John L. Worrall, JCCJ Guest Editor, via email at (jworrall@csusb.edu) or telephone (909-880-7741). All manuscripts will be peer reviewed. Manuscripts must be received no later than January 1, 2006. Please send four manuscript copies, along with the manuscript on disk, to John L. Worrall, Department of Criminal Justice, California State UniversitySan Bernardino, 5500 University Parkway, San Bernardino, CA 92407-2397.

JOURNAL OF CONTEMPORARY CRIMINAL JUSTICE
Special Issue: Criminal Justice in Latin America (August 2006 issue)
The Journal of Contemporary Criminal Justice invites individuals to submit manuscripts for consideration for inclusion in a planned special issue on the topic, Criminal Justice in Latin America. The Guest Editor encourages submissions on all aspects of the subject, but is especially interested in manuscripts that consider Latin American criminal justice systems in comparative perspective. Inquiries about the appropriateness of topics should be directed to Christopher Birkbeck, JCCJ Guest Editor, via e-mail (birkbeck@ula.ve). All manuscripts will be peer reviewed. Manuscripts should be no more than 25 typed, double-spaced pages including tables, figures and references. Manuscripts must be received no later than January 15, 2006. Please send four manuscript copies, along with the manuscript on disk, to Christopher Birkbeck, School of Criminology, Universidad de Los Andes, Apartado 730, Mérida 5101, Venezuela.

JOURNAL OF CONTEMPORARY CRIMINAL JUSTICE
Special Issue: Methods of Comparative Research in Crime and Justice (May 2006 issue)
The Journal of Contemporary Criminal Justice invites individuals to submit manuscripts for consideration for inclusion in a planned special issue on the topic, Methods of Comparative Research in Crime and Justice. The Guest Editor encourages submissions on all aspects of the subject, including but not limited to comparative research design, measurement and issues of conceptual equivalence, language and translation impediments, research ethics and innovative comparative research techniques. Inquiries about the appropriateness of topics should be directed to Rosemary Barberet, JCCJ Guest Editor (rbarbere@polsoc.uc3m.es). All manuscripts will be peer reviewed. Manuscripts should be no more than 25 typed, double-spaced pages including tables, figures and references. Manuscripts must be received no later than July 1, 2005. Please email the manuscript as an attachment to Rosemary Barberet at rbarbere@polsoc.uc3m.es.

POLICE PRACTICE AND RESEARCH: An International Journal
Manuscripts are solicited for Police Practice and Research: An International Journal, which is published in five issues per volume. The journal presents current and innovative police research, as well as operational and administrative practices from around the world. Articles and reports are sought from practitioners, researchers, and others interested in developments in policing, analysis of public order, and the state of safety as it affects the quality of life everywhere. The journal seeks to bridge the gap in knowledge that exists regarding who the police are, what they do, and how they maintain order, administer laws, and serve their communities. Attention is also focused on specific organizational information about the police in different countries and regions, and periodic special issues are devoted to studying police policies and practices regarding a particular topic or issue. The editors aim to improve cooperation between those who are active in the field and those who are involved in academic research, as such a relationship is essential for innovative police work. To this end, the editors encourage the submission of articles co-authored by police practitioners and researchers that highlight a particular subject from both points of view.

Submission of Manuscripts: Manuscripts should be electronically submitted to: Associate Managing Editor Analida Ivankovic, Tel: 1 718-232-2044; e-mail analidai@yahoo.com. Manuscripts should normally be no more than 25 typed pages (Word, Times New Roman, 12 Font, Double-Spaced) in English. The manuscript should be accompanied by an abstract of no more than 100 words, up to six key words, and a brief biographical sketch. For complete Notes for Contributors, one should refer to www.tandf.co.uk/journals or visit www.ipes.info

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF, Dilip K. Das, Department of Criminal Justice, East Carolina University, 333 Rivers West, Greenville, NC 27858, USA; email: dilipkd@aol.com TEL: (802) 598-3680 or (252)328-5559.

MANAGING EDITOR: Kam C. Wong, Dept. of Public Affairs-Criminal Justice, University of Wisconsin (Oshkosh), Oshkosh, WI 54901-8655 USA; e-mail: wong@uwosh.edu

SECURITY JOURNAL
The Security Journal provides a forum for the debate and analysis of key issues within the field of security. It brings together papers written by some of the world's leading practitioners and academics with the aim of generating new ideas and improving the management and practice of security. The papers will aim to facilitate the exchange of knowledge and good practice, and bridge the various disciplines, professions and countries. The ultimate criteria for a paper's acceptance are that the reader will learn something new from it and that it will advance learning in terms of generating ideas and/or improving practice. Contributors will include policy makers, professionals and academics. The journal will include research-based papers and case studies, as well as papers aimed at developing theory and good practice (3,000 - 5,000 words) and where appropriate, shorter pieces describing work under consideration or in progress (1,000 - 2,500 words). For more information about the journal, please visit the website: http://www.perpetuitypress.com/catalog/Perpetuity_Press_Security_Journal_22.html. For inquiries concerning submission guidelines and requirements, please contact co-editor Professor Bonnie Fisher at: Bonnie.Fisher@uc.edu

JUSTICE POLICY JOURNAL
The Justice Policy Journal is up and running again and better than ever. One of the few on-line journals, it is sponsored by the Center on Juvenile and Criminal Justice in San Francisco, with editorial support from the University of Nevada-Las Vegas. Papers should focus on public policy issues, although other scholarly articles will be considered. Among the topics we are especially interested in include the impact of incarceration policies, prisoner "re-entry," sentencing reform, drug policy, and juvenile justice policies. Review our submission guidelines at http://www.jpjournal.org/submission_guidelines.php. Submissions to the JPJ (Justice Policy Journal) should have a title page, abstract, brief biographical sketch, a statement of research interest and an e-mail address. Send the document via e-mail as an attachment to profg@cox.net or postal service on a disk, preferably as a MS Word document, to: Justice Policy Journal, Professor Randall G. Shepard, Editor, Department of Criminal Justice at UNLV, 4505 Maryland Parkway, Box 455009, Las Vegas, NV 80154, tel: 702-895-0251. (Manuscripts that are not submitted electronically will not be accepted.) Manuscripts submitted via e-mail should be sent to JPJ in original word processing format, preferably Microsoft Word. JPJ articles submissions should be prepared in accordance with the either the Modern Language Association or American Psychological Association documentation style for scholarly manuscripts and research papers. For information regarding the desired citation style, authors should consult the appropriate manual. Strict adherence to proper citation style is required. Papers that do not conform to one of the accepted styles will not be accepted.

CRIMINAL LAW BULLETIN

The Criminal Law Bulletin is a journal addressing legal aspects of criminal justice, including policing, adjudication, corrections, and delinquency. The journal welcomes manuscripts by researchers, practitioners, and advanced graduate students. The 2003 volume included articles by James Jacobs, William Bowers, and Hans Toch. Manuscripts of varying lengths (3,000-10,000 words) are published in 6 issues per year. Submissions should be sent on an IBM-compatible disk in WordPerfect or Microsoft Word format, double spaced, with any tables or charts at the end of the copy, and accompanied by a hard copy to: James E. Robertson, Editor-in-Chief & Professor of Corrections, 113 Armstrong Hall, Minnesota State University, Mankato, MN 56001; or, preferably, e-mailed to: james.robertson@mnsu.edu (please remember to include your name, title, affiliation, address, daytime telephone number, fax number and e-mail address). References and citations should conform to either the Uniform System of Citation (The Bluebook) or the Chicago Manual on Style. The Criminal Law Bulletin is published by West Group and marks its 40th anniversary in 2004.

JOURNAL OF CRIME AND JUSTICE

The Journal of Crime and Justice, the official journal of the Midwestern Criminal Justice Association, is soliciting manuscripts with original scholarship in the area of crime and criminal justice. JC&J welcomes qualitative and quantitative empirical work, theoretical commentaries, and book reviews. The emphasis of the journal is on quality and interest to criminologists as well as practitioners. If you would like to have your work considered for publication in the JC&J, please submit a cover letter, four copies of your manuscript, and a $10 check made out to the Journal of Crime and Justice to: Christopher J. Schreck, Editor, Journal of Crime and Justice, Department of Criminal Justice, Rochester Institute of Technology, 1 Lomb Memorial Drive, Rochester, NY 14623. For more information about the Journal of Crime and Justice, please visit the Journal's Homepage at: http://www.rit.edu/~cjsgecj/JCJ.htm.

CANADIAN JOURNAL OF CRIMINOLOGY AND CRIMINAL JUSTICE

The Canadian Journal of Criminology and Criminal Justice invites contributions on any aspect of crime or delinquency, or criminal or juvenile justice. CJCCJ has been publishing continuously for almost 50 years, making it one of the oldest scholarly journals in the field. Preference is given to articles with particular relevance to Canada, but the Journal also welcomes comparative studies and work which is of general interest. The journal accepts research articles, research notes, commentaries, and book reviews. The length of most research articles is 20-30 double-spaced pages. Commentaries and research notes tend to be considerably shorter. An editorial decision is normally provided within three months of submission. Instructions to authors and book reviewers and the contents of recent issues are posted at the journal’s websites at: http://www.ccja-acpj.ca/en/cjcl.html and http://www.utpjournals.com/jour.html?j=p=cjccj/cjccj.html. For further information, please contact the editor, Peter Carrington, at: pjc@uwaterloo.ca

JOURNAL OF CONTEMPORARY ETHNOGRAPHY

Scott A. Hunt is the editor-elect for the Journal of Contemporary Ethnography. JCE publishes theoretically, methodologically, and substantively significant studies based upon participant-observation, unobtrusive observation, intensive interviewing, and contextualized analysis of discourse as well as examinations of ethnographic methods. Submissions from all substantive areas and theoretical perspectives are welcomed. Email manuscript submissions (in Word or WordPerfect format) may be sent to sahunt00@uky.edu. Hardcopy submissions and all other correspondence should be sent to Scott A. Hunt, Editor, Journal of Contemporary Ethnography, Department of Sociology, University of Kentucky, Lexington, Kentucky 40506-9027. A processing fee of US $10 must be submitted via a check or money order made payable to the Journal of Contemporary Ethnography.

THE SOUTHWEST JOURNAL OF CRIMINAL JUSTICE

The Southwest Journal of Criminal Justice (SWJCJ) is now accepting manuscripts for consideration. We are interested in receiving submissions of original work that have not been previously published. Diversity in theoretical and methodological approaches is encouraged as is the submission of policy-related research. The SWJCJ is the online, refereed journal of the Southwest Association of Criminal Justice, a regional affiliate of the Academy of Criminal Justice Sciences. Authors need not be members of the Southwest Association of Criminal Justice to submit a manuscript for consideration. Previous issues of the journal and submission information are located at http://www.cj.texasstate.edu/swacjindex.html. Inquiries may be directed to the editor at jon_sorensen@pvamu.edu.
